FOUGHT OVER LOCAL OPTION

PLASTERERS GET INTO DISCUSSION IN ROACHDALE WHICH RESULTS IN ONE OF THEM GETTING BADLY SLASHED WITH A KNIFE IN THE HANDS OF THE OTHER — EDWARD BARR IN DANGEROUS CONDITION.

VICTIM IS TAKEN TO BRAZIL

Absolum Young Who Used the Knife Is Arrested and Taken Before the Grand Jury—Men Were Business Partners and Had Gone to Roachdale to do a Job of Work—Trouble Started in a Saloon.

In a fight caused by a dispute over the merits of the county local option law at Roachdale yesterday afternoon, Absolum Young stabbed and probably fatally injured his business partner Edward Barr. Both men live in Brazil. The fight occurred in a house just outside of Roachdale where the men had gone to do a plastering job.

Barr was badly cut in five places. One of the cuts severed a rib and penetrated his stomach. Another slash across his back is nearly seven inches long. The men belong to the firm of Young, Barr and Griffin, plasterers, of Brazil. Lately the men secured a contract for work in Roachdale and Mr. Young and Mr. Barr went to that town to look after the job. Ben Hilburn, of this city, was engaged to assist them.

Immediately after the cutting Barr was given medical attention.

Later he was brought here from Roachdale and then taken to his home in Brazil by Interurban. His physicians there say he is in a critical condition. Young was arrested and brought to Greencastle and locked up.

Ben Hilburn tells the following story of the affair. He says that the men were opposite in political beliefs. One is a Democrat and the other a Republican. Yesterday at noon the men went to a saloon in Roachdale and an argument regarding the local option law was indulged in. The men continued their argument on the way to their work from the saloon and on the way out Young drew a knife.

Hilburn, who was with the men, persuaded Young to put the weapon back in his pocket and trouble was averted at that time. After the men reached the house, however, the argument was again taken up and Young again drew his knife. When Young drew the knife Barr picked up some rocks and threw one at Young. Then Young began to slash. The rock thrown by Barr struck Young in the head and cut quite a gash.

This morning Young was taken before the Grand Jury and it is probable that the jury will indict him for assault with intent to kill.

CITY'S SUIT ON TO-MORROW

Trial of the Case in Which E. B. Lynch Asks Damages of $1,000 And a Permanent Injunction Preventing the Drainage of Sewage Upon His Lands Comes up.

FORTY WITNESSES ARE SUMMONED

Forty witnesses, eleven for the city and twenty-nine for E. B. Lynch have been summoned to appear at court tomorrow. The suit is the case in which E. B. Lynch asks $1,000 and a permanent injunction to prevent the city from draining sewage upon his lands.

The case has aroused unusual interest and upon its outcome probably depends several other cases of similar nature. Mrs. R. L. Higert, it is said, will file a suit against the city if Mr. Lynch is successful in his.

CIRCUIT COURT NOTES

A divorce was granted to Annie Seward who had asked for a decree of separation from her husband, Hollock Seward. The decree was given on the ground of habitual drunkenness and failure to provide. The custody of the thirteen-year old child goes to the plaintiff.

Jury Gives Damages Against the Big Four in Case Venued Here From Hendricks County—Verdict Given This Morning.

RAILROAD HAD CLOSED HIGHWAY

The case of George W. Christy against the Big Four Railroad was ended this morning when the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff and awarded him $1,150 damages. The case is one venued here from Hendricks County. Mr. Christy claimed damages because the Big Four Company had closed a road in Hadley upon which the residence property of the plaintiff fronted. The plaintiff alleged that this road had been open for a period of thirty years and that the company had no right to close it, and that he was damaged by the act of the company.

The jury Tuesday night returned a verdict that was not returned until yesterday morning, when the verdict was given as above. This is the first of a half dozen suits venued here from Hendricks, all growing out of the recent construction work on the Big Four line.

DEATH OF DEPAUW ALUMNUS

The sudden death of Mr. Augustus D. Lynch formerly of this city, occurred early yesterday morning at Washington, D. C., where he had resided for the last twenty years. He was born in this state, being the son of the Rev. Thomas H. Lynch, teacher and preacher in the Methodist church. His mother was Sarah Davis Lynch, who shared the life of her husband in their church and educational work.

After graduating at Asbury (DePauw) University, Mr. Lynch became president of the Brookville College. He was principal of the Shelbyville, (Ind.), public schools and then went into the banking business there.

Subsequently he was appointed a national bank examiner, when he removed to Indianapolis. After spending several years in that work he became the president of the old First National Bank of this city, and was highly regarded as a man of character in financial, church and social circles. His knowledge of national banking affairs led finally to his appointment as receiver of several large national banks that had failed, and from that work he was later called to Washington by the controller of the currency to take the supervision of all the national bank receiverships of that office. This employment continued until recently.

SLIGHT BLAZE NEAR NOON

Fire Starts in the Roof of C. C. Gillen's Residence on Bloomington Street—Spark From Burning Trash Caused Conflagration.

LOSS IS ONLY A FEW DOLLARS

A slight blaze at the C. C. Gillen property on Bloomington Street this morning at near noon called out the fire department. The fire was started from a spark from burning trash. The flames were quickly extinguished. A small hole was burned in the roof.

The house formerly was the Tobe Tompkins property but was recently purchased by Mr. Gillen.

G. A. R. AND W. R. C. ATTENTION!

The refreshments will be served by the W. R. C. in the corridor of the G. A. R. Hall at the Court House.

The exercises will be held in the main Assembly Room of the Court House.

Two rooms reserved at the Belnap House for the visiting ladies and Comrades.

Transportation will be provided from railroad station for the visiting ladies, and also for such comrades as may not be able to march.

As our guests from Indianapolis will not arrive until about 10:30 a. m. the forenoon exercises will not begin until about that hour.

II. The following committees have been appointed:

Five comrades of the Post and three ladies of the W. R. C. as a Reception Committee.

Three comrades as a committee on Decorations.

Two comrades as a Committee on Five and Drum.

The Reception Committee will meet at Court House steps at 7:30 a. m. Thursday to receive at the Monon station, the Bainbridge Post at 8 o'clock.

III. The entire Post will assemble at the Court House steps promptly at 8:45 a. m. Thursday to escort the Cloverdale Post from the Monon station to the Court House upon the arrival of the train at 9:32 a. m.

The comrades of the Greencastle Post are requested to wear the large Grand Army Badge.

Let every Comrade of our Post, who is physically able, turn out and meet with us on this patriotic occasion.

Comrades, let us "take a day off" from office, shop and field, and do everything possible to make next Thursday a day long to be remembered by the Grand Army Posts of Putnam County and the Woman's Relief Corps.

These ladies are nobly doing their full part; and comrades, let us follow their splendid example with full ranks and untiring zeal in the good cause, and thus strengthen the bonds that bind us close together in sacred memories and patriotic work.

IV. It is requested by the G. A. R. Post and the W. R. C. that on Thursday the 8th instant business houses and offices on the square and citizens living in that vicinity and on the line of march from Monon station display flags and bunting as a welcome to the visiting Grand Army Posts.

By order of Commander Lee, (Signed) W. B. Vestal, Adjut. 2t

DON'T AGREE WITH CORWIN

Merrill Moores, of Indianapolis, Views Elections of County Council From Another Point.

NOT ELECTED IN NOVEMBER

Confusion having arisen in some parts of the state over a conflict in the law relating to the election of township advisory boards, and the committee having been besieged with inquiries, Merrill W. Moores of Indianapolis, has submitted an opinion to the Republican state committee in which he holds that advisory boards are not to be elected at the coming election. Judge Macy of Winchester and B. F. Corwin, an attorney of Greencastle, had held that the advisory boards should be elected this fall. Mr. Moores takes a different view and says no. He says:

"The statutes are quite ambiguous and the question was submitted to Attorney General Miller in 1906, and he decided that inasmuch as previous attorney generals had held that the general election for township officers was at the state elections, and that as the change of the time for electing trustees and assessors was only to provide a special election for that purpose, no township elections for other officers than those of trustees and assessors should be held between the quadrennial elections for township officers, especially as the terms of township trustees elected after the first election were for four years from 1902 and every four years thereafter."

CHAMPION CHICKEN RAISER

Putnam County Man Hatches 290 Chickens from 297 Eggs in an Incubator and is Given Prize by the Company Over Competitors From 12 States.

J. E. MATHEWS IS THE MAN

J. E. Mathews of Reelsville is sure a chicken raiser. Mr. Mathew's record is hatching 290 chickens from 297 eggs. The eggs were set in an incubator.

The company which makes the incubator recently offered a prize to the man who hatched the greatest per cent of the eggs set by him in one of their incubators. Mr. Mathews, of course, entered the contest and was awarded the prize, which is a new incubator, valued at $20. There were contestants from twelve states entered in the contest and Mr. Mathews beat them all. The eggs from which the remarkable hatch was made were of Brown Leghorn variety.

ARRANGE FOR THE CONTEST

J. Raymond Schmidt, president of the Prohibition Association, was at Indianapolis recently calling on a number of prominent men in regard to a prize for the coming temperance oratorical contest. Hon. W. J. Beckett, of Indianapolis, an alumnus of DePauw, consented to give a cash prize of $25.00 to the winner of the local prohibition contest.

These contests have already been of much general interest and the Beckett prize is expected to make the competition keener and larger. The contest will occur about the third week in January and any underclassman is eligible. The field of subjects is large, any theme is permissible provided it treats of some phase of the liquor problem.

Already a number of young men have expressed their intentions of entering this contest, and this year's oratorical is expected to be the best ever held.

INSPECT THE WATER WORKS

Party of Eight Rockville Business Men in Greencastle to Investigate the System—Are Planning a Water Works System for Their Home Town.

THREE OTHER TOWNS VISITED

An automobile party of eight arrived here from Rockville this morning to inspect the water works plant. The party consisted of two large touring cars and was made up of Tad Moore, Wallace Brown, E. Lansing, Dick Ott, Charley Brattin, Sam Spencer, Frank Nichols and Fred Calvert.

Rockville soon will build a water works system and the gentlemen came here to look at our system with the view of getting all the good ideas they could. The party arrived here at 10 o'clock.

After a short stop here during which they saw Superintendent French and talked with him regarding the system, they left for Brazil. From Brazil they will go to Terre Haute and Clinton. The party expected to be back in Rockville by night.

FRUIT SHOW AT PURDUE

Arrangements have been completed for the Second Annual Fruit Show to be held at Purdue University, during the week of the Farmers' Short Course, January 11 to 16, 1909. Great interest was shown by the fruit growers of the state in the First Annual Show held last year. The exhibition this winter will be held under the joint auspices of the Indiana Horticultural Society and the Horticultural Department of the University. It is planned to make the fruit show bigger and better than ever. The Society is providing generous premium list—over $300 in cash prizes being already assured. Everyone interested in the growing of fruit is urged to enter this contest, practically the only condition being that all fruit shown must be grown by the exhibitor. For premium lists and further information apply to C. G. Woodbury, Experiment Station, Lafayette, Ind.

The Star and Democrat has been authorized by State Committee to receive contributions for the campaign. All money received will be forwarded to the Democratic State Committee, to be used in securing and distributing political literature, paying the expenses of speakers and paying organization. Contributions of $1.00 and upward may be left at this office. We urge prompt and liberal action. The names of contributors, and the amount given will be forwarded to the State Committee, which will mail a receipt to each person signed by the chairman.

INCONSISTENCY.

The Republican press and Republican speakers, in their campaign against Bryan are resorting to the most inconsistent statements. As an illustration, take the two statements that are now the stock in trade of the Republican wind-jammer: first, that Bryan ought not to be elected because of the effect on business, and that it is useless to elect him because he can not carry out the reform promised. The latter statement they claim is true because there will be a majority of the United States Senate Republican in spite of what may happen in the November elections, and this majority will not allow the Democratic reforms to become laws. If it is true that none of these proposed reforms can become laws through the opposition of the Republican members of the senate, how, then, can Bryan be dangerous to the country? He is admitted to be perfectly honest, on the side of the people, of high ideals, wherefore, then dangerous, when there is a Republican senate to guard against the proposed reforms. On the other hand, why not place in the chair a man who will watch from the executive point of view the actions of the "interests" that have heretofore contributed to Republican success, who will watch the millionaire senators at their work, and will report to the people what he sees. He will be a valuable man there, and Republican logic is very inconsistent.

The Martinsville Reporter still insists that the Democrats will repeal the county local option law. To Mr. Watson and the editors of many Republican papers a promise seems to mean nothing. Perhaps it is memory of the many broken pledges of this particular Republican candidate for governor that makes them thus. The Democratic candidate for the executive chair says he will take no action to repeal the law. The same thing has been definitely stated by all the temperance Democrats. The law will be given a chance. If it fails it must go. The Reporter sees political advantage in repealing the law, and knowing that is what Mr. Watson would do, perhaps may do, and judging others honesty by Mr. Watson's, and perhaps its own, declares that what the Democrats say is deliberately untrue. In the light of his record, any man's word is, at least, as good as Mr. Watson's, and entitled to as much credence, till proof other than possibilities based on nothing is brought forward.

It appears from the reports of the Watson meeting at Brazil that this flashy orator contradicted himself no less than a half dozen times on issues of importance. Either he was quite incapable of seeing the inconsistency himself, or he believed that his audience could not see it. One position is a reflection on his own intelligence, the other an insult to the intelligence of his hearers.

DO THE PEOPLE RULE?

All the Recent Publications Convince the Voters that Trusts Control Legislation.

After all the excitement over the publication of the Standard Oil letters, showing that trusts control legislation, has reached the stage where the voters sift the wheat from the chaff of sensational publications, what will be the logical conclusion in the minds of the voters? It will be:

1.—That the people do not rule because the national law-makers legislate to suit the trusts. More trusts exist today than ever, the people suffer more from them, and they practice more extortion.
 2.—That the party in power is the party through which the trusts rule. The Republican party is now in power. It writes all the national laws. In a speech in the last Congress, Mr. Sherman (candidate for Vice-President), declared that the Republican party assumed all responsibility for everything that has been done and for what has not been done. That is right. The trusts write the tariff laws passed by Republican votes. If the magnates are not punished criminally, it is because Republican officials fail in their duties. For eleven years the Democrats have had no power to frame Federal laws or to execute a Federal statute. If everything in America is all right as to Federal laws for eleven years, the Republican party deserves the credit. If "evils have crept in" the Republicans are responsible. The only hope for a change lies in the election of Bryan.

Suppose some individual Democrat has been employed by a trust. He could not get a law passed, he could not get "an immunity bath," he could do nothing effectively for the trusts unless a majority of the Republican Congressmen favored the trust measures. The Republican orators can not escape responsibility by trying to pick some Democrat who has been employed by a trust. Recent disclosures prove that the people do not rule, but that the trusts owe their existence and fatness to Republican laws and Republican officials.

MR. KERN'S STRONG CAMPAIGN.

Chairman Lloyd of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, on returning to headquarters from a trip to the East, said:

"Vice Presidential Candidate Kern made a number of effective speeches in the East. In New York and Maryland the Democrats whom I saw expressed themselves as highly pleased with Mr. Kern's speaking tour. They said his visit did the party good."

What John W. Kern says in his speeches always does the party good. Wherever he has spoken in the present campaign his force and ability have attracted instantaneous attention. The party was exceedingly fortunate in his nomination, a fact which all Indiana knew from the beginning, and which the whole country now freely admits.

THE GREAT TAFT-ADE "BARBECUE."

George Ade of Newton county, Indiana, is a professional joke-maker, but it was not suspected that he would work off such a funny trick as his great Taft "barbecue" turned out to be. Instead of a free feast of roasted beeves and trimmings, there were "full dinner pails" containing a lunch for which 25 cents was charged. Those who were thoughtful enough to bring the price got something to eat. The rest were compelled to fill up on Mr. Taft's speech. And this was far from satisfactory.

Mr. Taft talked about a larger navy, a stronger army and coast defenses, something in which they had little interest, while he ignored the live issues of tariff revision, injunctions, guarantee of bank deposits, publicity of campaign funds, and other questions about which they desired to hear his views. Surely Mr. Ade maintained his reputation as one of the greatest humorists of the day.

HOW THEY "FRY"

THE CORPORATIONS.

As soon as George R. Sheldon, the notorious trustee of New York, was chosen by Mr. Taft as treasurer of his campaign fund at the request of Cromwell, the representative of Harriman and Standard Oil, he declared in an interview that the trust question was a mere "bugaboo." Later it was given out that checks received by him from corporations had been returned with the suggestion that such checks were prohibited by law and that the contributions should be sent in by "individuals" interested in the corporations. It is said that this was done, the law having been "got around" in this way.

And now the fact has been disclosed that the Republican national committee is ignoring the federal statute making it unlawful for corporations to give money for campaign purposes. A letter addressed to a Chicago corporation urgently appealing for funds was issued Aug. 21 from Republican national headquarters on stationery of the Republican national committee. This letter was signed by Fred W. Upham, assistant treasurer of the Republican committee. At the top of this stationery was the name of Frank H. Hitchcock, the Republican national chairman, and the names of all of the officers of the committee, of which he is the directing head. For fear the appeal for corporation aid might be overlooked Upham enclosed in his letter a self-addressed envelope in large print, which directed that the return of the sinews of war be made to him at the headquarters of the Republican national committee, 234 Michigan avenue, Harvester Building, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Upham's fat-frying letter contained the following significant lines: "All the funds, therefore, for the campaign must be supplied by individuals. You are requested to bring this matter to the attention of your business associates and ask each to send a check."

Mr. Upham's motto seems to be: "Get it legally if you can—but get it." Roosevelt and Taft approve the Republican plan not to make contributions public until after the election. The least that can be said about the whole thing is that it is a dirty piece of business.

BILLY AND UNTRUTHFUL ORGAN.

The Indianapolis Star (Republican state organ) says:

In an address at Terre Haute Marshall criticised the ministers of Indiana for trying to bring about the enactment of a county local option law. He accused them of "beating a bass drum" for the Republicans. At Washington, Bedford and other places Marshall repeated the charges against the ministers.

The Indianapolis Star is being operated by a receiver appointed by the United States court. Under these circumstances it might be expected to tell the truth about the public utterances of so honorable and high-minded a man as Thomas R. Marshall. But a small matter like the truth doesn't bother the Star. It knew when it printed the above paragraph that it was false. But having started the lie the Republican organ thinks it must stick to it. Mr. Marshall never at any time, or anywhere, "criticized the ministers" for being for a "county local option law." What he did was to criticize the Republican machine for advising county chairmen to "organize the preachers" into Republican campaign adjuncts—a suggestion which Mr. Marshall held to be an insult to the ministry. And Mr. Marshall was absolutely right, and the non-partisan ministers of the state have so declared.

TAFT AFRAID TO TRUST

THE PEOPLE.

President Roosevelt declared in a public letter to Mr. Bryan that he opposes the publication of campaign contributions before the election because the people might give the sources of the contributions an undue importance in casting their votes—in other words, that they might be influenced against a man who was being financially supported by the trusts and other mercenary and suspicious interests.

This was an amazing position for Mr. Roosevelt to take, but when Roosevelt had given his cue, Taft took the same ground and undertook to fortify himself by the statement that there is no law in either Europe or America compelling the publication of contributions and expenditures before the election.

Mr. Taft ought to know that when a thing is right it should be done, whether there is a law compelling it or not. The trouble with Mr. Taft and his campaign managers is that they do not dare publish the names of the men who are furnishing them with money. They are determined that the people shall not know who are making the fight against them.

STANDARD OIL AND TAFT.

Charles Nagel, who is in charge of the Chicago headquarters of the Republican national committee, is an attorney of record for the Standard Oil company. In addition to having charge of the Western headquarters and being only second in command to Mr. Hitchcock, Mr. Nagel is the Missouri member of the Republican national committee.

Several years ago Mr. Nagel was appointed by the Roosevelt administration a special attorney in certain Indian land cases involving oil and other natural resources, and drew a big fee from the government for his services. He was thus in a position to look after and protect the interests of his client, the Standard Oil company. Nagel has openly and privately defended all of the worst practices of the Standard Oil company and opposed every step taken by the Missouri authorities to make that insolent monopoly obey the law.

Senator Foraker was read out of the Republican party because he was once an attorney for the Standard Oil company. The question naturally arises, what will the president do to Mr. Nagel, who is still an attorney for the Standard Oil company and who is the Western manager of the Republican campaign.

AMAZING BLUNDER OF TAFT.

In a speech at Lincoln, Neb., on Sept. 30th, Mr. Taft, the candidate of the officeholders' trust (and other trusts) for president, said this:

"The chief objection to the publication of contributions before the election is that it makes certain that in the heat of the controversy the motives of those who contribute to pay the legitimate expenses of the campaign will be misconstrued, perverted and misrepresented. The candidates in whose behalf the contributions are made will be charged in a most unfair way as being completely under the control of those who make the contributions."

They will not be "charged in a most unfair way" if the contributions come from proper sources. The Democrats are not afraid of such a charge. They are going to make their contributions public before the election, but as all of their contributions will come from the people it will not hurt Mr. Bryan to be charged with being "under the control of those who make the contributions." Mr. Taft admits that he dare not show to the people who it is that is paying the expenses of his campaign.

DEMOCRATIC NEWS

Ohio For Bryan.

The result of the first day's registration in Ohio insures a Democratic victory in the Buckeye state on November 3.

In Cincinnati, the home of William H. Taft, 5,000 less voters registered than on the same day four years ago, while in Cleveland there was a falling off of 10,000.

What does this condition mean? Stop and look at the situation for a moment.

There is no split or factional discord among Ohio Democrats. Under the leadership of Judson Harmon the Democracy of Ohio is united as never before in the history of the state. It will present a solid front to the enemy on election day, and the Democrats who do not go to the polls will be only those whom imperative necessity calls elsewhere. Therefore, this falling off in registration cannot be laid at the doors of the Democrats.

But how about the other fellows. Foraker is outside the breastworks and Taft is neither asking nor expecting any help from him. Cox, who permitted Taft to have the vote of his own state at the Chicago convention in return for a promise of federal patronage, still remembers that it was not very long ago when Taft said that he was not fit for the companionship of decent men, and doubtless is not bursting any buttons in getting out the Republican vote.

Ohio for Bryan! It can mean nothing else. New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Connecticut, Maryland, perhaps without a single exception, are surer than Ohio. The election of William J. Bryan to the presidency of the United States is as much a certainty as if the votes were in and the result announced.

Come back, O, smooth-worm, thread-bare phrase, we need thee in this hour, "it's going to be a landslide."—Laporte Argus-Bulletin.

Taft and the Innocent Farmer.

Beet sugar, he said, was a trust-made article. The Democrats proposed to put all such articles on the free list, just to punish the trusts. This would, he maintained, not only punish the trusts, but would also punish many innocent farmers and producers as well.—(From a report of Mr. Taft's speech at Denver.)

In the first place the Democratic party advocates a tariff for revenue as a sound economic policy, and not as a spite measure to even scores with the Beet Sugar Trust or any other trust.

Mr. Taft and the writers of his platform favor a high protective tariff as a policy profitable politically. That they regard it as not entirely defensible upon other ground is plainly evident from the fact that for many years they have "trimmed" during campaigns and stood pat after elections. But since Mr. Taft has mentioned the innocent farmer in a fatherly way, let us see just what his attitude toward the agriculturist really is.

In the Philippines there are innocent farmers whose chief product is sugar and tobacco. Yet Mr. Taft, who has thrilled audiences in many lands by his eloquent protestations of regard for the little brown brother, accepted without question a platform in which the Republican machine had inserted a clause favoring the policy of collecting an import tax upon all sugar and tobacco shipped from the Philippines to the United States—a tax sufficiently large to guarantee a reasonable profit to the Sugar Trust and the Tobacco Trust. This indicates the depth and sincerity of President Roosevelt's candidate's regard for the innocent farmer as compared to his tender affections for the trusts that are contributing such sums to the Republican campaign fund that the President and the President's candidate are forced to admit that the publication of a list of contributions would embarrass and possibly defeat the Republican party in November.—Courier-Journal.

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weakness and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening purifying known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful, or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills. You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy or known composition, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over forty years ago, much imitated but never equalled. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., a veteran of the civil war, who lost a foot at Gettysburg, says: "The good Electric Bitters have done for me more than five hundred dollars to me. I spent much money doctoring for a bad case of stomach trouble, to little purpose. I then tried Electric Bitters, and they cured me. I now take them as a tonic, and they keep me strong and well." 50c at the Owl Drug Store.

HOW A WOMAN GOT AN OFFICE.

(Original.)
Katherine Gile was an up to date young woman. Her sex had come to occupy many positions formerly filled by men, but there was one of which she considered women did not get their share. The political offices were still held almost exclusively by men.
Katherine was interested in the matter not because she relished a struggle with the men for woman's rights, but because she wanted an office. She proposed to herself a short cut to equalize her chances with them. She would seek an office not as a woman, but as a man.

Not long after Katherine Gile came to this decision a young man, Truby Middlebrook, of rather feminine appearance, settled in the town of Starkville and soon secured a position as stenographer with Francis Merriam, grain shipper. Middlebrook's employer told him that he had had several women stenographers, but didn't want any more of them. He considered them an empty headed lot, excitable, hysterical—indeed, everything ending
with "al," not excepting diabolical.
But he desired Middlebrook to be careful not to mention his opinion of the sex, for he had long been striving to get the nomination for mayor, and it wouldn't be policy for him to be known as a woman hater.

Middlebrook remained in Merriam's employ two years before the ambition of his employer was attained. Merriam was nominated, and he was so good a man that the opposition hesi-tated about putting up a candidate of its own. Indeed, Merriam was congratulating himself on the prospect of having no opposition whatever, when he saw a notice one morning in his newspaper that astonished him. It was no less than an announcement of his stenographer, Truby Middlebrook, that he would be a candidate for mayor at the coming election.

Now, there had been the best of feeling between the two men. Merriam had raised Middlebrook's salary several times and had supposed that the stenographer was devoted to him.

"Mr. Middlebrook," said Merriam, "I have seen your notice. You have a perfect right to run for office against me, but—well, your action is just like a thousand things your predecessors have done who were—women.
That's all."

Mr. Middlebrook withdrew without a word, and what filled the measure of his employer's astonishment was that he thought he saw a tear in his stenographer's eye.

There was another surprise in store for Mr. Merriam. A few days before the election his political manager came to him to say that Middlebrook, who had been gaining in favor ever since the announcement of his candidacy, would surely be elected. Merriam was dumfounded. He asked his manager
what was the secret of Middlebrook's strength and was informed that he had some mysterious influence over the women which was turned to account
in gaining the votes of the men.

From this announcement to the day before the election the official intercourse between Merriam and his stenographer was extremely embarrassing for both, though especially so for the latter. Merriam had accepted the situation. He was still puzzled at his employee interposing himself between him and the office he coveted, but he was above lifting a finger to defeat that employee's intention. The evening before the election Middlebrook took his chief's dictation, as usual, and was about to retire when he turned, evidently shaken by considerable
emotion, and said:

"Mr. Merriam, I've been a mean, wicked thing. You've been just too lovely to me for anything, and in return I've attempted to deprive you of what you so earnestly desire and are so much better fitted for than I."

The young man took out his handkerchief and wiped tears which were flowing from his eyes.

"What in thunder does this mean?"
exclaimed Merriam. "You talk and act
for all the world like one of those confounded women."

"I am a woman. My name is Katherine Gile. I wanted an office and disguised myself as a man to get one. I wish—I wish I was at the bottom of the sea."

She turned away in an emotional storm. Merriam sat gazing at her for a time; then, with a twinkle in his eye,
he replied to her last remark.

"You would there find Mr. McGinty, and you would have to continue in man's clothes to beat him at his legiti-mate work—the work of a fisherman."

"I didn't intend," said the girl, her back still turned toward her employer and political opponent, "to run against
you. I had confidantes who managed for me. They did it."

"It wasn't a bit nice of them," replied Mr. Merriam, with a trace of irony in his voice.

"No; I don't want to be mayor. I'm going to announce my withdrawal."

"I couldn't permit that. My manager tells me you are sure to win."

"That's all the more reason why I should withdraw."

"You shall do no such thing."

This brought back a spark of manhood to Katherine.

"Why?" she asked, turning.

"Why? That's like a woman. Puts herself in a man's power and then asks him why he exercises it. You forget you have revealed your secret."

The end of the matter was that Truby Middlebrook withdrew at the last moment, and Katherine Gile married the mayor. The mayoress got the office she most desired.

FACULTY DISCUSSES RULES VARSITY AT WORK AGAIN

ALL COLLEGE REPRESENTA-TIVES MUST BE UP IN STUDIES.

ALL BRANCHES ARE INCLUDED

At the regular meeting of the De-Pauw faculty yesterday afternoon, the rules concerning the eligibility of all students partaking in student enterprises were vigorously discussed.
After a careful consideration of the rules as they stand it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of Dr.
Post who will see that the restrictions, which at present are placed upon the athletes of the school, will apply to all who enter any line of college activity. According to a statement made last evening, the restrictions will not be changed in their text but simply widened in scope so as to embrace all who represent the school. By this act it will be necessary for all members of the glee club, the debating team and the Daily staff to meet the same obligations which are conformed to by the football men. That this measure will prove to be a wise one and that its influence will be healthful for the student body was the unanimous opinion of the faculty. The text of the rules as published in the handbook reads as follows:

The eligibility of students to represent the University in any public way, namely in athletic contests,
public speaking contests, dramatics,
glee club concerts, student's publications, etc., shall be determined by the following conditions: A student must be registered for full work as determined by the assignment of study; at the time of such public contest, concert, etc., a student must not be deficient in any course in which he is registered, and in the preceding term he must have made a passing grade in at least two-thirds of his hours.

DEBATE PROSPECTS BRIGHT

MANY TANTS WILL BE ONORS IN THE ARIES.

THE WILL BE WARM

The prospects for debate at De-Pauw are bright. There are many men in the Freshman class wearing medals they won as high school debaters and these are all intending to take part in the Freshman contest.

In the upper classes there are many old men who intend to try out for the college team. Lockwood, Kirkpatrick and Carpenter have each signified their intention of entering the contest. Each of these are experienced debaters.

The Junior class has many strong debaters. The men who were on last year's Sophomore team will not be out for debate this year, but there are a number of other men who intend entering the contest.

Troxell, Hartsock and Moore are again in the field for debate honors.
The prospect is that if these men represent the Sophomore class this year they must win out over some eight or ten opponents.

Prof. Gough thinks the prospect for a strong college team good. With the many old men trying for places
and the new material in the contest
makes a strong college team a certainty.

TO ORGANIZE CLUB

Democrats Will Meet Friday Afternoon in Plato Hall.

Prof. Johnson of Indiana University, state organizer of college clubs for the Democratic party has been corresponding with Prof.
Barnes, concerning the organization of a Democratic Club here. As a result all students of the Democratic faith, whether voters or not, are asked to meet in Plato Hall at 1 o'- clock Friday afternoon, when an organization will be effected.

THE MEN ARE PUT THROUGH STIFF PRACTICE AFTER A DAY'S REST.

WHISLER IS OUT OF LINE-UP

After a full day's rest on Monday,
Coach Brown yesterday began stiff scrimmage work again with all the regulars on hand except Whisler who will be out of the game only a few days. After last Saturday's showing some changes may occur in the lineup before the next game on the twentieth. LeVan who has for the last two seasons played sub-center was yesterday given a workout at half behind. He did some clever running with the oval. Greenstreet took right half. Such a combination would make a remarkably heavy backfield and one that would be irresistible in line plays. Powers was also worked on the varsity lineup in yesterday's practice and Braden who has been out of the game on account of an injured shoulder was in the practice.

The varsity had no trouble in tearing through the scrubs at will although the coach had to yell continually for the team to get together.
It was offensive play where DePauw fell short in Saturday's game with Indiana and Coach Brown kept his men on the offensive during the entire practice yesterday. The team still plays with the snap of last week's practice and it is a puzzle to the gridiron enthusiasts why the team did not make a better showing against the Bloomington aggregation.
The team has two weeks before the next game and later when the varsity clashes with Purdue
should be able to put up the best fight of the season.

KNOWS LITTLE OF HELL

DR. STEPHENSON DON'T CARE TO BE INFORMED ON THE SUBJECT.

TALKS ABOUT CHRISTIANITY

"I know nothing of heaven and much less of hell, but I am free to say that I know as much about the latter as I will ever know," said Dr.
Andrew Stephenson yesterday when lecturing to his class in English Constitutional History.

He was discussing the place which Christianity has occupied in history and he declared that it would take a microscope to discover any traces of the effect which christianity had upon the Anglo-Saxons five hundred years after they had been converted.

Continuing he said: "There can be no line of demonstration in a man's life indicating the exact time at which he is converted. Conversion is the growth and acceptance of an idea which it requires years to comprehend."

When a question was asked a few minutes later by a prominent upper classman the doctor's suspicion was aroused and believing that a deliberate attempt was being made to lead him off the track, he brought his remarks to a close.

CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

"The Little Drug Shop" Now Twenty Years Old.

Walter Allen's "Little Drug Shop" yesterday celebrated its twentieth birthday. In the fall of 1888
Mr. Allen began the construction of a small drug shop and student supply store. It was composed of one room which was only about one-half of the present front room. Almost from the beginning improvements
were made until it reached its present size. During its life the little drug shop has had the patronage of hundreds of our alumni, many of whom have children who are now trading at the same old stand.

BUTLER GAME CALLED OFF

CONTEST SCHEDULED FOR NEXT SATURDAY HAS BEEN POSTPONED.

CAUSE OF ACTION NOT KNOWN

Manager Jay Carpenter states that DePauw will play no football game
next Saturday as the Butler management has cancelled the contest which was to have been pulled off between the Irvington aggregation and our team on McKean Field. With little explanation the Butler management has called off the game and it is not known whether on account of a game which that institution has scheduled for early the next week or whether the team is in too weak a condition to meet DePauw next Saturday. Butler says she is willing to postpone the game till October 24 when De-Pauw has an open date, but as the neighboring institution insists on playing the postponed contest in Indianapolis it is probable that the DePauw management will not take up the proposition as a game away from home with Butler has no attraction with the present stiff schedule to complete. If the Butler management consents to meet us on Mc-Kean Field the contest may yet occur on the 24th of this month.

It is not possible at this time of the year to secure a game on the home field for next Saturday. This will leave DePauw without a game till Tuesday, October 20, when we meet Rose Poly on McKean Field.

JAPANESE GAIN HONORS

TWO DEPAUW GRADUATES GAIN PROMINENCE IN THEIR HOME COUNTRY.

THEY ARE WELL KNOWN HERE

Word comes from the far east announcing one more step in the progress of two DePauw alumni toward lasting fame gained in service to their native country, Japan. Baron Sutemi Chinda, of the class of 1881, who has been for several years an under secretary of state in Japan,
has recently been appointed Japanese Ambassador to Berlin. While Chinda's friend and classmate Mara Sato has received additional high honors from his government. He was formerly spokesman for the Russian-Japanese Peace Commission and has since been sent as Ambassador to the Hague.

This little announcement gives but an inadequate idea of the many honors which have come to these two men. They both received master's degrees from DePauw in 1884 and it was here that they received their training for undertaking their great diplomatic labors. Both have a long and brilliant record behind them
and one as equally bright for the future.

Mr. Chinda who goes to Berlin was a classmate of Prof. Longdon, now head of the German department.

Chinda is now brother-in-law to his dear friend Sato having married Miss Sato in 1882.

MUSIC AND ART

Miss Shearer spent Sunday with friends in Terre Haute, returning here last evening.

Miss Beulah Risler of Brazil is at her work again, after a two weeks'
absence on account of sickness.

Miss Nell Albertson of Butler, Ind., has registered for work in the voice
department of the music school.

The Rev. Mr. Barnett of Delaware, Ohio, was a visitor at DePauw yesterday with his daughter, Miss Mary of the school of music.

Miss Ida Overstreet of Greencastle has resumed her work in the school of music. She is already a graduate of the college of liberal arts.

Mr. and Mrs. Lambdin of Martinsville, Ills., came over to DePauw yesterday with their daughter, Miss Ethel, to make inquiries with reference to her entrance into the School of Music.

Miss Elizabeth Overbeck of Cambridge City is spending a few days
with her sister of the art faculty.
She has with her some interesting amateur work in pottery with which she has recently been experimenting.

MEALS FOR A DAY

(Chicago Record-Herald.)

BREAKFAST

Peaches and Cream
Tomato Toast.
Fried Graham Mush with Maple Syrup.
Coffee.

LUNCHEON.

Preed Veal, Graham Bread,
Watermelon Pickle,
Grape Jelly, Ginger Wafers,
Cocoa.

DINNER.

Veal Broth With Rice or Celery.
Baked Fresh Salmon.
Browned Potatoes.
Tomato and Cucumber Salad.
Rice Snow with Jelly. Trifles.
Grape Juice.

Tomato Toast—To a quart of cooked and seasoned tomatoes add a little sweet cream and a small piece of butter. Let scald and pour over well-buttered toast.

Graham Bread—One egg, pinch of salt, two cups of sour or butter milk,
into which stir one teaspoon of soda,
three and one half cups of sifted graham flour. Very simply made, but good.

Ginger Wafers—Boil together one cup New Orleans molasses, one cup brown sugar, one cup butter, lard or "drippings." When cool add one teaspoon soda, one well-beaten egg, one tablespoon of ginger and flour to make very stiff. Roll thin and cut out with small-sized cookie cutter.
Very dainty.

Veal Broth—Use stock in which the veal was cooked for luncheon
and add rice or celery.

Rice Snow with Jelly—Steam or cook a cupful of rice in milk, add one-half teaspoonful salt, when almost done. Pile it upon a dish roughly. When cool, lay over it squares of jelly. Beat the whites of two eggs and one-third of a cup of sugar to a stiff froth and pile like snow over the rice. Serve plain or with cream sauce.

Trifles—Work one egg and a tablespoonful of sugar to as much flour as will make a stiff paste. Roll it as thin as a dollar piece and cut it into small round cakes. Drop two or three at a time into boiling lard.
When they rise to the surface and turn over they are done. Remove with skimmer and let drain.

Would Mortgage the Farm.
A farmer on Rural Route 2, Empire, Ga., W. A. Floyd by name, says:

"Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured the two worst sores I ever saw; one on my hand and one on my leg. It is worth more than its weight in gold.
I would not be without it if I had to mortgage the farm to get it." On-

When Sammy Turned Detective

By Mabel Herbert.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Raised upon a diet of Biblical literature until he had passed his eighth year, Sammy Temple took eagerly to the nickel novels when at last knowledge of their existence was communicated to him. First he liked the stories of men who sailed strange craft in the sky above, the earth below or in the waters under the earth.

Later these were as naught beside the bold detective who could arrest a band of counterfeiters single handed and who ran murderers to earth just to keep in practice for greater things.

Captain Beggs, the solitary town constable, at once became a more important figure than Ben Dwyer, who ran the single engine which constituted the motive force on the little branch line. Sammy had liked to dream of the day when he should be an engineer, too, and would have charge of the great iron steed.

He had planned to sneak past the switch at the junction some night and run down the main line clear out to California, or maybe to Mexico, or up to the goldfields of Alaska. A fellow could go anywhere on an engine like that.

But after "The Boys' Own" and the detective books the engine, tied to its iron roadbed, seemed tame. Dwyer was deposed from his pedestal, and Beggs was installed thereon, although he was only a constable, which is not at all like a real detective.

Detectives are people who tell constables when the latter have the right prisoner, and he looked forward to the day when he could show his badge and say to Captain Beggs: "Officer, there stands the man who killed Cyrus Blake. Arrest him!" He was ready to bet that old Beggs would be surprised, and how the other fellows would stare!

But meanwhile there were opportunities to do a little detective work about the farm, and Sammy became very interested in the movements of Dave Ryder, one of the summer boarders at Cassell's, who would stroll ostentatiously toward the village, only to be seen returning from the opposite direction an hour or so later.

This action was suspicious. Detective Samuel took the trail, and, like the human bloodhound that he was, he shadowed the suspect. It was rather disconcerting to have Ryder turn after a mile or more had been covered and rudely command him to be on his way. Ryder even called him "little boy."

Sammy's heart rose hot within him, and he assured himself that Ryder must be a very desperate criminal.

But practice makes perfect, and the time came when Sammy learned to maintain a safer distance between himself and the object of his suspicions, and at last he tracked him to his lair.

The lair was disappointing. It was not a cave reached through a cunningly hidden trapdoor. It was not even a rude shack such as the one in which Billy, the Silent Sleuth, found Pete Pomeroy, the head of the train wrecking band.

It was just a little nook in a bend of the creek, with a fallen log for a seat, and with his own sister Lucy sitting there apparently waiting for the arrival of the desperado.

It was rather disconcerting to find one's own family mixed up in such affairs, but duty is duty, and Sammy wriggled as close as he dared and listened to the low murmur of conversation.

It all seemed absurdly simple. Ryder was not planning a burglary. He was kissing Lucy many times, and between caresses they were discussing how best to approach her father on the matter of their marriage.

Judged by the stern, unyielding standards of Josiah Temple, Ryder was far too gay a young blade to be trusted with Lucy, who was destined to marry a minister when her father could find a minister of whom he could fully approve. Lucy feared to let Ryder speak to her father lest she be forbidden to see or speak to him. Ryder, on the other hand, was urging her to consent to a test of fate.

"I feel like a scoundrel meeting you in the woods this way," he urged. "If your father ... his consent, then we ... his may. Lucy shook her head. "I couldn't do that," she cried. "It would break father's heart."

"Better his heart than yours," suggested Ryder selfishly. Then came more caresses and pleading, and Sammy, tired of such talk, wriggled softly through the brush and headed for home.

He had been wasting all his time on a pair of silly lovers when he might have been better occupied with his books.

As he turned into the yard his father called to him from the porch. "Did you read your chapter of Josephus?"

Sammy's face grew long with dismay. Josephus was dull reading for a ten-year-old, but it was a duty, like watering the stock and feeding the chickens. In his eagerness to trail Ryder he had forgotten all about it.

"What were you doing?" continued the old man.

"I was down by the creek," explained Sammy uncomfortably.

"And what were you doing down there?" came the prompt question.

Sammy was no George Washington, but the habit of truth was strong within him.

"I wanted to see what Dave Ryder was doing down to the creek," he explained.

"And what was he doing?" asked the elder.

"Kissing Lucy," was the startling response, and the old man sprang from his chair in sudden anger.

Bit by bit he forced the frightened lad to tell all he could remember of the conversation. He found relief in the statement that Dave wished to marry Lucy, but his lips tightened angrily as Sammy explained that they both feared to breach the subject to him.

He nodded approvingly over Dave's reluctance to do his courting clandestinely and again at Lucy's refusal to consider an elopement.

Sammy was startled when the inquiry was concluded at being released with only a mild reproof for not having read his Josephus. He scurried around the corner of the house in a spirit of thanksgiving at getting off so lightly.

When he had gone Josiah Temple resumed his seat and the contemplation of the dusty road that ran, a river of white, between the fields of grain.

It was Mrs. Temple's favorite observation that "you couldn't count on Josiah's moves no more'n you could on a hen's," and now this contrivance was working in Lucy's favor. Had Ryder boldly demanded Lucy's hand in marriage the refusal would have been prompt and emphatic.

It was because Ryder anticipated a refusal that Josiah called to him as the young man was plodding along the road, having made his appearance through a bit of woodland half a mile beyond the place of the tryst.

Ryder turned at the Temple gate, wondering if perhaps, after all, Lucy had spoken in spite of their decision to let matters rest awhile. He stood at the foot of the steps and doffed his hat in respect to the other's age.

"When I was a lad," said Josiah, with a twinkle in his eyes, "it was proper to call on a young lady at her folks' an' not go sneaking off into the woods. You c'n come over tonight if you want to. I'll tell her to expect ye."

Josiah watched Dave leave the yard after an unintelligible jumble of apology, thanks and explanation.

"I fooled ye," he said exultingly after the retreat of the young man.

And he laughed through the joke was on Ryder and not on him.

Whittier's Pot of Butter.

Once at the close of the midweek service held in the Friends' meeting house Mr. Whittier was inquiring where he could get some fresh made butter. The next morning he received a pot of the very best butter that Pond Hills could produce. The sender, Friend Ruth Challis, was rewarded by one of those spontaneous poems with which he was wont to "burden" his friends. The original copy of the poem hangs upon the wall of the home of Ruth Challis' granddaughter, who treasures the note, given in payment of her grandmother's pot of butter, as not redeemable in silver or gold:

"Words butter no parsnips," the old adage says, And to fill up the trencher is better than praise. So trust me, dear friend, that while eating thy butter The thanks that I feel are far more than I utter.

Kind Providence grant thee a life without ills. May the cows never dry up that feed on Ford hills. May the cream never fall in thy cellar so cold. Nor thy hand lose its cunning to change it to gold.

Thrice welcome to him who, unbiest with a wife, Sits and bangles alone with the ripped seams of life. Is the womanly kindness which pities his fate. And sews on his buttons or fills up his plate.

And So She "Didna."

Perhaps it was because he was Scotch that his temper was quick, but whatever the reason, he lost it during a rush hour at the little country station where he was employed as porter, and he told one lady near by that she could go to—well, a place not down on the time table.

Quite naturally, she complained to the station master, and it was he who sent Sandy into the waiting room to apologize for his strong language. He found several ladies there, and, not being sure which was the she with whom his business lay, he asked them all around whether he had told her to go—there. The very last one answered yes.

"Weel," said Sandy, "ye needna."—Lippincott's.

F. TOWNSEND SMITH.

A NICE BIT OF ... NECROMANCY.

(Original.)

The first prestidigitator to attract wide attention in America was Signor Bliz half a century ago. Bliz was giving exhibitions all over the United States, and since amusements were to then by no means as common as to-day all heard of him if all did not see him. After having exhibited everywhere in the eastern states he decided to go overland to California. Loading his contrivances in a couple of "prairie schooners," as the plains wagons were called, he set out from the Missouri river to cross the Rocky mountains.

One day the little caravan came upon a man who was crazed with distress. He had been traveling with his wife and two children in a single wagon. For some reason he had left them for a few hours and when he returned found his wagon plundered of its contents, his stock run off and his wife and children missing. He knew they had been carried away by the redskins.

The next day Indians were seen at a distance. Bliz told the man, whose name was Rodman, to ride out and tell them a great medicine man traveling across the country would like to give them a display of his powers. Of course to go to the Indians was the next thing to going to certain death, but Rodman was in hopes that Bliz might help him to regain his family and took the chances. He learned while among the savages that they held his wife and children captives, though the savages did not know they belonged to him. The marvelous will always interest the superstitious, and the Indians sent Rodman back to invite Bliz to their camp.

Bliz improvised a stage with the necessary appointments, and the redskins squatted before it. An interpreter stood ready to repeat the sorcerer's words in their own language. Bliz took a small iron cube with a ring for a handle and lifted it with his little finger. Then he said that he possessed the power of depriving a man of his strength and invited any savage to come up on to the stage and submit himself to this test. The chief himself, the biggest and strongest Indian present, stepped up, evidently confident that no man could take away what he was so proud of. Bliz asked him to lift the iron weight. He did so, giving a grunt, as much as to say: "Do you make sport of me? Give me something heavy to lift." He set the weight down. Bliz made a few passes along his arm and told him to lift again. This time the Indian failed to move it. He struggled desperately, all the blood in his body getting into his face, but to no purpose. The weight was immovable. Then he turned away muttering and did not stop till he had got behind the awe-stricken Indians.

The weight was connected by wires with a powerful magnet, the current being turned on or off by a key under Bliz's foot.

Bliz next took up a pistol and invited the chief to come back and kill him with it. The chief, in hopes of redeeming himself before his warriors, returned. Bliz offered him a cup with leaden bullets in it and asked him to take out one and mark it so that he would know it again. The redskin did as he was told. Bliz took the bullet, put it in the pistol, cocked the weapon, handed it to the Indian, stood off at the other end of the stage and told him to fire. The Indian took a sure aim and fired. Bliz put up his hand, caught the bullet in his fingers and tossed it back to the man who had fired it. The chief, astonished, stood mute, but when Bliz told him to look at the mark on it and he saw that it was the bullet he had chosen he was dumfounded.

This is a common trick, the bullet put in the pistol being of clay ground up powder by ramming it down. It is substituted for the leaden one by sleight of hand.

Then Bliz told the chief he could shoot his blood on to a board without hurting him and fired a wax bullet at him filled with his own blood. It broke against the board, spluttering the blood.

By this time Bliz was a wonderful medicine man to the savages and was ready for the business he had come for. An assistant bandaged his eyes, and Bliz told the audience that he saw in one of the tepees a white woman and two children. He ordered them to bring forth their prisoners at once or he would call down fire from the clouds to consume them. The chief called a powwow of his principal warriors. The white men saw them arguing and gesticulating, but could not understand what they said. Some were doubtful of Bliz having this power, while others claimed that a medicine man who could do what he had done could do anything. While they were consulting Bliz discharged electricity, making a brilliant flash. Away scampered the Indians to the tepee where Rodman's wife and children were held prisoners and brought them to Bliz.

Bliz told Rodman to keep out of the way lest if his family recognized him it might destroy the Indians' faith in his miraculous power. When the terror-stricken woman and her children were brought forward and surrendered to white people their astonishment was as great as the savages' at Bliz's medicine work. Bliz would have frightened the Indians into paying for Rodman's property, but they had no money, and what property they could give was of little value. So the sorcerer decided to get the captives away without delay. He gathered his contrivances put them in his wagons and drove off the savages watching him in wonder. It was not till they were out of sight that Rodman was permitted to embrace his family.

Woman's Curiosity.

"Woman's curiosity," said Mr. Fletcher, "is a quality of mind beyond human understanding."

"Yes," said Mrs. Fletcher. "What made you think of that?"

"The fool actions of a woman that I saw downtown today. She followed a man ten blocks just to get to read a placard that was fastened to his back. She spotted him at Thirty-fourth street. That was really the end of her trip—I made that out from something she said to another woman who was too fat to join in the chase—but when she caught sight of that flaming red poster tied to the man's back her curiosity got the better of her and she set out after him. He led her quite a chase across town and downtown and back again, but she never weakened. She tagged faithfully along in his wake, and finally she got close enough to read that notice."

Mrs. Fletcher reflected a moment. "What did it say?" she asked.

"It advised her to get her teeth pulled somewhere on Sixth avenue."

Mrs. Fletcher thought again. "Where were you all the time she was trying to find that out?"

"Me?" said Fletcher. "Oh, I was following the woman. I wanted to see if she finally caught up with the man."—New York Times.

The Porcelain Secret.

The porcelain industry of Germany is comparatively young, says the Berlin Morgen Post, and its development was rapid. Although it is generally believed that the Chinese kept their processes of manufacture secret, Julian's translations of their voluminous encyclopedia show that this is not true. All who could have read the work might have known also the porcelain secret. But evidently no German fathomed the mechanical mystery until the apothecary's apprentice Boettger, 200 years ago, made the first German porcelain at Dresden. Some years before he had attracted attention by proclaiming the discovery of a method of changing base metal into gold. King Frederick I. gave him orders for the precious metal, which the sixteen-year-old inventor could not execute, and in fear he fled to Dresden and became a subject of King August the Strong. While endeavoring to make gold he discovered the porcelain secret and inscribed his door thus: "Into a potter was changed by Almighty God a man who thought he could make gold."

A Puzzle In Figures.

Take any number of three different figures, as 471, under it place the same figures in reverse order, subtract the lesser number and you will find that the middle figure of the result is invariably 9. Why it is so is something that only the most learned mathematical scholars can explain. Here is our case worked out:

Taking any number, say..... 471
Reversing figures..... 174

Subtracting, we have..... 297
Further still, we can now reverse this number 297 in the same way and add the two numbers and the result will always come 1089. Thus:

Taking..... 297
Reversing..... 792

Adding, we have..... 1089
Why should the answer always come out the same? Here's something for you to work over.
