GEORGE ADE SENDS CONGRATULATIONS TO MCCRAY

George Ade, who is sojourning at French Lick, has written a congratulatory letter to Governor-elect Warren T. McCray in his typical Ade style. Mr. Ade, addressing Mr. McCray as "Dear Warnie," wrote as follows:

"The result of the election is something like the experience of the woman who gave birth to triplets—she expected it but not to such an extent. The whole thing was simply an explosion of the wrath against the narrow-minded usurper who ignored the plain wishes of his fellow citizen. So far as Indiana is concerned, you have my best wishes and I have no doubt that having drilled yourself to the habit of work and having learned to meet emergencies, you will rather enjoy most of the experience ahead of you. I have no advice to offer and no requests to make because I know the Governor of Indiana to raise the price of corn and oats. You have my best wishes."

ROOSEVELT'S CLEAN CAMPAIGN

"On election eve F. D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for vice-president, laid the flattering unction unto his party's soul that it had conducted a clean campaign. Ordinarily it is not important that the victor should notice the pre-election statements of the vanquished, but young Mr. Roosevelt's statement is one which demands refutation."

"It is doubtful if a dirtier, yellower campaign was ever conducted in the history of American politics than that which was sponsored in one way or another by the Democratic party from the day of Mr. Cox's acceptance speech up to the utter rout of hypocrisy on November 2nd."

"There seemed to be no limit in lexicon or legerdemain which was not sought by the champions of Messrs. Cox and F. D. Roosevelt in the campaign recently closed. Slander and vilification were exploited to their uttermost depths by these men. They called Warren Harding a brewer, a weakling and a snob. They repeatedly impugned his honesty. They at length descended to the lowest level of personal abuse by circulating lying leaflets concerning his blood and his parentage. They called the Senate leader of the Republicans a base conspirator and the most despised man in America. They accused the Republican party with attempting to purchase the election, an insult alike to the Republicans and to the voters. They charged that party with conniving with Kaiser Wilhelm to keep the United States out of the league of nations; with a plot to debauch the U. S. Supreme Court in that Harding, if elected, would appoint judges to that august body whose decisions would be hawked in the market place; with appealing to the hyphenated vote and ignoring the American vote; with planning the rule of the bayonet and the reign of the mailed fist. In the desperation the Democrats dragged the vestments of religion from their chancels and waved them in the faces of the people; they invaded the churches with their unAmerican crusade, and they capitalized the illness of their leader in an appeal to the sob vote; and they dragged the State Department to their purposes. In the choice language of F. D. Roosevelt, opponents of the Versailles Treaty were 'league liars,' as they were 'contemptible quitters' in the intemperate language of Mr. Wilson, whose uncontrollable fits of rage worked his destruction. If this was F. D. Roosevelt's idea of a 'clean campaign,' what horrible metamorphosis had party association worked in him? What filth could his party have possibly handled to earn his disapproval?"

"And the aftermath blasts from the Democratic party are quite as fetid. The editorial appearing in the New York World on the morning following election displayed the spirit of Lucifer cast out of Heaven. The truest sport in the Democratic ranks, if we are to judge from after-election language, was James W. Gerard, of the Democratic National Committee, whose tribute to Harding was like a flower blooming in a fen."

"The campaign waged by the Democratic party was a disgrace to American politics. It showed, as nothing else could, the composite mentality of the proponents of internationalism, parlor-bolshevism, and that sickening sycofancy which grows out of worship of a king. Its sharpest condemnation was to be found in the poise and dignity maintained by Harding and Coolidge—a condemnation which the people overwhelmingly indorsed. Never has hypocrisy received such a rebuke. The Democratic party has four years in which to purge itself, and it is to be hoped its putrescence has not reached the tertiary stage. Meanwhile it is in order to swap the Democratic donkey for a pole-cat."

FOURTH RED CROSS ROLL CALL

The Fourth Roll Call of the American Red Cross is on. It began Armistice Day and will continue through Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 25.

In the national enrollment 10,500,000 members are sought while in Lake Division—Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky—a membership of 1,500,000 is the goal.

In order to carry out its vast peace program, which embraces tasks of great magnitude both at home and in foreign lands, the Red Cross needs the united support of the American people.

Europe is looking to the Red Cross for relief during the coming winter, when cold and hunger again will menace thousands, particularly in the impoverished countries of the east.

Hundreds of thousands of children in Eastern Europe are dependent upon outside relief and great numbers will die during the winter unless assistance in some measure is extended.

Hundreds of thousands of children in Eastern Europe are dependent upon outside relief and great numbers will die during the winter unless assistance in some measure is extended.

Just as the Roll Call opens word comes of the death in South Russia of Capt. Emmett Kilpatrick of the Red Cross at the hands of the Bolshevik during a cavalry raid.

This illustrates, in a striking way, the self-sacrificing service the Red Cross is performing and how its workers are laying down their lives in the line of duty.

Maintenance of the Disaster Relief Service, to which many in Lake Division owe debts of gratitude; development of the Public Health Nursing Service and Health Centers and extension of Home Service work are some of the tasks faced at home.

To what extent the Red Cross will be able to meet the pressing needs in this country depends upon the response of the American people in the Roll Call.

The message of the Red Cross will be delivered to thousands of

Crude Oil and the Automobile

IN 1914 (when there were 1,000,000 automobiles in the United States) oil producers drilled about 25,000 wells. The average paid for crude was 95c per barrel.

In 1914 producers had a little discouragement. The price for crude oil fell off to 81c average, and they drilled only 23,000 wells. These wells, however, proved exceptionally prolific and crude prices dropped to an average of 64c a barrel (40c in the Mid-Continent field). As a consequence of the over-production, the bottom dropped out of the gasoline market and low prices prevailed.

The low prices of crude made exploration of new fields unprofitable, and in 1915 only 14,000 wells were drilled. This halt in production enabled demand to creep up on supply, and caused crude to advance until it reached $1.10 per barrel.

Encouraged by the better prices offered, producers put down 24,000 wells in 1916. The unprecedented demand aroused by the war caused petroleum prices to soar, and, notwithstanding the activities in the producing field, prices have continued to advance because demand exceeded supply.

In August, 1920, the number of new oil wells brought in for that month alone was 3,518—the highest oil production mark in the history of the United States. Yet so great was demand that Mid-Continent crude stood firm at $3.50, and Pennsylvania crude at $6.10 per barrel, the present prevailing prices.

The market price for crude is not apt to go off appreciably while demand continues to increase as during 1920.

Since 1913 the number of motor vehicles in the United States has increased approximately 7,459,607, and the forecast for 1921 is 10 million motor vehicles in the United States.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is straining every fibre and sinew of its highly specialized organization to increase the yield of gasoline from crude petroleum.

How well it is succeeding is indicated by the fact that an eminent authority states that the Burton process, originating in the laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has produced 40 million barrels of gasoline from heavy distillates, and has thus saved approximately 150 million barrels of crude oil that would otherwise have been necessary to produce an equivalent amount of gasoline.
