Ford and Fordson Service

Are Ford Agents justified in making such a point of Ford Service? Do customers of the Ford Motor Company find this service to be of real value to them in the operation of their Ford Cars, Trucks, and FORDSON Tractors?

Will it pay you as a car, truck or tractor prospect to base your purchase of any of these necessities on the service the factory and local dealer will give?

These are questions that are vital to the prospective purchaser. Mr. Jay Miller of Mt. Airy, Ind., has the following to say in regard to Ford policies in the matter of Tractor Service:

"I have always received the promptest service from the Ford Agents, and have found that they live up to all their promises. My tractor has given me practically no trouble with the exception of one defective transmission bearing which the Agents replaced free of charge, my machine not being idle half a day. I would not buy any machine not backed by service equal to Ford Service."

Efficiency at the Throttle

THE automobilist appreciates good gasoline most when he steps on the throttle and notes the efficiency in performance of his engine—blueprint efficiency alone means little to him.

Knowing this, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has devoted much of its energy to the development of a motor gasoline, which not only stands the grueling test of research laboratories, but which has proved its efficiency in thousands of cars operated under every-day road and weather conditions.

The Company has studied the needs of the motorist at first hand, and has developed Red Crown, its motor gasoline, to a point where it meets exactly the needs of the automobile engine operating under conditions obtaining in the Middle West.

The efficiency of Red Crown symbolizes the spirit which animates the Company as a whole in its endeavor to render an intelligent, efficient service to the public generally.

The tremendous increase in the number of automobiles and trucks from 1,253,000 in 1914 to 7,459,507 in August, 1920, has made more apparent than ever the absolute necessity of a comprehensive, dependable system of distribution.

The development of such a system has changed from something merely desirable to something vitally necessary. The best gasoline in the world is useless if you cannot get it when you want it.

Every step from refining to final delivery is of such importance to the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) that its interest never abates until its gasoline is delivering maximum motor mileage; until its lubricating oils are helping do the work of the world to the satisfaction of the ultimate consumer.

The greatly increased yield of gasoline which this Company has been able to recover from the crude obtainable has been accomplished without sacrifice of quality.

Red Crown and Polarine performance are the best proofs of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) service.
