It is alright as long as you don't get funny, to pull off a joke, but the cuss that swiped the Review Editor's overcoat and sweater this time of the year has surely carried the joke to the place where it becomes saturated with solemnity.

President-elect Harding is back from Panama.

From now on, our basket ball team expects to put more steam behind their playing. We surely have good material for a one hundred per cent quintette of athletes.

Allen Fendig of Kankakee City came home Saturday evening to spend Sunday with home folks.

Albert Keene, our gravel road contractor, is grading the mile of road that begins at the northwest corner of the Dan Meyers farm and runs south to the Rensselaer stone road. If he gets it all graded before it freezes up, he will put the stone on this winter. This mile of road, we suppose, has provoked more good men to cuss and damn than any in these parts.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ropp, who have been quite sick for the past few days, are much better.

We suppose that our Wheatfield colony in Florida are enjoying the balmy air of that land of perpetual youth. When we are being soaked in the snow and cold blasts of old King Winter—please don't write up here and tell us about walking in the orange groves or wearing a bouquet of flowers upon the lapel of your vest.

George and Harry say that the ideal place for a skunk den is under an old straw stack. You should have seen Neal's bound jerk them out by the dozens.

When you buy chewing gum, buy two packages at a time. Chew right.

Post Master Bush of Kersey and Wm. Bush of Baum's bridge, were callers on your correspondent last Sunday.
