“Blue Streak McCoy”

There was a man in the land of Oz whose name was Job; and he was perfect and eschewed evil. Oh, ye mothers who would make angels of your children, harken to the story of little Job McCoy, known later in life as “Blue Streak McCoy.” Many actors play dual roles, but in “Blue Streak McCoy” two actors play one role. Bonnie Alex- ander plays Job, the child. Harry Carey plays Job, the man. I knew him since he was knee-high to a duck and fight? Say he'd back a rattler right into his hole. That was Job's recommendation to the border rangers.

BAKER BRANDED BY LEGION POST

COLORADO POST DENOUNCES WAR SECRETARY FOR FREEING SLACKER.

The following article is taken from the Denver Post under date of December 11, and was sent to us by Henry Nevill, a former Rensselaer, but now of Limon, Colo.:

Secretary of War Baker was branded by Leo Leyden post No. 1, American Legion, Thursday night as “disloyal to the men who fought the war and too all other loyal citizens of the United States and therefore unworthy of any public office or trust.”

Adoption of scathing denunciation of the secretary of war was the answer of the ex-service men to Baker's action in releasing Ben Salmon—Denver's yellowest slacker—and thirty-two other slackers who had been imprisoned for their refusal to serve their country in time of war.

The resolution follows:

“WHEREAS: The gross inefficiency displayed by Newton D. Baker, secretary of war, in his conduct of the war department before, during and since the World war, has resulted in great financial, moral loss, and,

“WHEREAS: The secretary of war has now released the notorious slacker, Ben Salmon and others, while men who served their country and were sentenced for minor breaches of discipline are kept in prison and,

“WHEREAS: Leo Leyden Post, No. 1, American Legion, considers that the secretary of war has offered a direct insult through this action to every man and woman who served in the military forces during the World war,

“BE IT RESOLVED, that the Leo Leyden post condemns and denounces Newton D. Baker and brands him as disloyal to the men who fought the war and to all other loyal citizens of the United States, and therefore unworthy of any public office or trust.”

“BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this resolution be sent to the secretary of war, the president of the United States, our representatives in congress, the American Legion and the press.”

Henry Ford Is Denounced.

Resolutions also were authorized denouncing Henry Ford for his recent attack on the Jews and deplored the war record of his son, Edsel Ford; urging the authorities not to permit William D. Haywood, I. W. W. leader, to visit Colorado; urging the school board to establish a branch of the Opportunity School in North Denver for the Indian colony; indorsing the action of the American Legion Denver central committee in efforts to have the Fitzsimons general hospital transferred to the public health service; urging the adoption by every American Legion post of resolutions making Armistice day a real holiday.

Howard G. Wade suggested that the legion invite Haywood to speak at its smoker to be given in the Charles building next Thursday night, assuring him he would receive the warmest reception he ever experienced and that all funeral expenses would be paid, but the motion was turned down.

A committee was appointed to take charge of a new membership drive. The committee is composed of Mr. Wade, chairman; F. H. Talbot, E. R. Moyle, Rebecca Kelley, Lawrence Lewis, Henry Schultz, M. Packman, Harry Sullivan, D. J. Spahr, Capt. W. H. Smith and Henry A. Cowan.

Not only American legion posts, but ex-service men individually, are denouncing the release of Salmon and the other slackers.

“Who put up the money to buy Ben Salmon and his bunch of yellow slackers out of prison?” demands L. E. Brundage of Norwood, Colo., in a letter to The Denver Post. “Where is American patriotism going? What did the ex-service men do to have such an insult handed them after they had given up their homes and all to make this a decent place to live in?”

Took Up Arms When War Broke.

“When Uncle Sam declared war on Fritz bunch of us boys left here to take up arms; we didn't wait to be punched into service. We slept in wet dugouts, crummy barracks, built bridges, wire entanglements, roads, waded knee deep with heavy packs over half the soil of ‘sunny France’ and ‘helped to knock hell out of Fritz besides. Then, to have a bunch like that handed us in return.”

“After we got home we found all our worldly possessions had been stolen and carried off by the Ben Salmons left at home. Some of them went so far as to haul away the cabins the boys had on their homesteads. I guess it's all true what General Sherman said about war.”

H. J. Black, formerly of Battery C, Eleventh Field artillery, Six division, who lives in Englewood, Colo., characterizes Salmon as “the lowest yellow-backed cat whom Secretary of War Baker has honored by giving him freedom and good American cash.”

CONFESSES TO $3,000,000 THEFT

Negro From Akron, O., Arrested at Chicago, Admits Mail Robbery at Omaha.

9 MEN AND WOMEN IN GANG

Says He Was Robber Who Looted Mail Sack at Kokomo, Ind., and Escaped With $70,000—Engaged in Other Hold-Ups.

Chicago, Dec. 16.—Edward Valentine, 30 years old, of Akron, O., confessed at the detective bureau to being one of the bandits who engineered the $3,000,000 Omaha mail robbery last month.

He is declared to be the mail robber who looted a mail sack at Kokomo, Ind., last Friday, escaping with between $50,000 and $75,000 in money orders and negotiable checks. Part of the loot was found in his rooms, according to the police.

Valentine is also believed to have engaged in mail robberies in Sycamore and West Chicago, Ill., and St. Louis, Mo.

Woman Also Held.

Valentine was arrested in the home of friends at 4521 Evans avenue. With him was a colored woman, Miss Hazel Grubbs of Indianapolis, who is being held at Detention home No. 3.

High lights of Valentine's confession were:

That there were six white men, one white woman and three negroes in the bandit gang that executed the robbery.

That a William McDougall, formerly a wealthy business man of Des Moines, Ia., was their leader.

That he rode into Omaha on the robbed train and walked away unnoticed and unquestioned.

Woman Picked Up Bags.

According to Valentine's confession, he was in Cleveland several days before the robbery and there met a number of acquaintances, who invited him to join them in looting the mail train.

Valentine accepted, he said, and they went to Des Moines, where the whole thing was planned. Valentine said that he was one of the men who were aboard the train.

The woman, who Valentine named as “Thornton's sweetheart,” was with a number of men in an automobile which drove parallel with the C. B. & Q. tracks, picked up the mail bags as fast as their confederates tossed them from the moving train.

Says Others “Squealed.”

“After the robbery I went into the regular coaches and sat down,” Valentine averred. “When we pulled into Omaha I got off. Nobody bothered me.”

“We all met in Des Moines and divided up the stuff. There was $800,000 in cash. Then we all scattered.”

“I understand that Brooks and Morris and the woman were arrested and sent to the pen.” I suppose that's how you got me—they squealed.”

The raid on the Evans avenue house was the result of a “tip-off” given to the detective bureau Monday.

Boy Tells of Other Thefts.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Dec. 16.—Fred Offenbarger, 19, who was sentenced last week to 18 years at the federal prison at Leavenworth for being the “brains” of the great $5,000,000 mail robbery, has been identified as the leader in several criminal escapades.

Thousands of dollars worth of loot from box cars was found at the Poffenbacher home.

His mother complained that he often came home drunk and whipped her.

NO WORD OF LOST BALLOON

United States Naval Aircraft Reportedly Have Crashed Into Fork Mountain.

New York, Dec. 16.—The fate of the naval balloon which left Rockaway point for Canada on Monday afternoon with three passengers and which was reported to have crashed into the side of Fork mountain, near Wells, N. Y., is still uncertain. Officials of the Rockaway naval air station are without word from the crew, and had received no homing pigeons which were taken in the balloon. The crew, experienced aerial navigators, consisted of Lieut. Walter Hinton, a member of the crew of the NC-4 during its transatlantic flight; Lieut. Stephen A. Ferrell and Lieut. A. L. Kloor.

“The Bible says, ‘Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.’ The question occurs to me, what is Baker planning on doing to need the support of Ben Salmon? Salmon's business which is detaining him in Washington had best last for some time. I shall add to the statement of an unknown man that Ben Salmon had better not show around Denver or the ex-service men are going to make his life miserable.”

INDIANA CLUB BOYS AND GIRLS HAVE PRODUCTS WORTH $441,867.00

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 16.—The 21,349 boys and girls in Indiana, who were members of agricultural clubs in the state during the past year, produced products worth upwards of a half million dollars, $441,867 to be exact, and earned a profit of $218,411, the annual report of Z. M. Smith, state club leader, and supervisor of Agriculture Education shows. Of the 26,869 youngsters enrolled at the beginning of the season, just 80 per cent, or well above 21,000 carried their work through the summer on the high scale set by Indiana club leaders, and then made a suitable report. Practically every county in the state was represented the past year with one or more clubs, a total of 76 having been organized.

Gardening, as usual, was the most popular, with 224 clubs and 19,894 youngsters enrolled. The youthful gardeners earned a profit of nearly $97,000, outstripping their nearest competitors, the corn clubs, by just $75,000. However, there were but 967 corn club members enrolled. Sewing attracted 1,012 girls and baking only 156. The pie clubs drew 1,531 boys and girls, many of whom made enviable records.

During the year there were 33 potato clubs with an enrollment of 231. This was a new form of club work started this year which proved highly popular. The beef calf club was the only one which did not show a profit for the owners, due to the big slump in beef calf and cattle prices.

“We are not trying to get the biggest enrollment of any state,” said Mr. Smith, “but we are trying to get a larger percentage to complete their projects. We have succeeded and last year when only 70 per cent finished up, this year we had 80 per cent or four in every five to carry their work straight through. This record is considerably above that of any other state.”

Camilla Mansfield of Monnett school went to Milroy today to spend Christmas. Ruth Bates, also of Monnett school, is spending her vacation with her parents at Chicago.
