WILL NOT ACCEPT STREETS

City Councilmen Decide That the Contractors Who Did the Improvement Work on Anderson, Hanna And Larabee Streets Have Not Lived Up to Their Contracts.

THEY MUST FINISH UP THE WORK

The members of the City-Council, who on Tuesday, went to inspect the improvement work on Anderson, Hanna and Larabee Streets, met last night and decided that they would recommend at the next meeting of the council that the work on those streets not be received. The councilmen say that the work is not satisfactorily done. On Anderson Street there are several portions of the sidewalk which will have to be torn up and rebuilt, as it was not properly put down. Then there still is some rubbish along the street which the contractor failed to clean up and the grass plot between the sidewalk and the curb-ing has not been properly smoothed off. About the same complaint is made of the Larabee Street work. Dillard Artice, the contractor, will have to attend to these things before he will receive his pay. Hanna Street, which was built by Mr. Richart, also has some unfinished work. This, too, must be attended to before the contractor receives his pay. The Council agreed to accept the Park Street work which was done by Green Parker. This work was done last summer but it was not satisfactory. Mr. Parker put the job in good shape this summer, however, and the street will be accepted.

THE CASE IS COMPLEX

Suit of E. B. Lynch Against the City For Damages Because of Sewage Dumped Upon His Property Develops Nice Points of Law.

TRIAL BEFORE THE COURT

The case of E. B. Lynch against the city came up for trial this morning. An answer had been filed to the complaint by the city attorney, and this morning Attorney James, counsel for Mr. Lynch, filed a demurrer to the answer. The answer was directed against one of what the city alleges are two counts in the complaint. The first has to do with the city's action in diverting the surface water from its natural channel and forcing it upon Mr. Lynch's property. The other count has to do with the city's allowing sewage to be run through the tile drain on Walnut Street and upon the property of Mr. Lynch. The answer filed by the city alleged that the first count was not actionable as the city had the right to construct and improve streets, and when this was properly done any damage resulting must be borne by the property owners. In his demurrer Mr. James held that the changing the course of the water was the basis of the damage, since it made possible the sending of the sewage upon the property as alleged in the complaint. Judge Rawley heard the argument and took the matter under advisement till one o'clock when the trial will go on. Both sides agreed to trial by the court and the jury was finally dismissed this morning. This afternoon the court met at 1 o'clock and Judge Rawley announced that he was not yet ready to rule upon the demurrer. He said that he would be ready to hear evidence and argument upon the case tomorrow morning. In the meantime, in company with the attorneys for both parties, he made an examination of the streets and the property that will be the subject of the testimony tomorrow. Nothing further was done in the case today.

LOCAL POSTS ENTERTAIN

Members of Woman's Relief Corps And of the Grand Army of the Republic Act as Hosts to Other Putnam County Posts.

A DAY FILLED WITH PLEASURE

When Comrade Starr, of Bainbridge Post of the G. A. R. rose to respond in behalf of his post to the address of welcome of Gen. Lee, he expressed a sentiment that all, for today at least, agreed with. He declared that the old soldiers own this country, and that they are entitled to every thing in sight. At least the old soldiers and the members of the Woman's Relief Corps owned the City of Greencastle today. It was old soldiers day. The streets were bright with bunting and flags, and all the citizens turned out to do honor to this reunion of the veterans of Putnam County. The Greencastle Posts of the G. A. R. and the W. R. C. were today the hosts to the other posts of Putnam County. There were present here the posts from, Cloverdale, Bainbridge, Russellville and Portland Mills. A royal welcome had been planned for the visiting members, and the plan was fully carried out. Members of the local posts were early astir. The first committee met at the court house at 7:30 o'clock, and all were busy from that time on. Incoming posts were met at the stations by reception committees and escorted to the court house, led by a "sheep-skin band" composed of T. T. Moore, fife; Elam Denny, Sam Hunter and Chas. Conklin, drums. The exercises of the day began shortly after 10:30 with an address of welcome by Gen. Lee, commander of the Greencastle Post. This address was in the General's best vein, bright, witty, filled with anecdote, and calculated to put the visitors and the entire audience in the best of humor. He was followed by representatives from the visiting posts, Captain Martin speaking for Cloverdale, Comrade Ratcliff for Portland Mills and Comrade Starr for Bainbridge. Russellville Post did not respond. After singing the meeting adjourned for lunch, which was served in the corridor just outside the G. A. R. Hall. The lunch was delightfully served and most heartily appreciated. Notes of the G. A. R. Cloverdale brought a delegation of 50. Elam Denny, T. T. Moore, William Hunter and Charley Conklin constituted the drum corps, which made music. Mr. Moore played the fife, Mr. Hunter the bass drum and the other two men tenor drums. After dinner the hosts and visitors assembled in the gaily decorated assembly room for the afternoon's program. After music the large audience listened to an address by J. D. Alexander. The speakers efforts were well received and much appreciated. Mr. Albert Moran gave a song that was one of the hits of the afternoon. The meeting was then given over to short addresses by visiting members of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. Short talks were also given by members of the local post. The session was still in progress as the Herald goes to press.

HO ACTION TILL FRIDAY

Report of the Grand Jury in the Case of Absolum Young Charged With Assault With Intent to Kill Deferred.

THEY FEAR THE MAN MAY DIE

It was decided this morning that the report of the Grand Jury in the case of Absolum Young, the young man from Brazil now in jail on the charge of assault with intent to kill, would not be made public till tomorrow morning. The reason for this delay is the serious condition of the injured man, Barr, who was reported yesterday evening as being very low. Should he die the charge against Young would be changed to murder.

BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

New York Giants and Chicago Cubs In Deciding Game in National League This Afternoon—Crowd of 50,000 Persons Are Witnessing The Game.

NEW YORK SECOND IN FIRST

New York, Oct. 8.—(Special to the Herald.)—Before a crowd estimated at 50,000 people the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs are this afternoon battling for the championship of the National League. The day is bright and clear and an ideal one for baseball. Pfeister and Kling started in as battery for the Cubs and Mathewson and Bushnahan for New York. Chicago was blanked in the first half of the first inning but New York was not to be denied. The players of Mugsy McGraw got after Pfeister in fierce fashion forcing Manager Chance of the Cubs to take him out of the game and substitute pitcher Mordcai Brown. New York scored one run in the first inning. No runs were scored in the second inning but the Cubs got to the Mighty Mathewson in the third and scored 4 runs. Score: 1 2 3 4 5 Chicago . . . 0 0 4 0 0 New York . . . 1 0 0 0 0

DEMOCRATIC NEWS

Two Pictures.

Few of the people of Parke County saw the moving pictures presented by one of the local theatres last Wednesday evening, and fewer still saw in them the significance that they portray. By far the greater part of the spectacle was devoted to Mr. Taft, the Republican candidate. He was first pictured standing at one of the imposing entrances to the army and navy building in Washington City; well dressed, portly, even kindly in appearance, talking to a cabinet officer. The scene then changed to the beautiful surroundings of the White House; next Mr. Taft was shown going for a morning gallop, attended by two officers of the army; then he is shown reviewing a regiment of cavalry, and a battery of artillery; the splendid trappings of the horses, the military bearing of the officers, their salutes, the formalities, all a part and parcel of what is daily seen in Russia or any military despotism, told of the form of government for which Mr. Taft stands—a government of force that people fear, and obey because they fear.

The scene changed. A great concourse of people was shown in the foreground. It is an unsightly wharf at one of the great cities of the country. People are coming and going, boats are moving on the water, but in all the throng every man is clad in the dress of a citizen—not a uniform of any kind is seen. A steamer comes to its landing, and a great throng press forward. From the boat a crowd surges and passes along the gang plank. In the crowd a figure appears. 'Under the slouch hat left and right' as he glanced to acknowledge the plaudits of the people is seen a well known face—the face of a man known in every hamlet and on every farm in the land—the face of William J. Bryan. The scene changes to a roughly built speaker's stand. A man comes forward. He is surrounded by smiling and happy faces, he is patted on the back, his hand is grasped by men and women. It is Bryan. Bryan the demagogue, if you will, but a splendid demagogue, a demagogue such as Gladstone was, such as Lincoln was—the man of the people, standing for a government by consent of the governed, a government whose laws are to be obeyed and respected, not through fear, but love! —Rockville Tribune.

Judge Millard Cox, who writes editorial articles for the Democratic State Committee, says: "Who dares James E. Watson's campaign? Is it the steel trust, in which Dan G. Reid of the Indianapolis Star, Republican State organ, is a shining light? Is it the ship subsidy graft combination? Is it the Standard Oil Company? Does help come from Joe Cannon, who, while a member of Congress on $5,000 a year, has managed to make $2,000,000? Can James A. Hemenway, who entered Congress twelve years ago a poor man and is not reputed to be rich, spare a little for Watson? At any rate, where did (and does) he get it? It is said that his nomination cost him between $50,000 and $100,000. There was a scandal in the Republican State convention about the purchase of delegates. There was scandal in many places, notably Ft. Wayne, Anderson, Muncie, Terre Haute, South Bend, Marion and Evansville, about the election of delegates, and it was said that "money flowed like water." Where did it come from? Who put it up? Watson says he is a poor man. If so, who are the people who are backing him? And why are they backing him?"

DEPAUW NEWS

DATE HAS BEEN CHANGED

GERTRUDE MILLER CONCERT
COMPANY WILL BE HERE
ON NOVEMBER 28.

ONLY ONE NUMBER ON SATURDAY

In regard to the date of the Gertrude Miller concert company, the second number on the DePauw lecture course, the management can now announce that the company will appear here on Friday night, November 20, instead of Saturday night as was at first announced.

Considerable trouble was experienced by the management in getting the date changed but the above date may be considered as final and with this change the numbers will appear as was previously announced. As the dates now stand there is but one of them which comes on Saturday night, that being the first Victors Band.

In order to accommodate the business men of the city and the various fraternities in college the entertainment will not commence until about 8:30. Victor has dates booked for his band almost a year ahead and lecture course managers over the country are considering themselves fortunate to secure a booking of this attraction any night in the week. The band has been playing straight engagements seven nights in the week and a date with them is unusually hard to book.

LAW CLUB TO BE ORGANIZED

STUDENTS WHO WILL ENTER
THIS PROFESSION ARE TO MEET TONIGHT.

THE OFFICERS TO BE ELECTED

An organization new to DePauw, will be discussed and plans for the same drawn up tonight when all students of the school interested in the subject of law will meet and elect officers for the ensuing year. Such a club has for some time been talked of formally by the students of the University who expect to enter a law school after the completion of their work here. A general call is made for all persons who expect to make law their profession to meet at the Deke house tonight at 7:30 o'clock. While the special work of the club has not yet been determined it is the idea of those who are pushing the organization to keep the members in touch with all important legal proceedings and bring prominent lawyers both of this city and elsewhere before the club for discussions on special themes relative to the profession. Although DePauw has at the present no law school there are students who expect to enter the profession and no doubt these students will avail themselves of the opportunity to join such an organization.

YEARS AGO.

PROFESSORS DRAW PARALLELS

Human nature is about the same today as it was a thousand years ago, and according to Dr. Stephenson the average Yankee of the Twentieth Century is at heart little different from his barbarian ancestor "who fought at the drop of the hat, or when he thought the hat ought to drop," except that the former has enough of social veneer to conceal the fact from the ordinary observer.

Now comes Prof. Caldwell and shows that women are just like men in this respect, and he proves it by drawing a parallel between the modern woman and the good wife of Bath, who primordial taste for flattery is shown by the poet's statement that "His coverchiefs full fine were of ground;

I dorste swere they weyden ten pound
That on a Sondag were upon her beed
Her hosen weren of fine scarlet reed,
Ful streite y-teyd, and and shoos ful soft and newe."

"Why," says the professor, "if Chaucer were living today, the first thing he would describe would be the big hats the girls are wearing this year; and people five hundred years from now would read and marvel. While they don't weigh ten pounds, they obstruct your view ten pounds worth in church on Sunday morning." The professor did not say whether the poet would describe peg trousers for the benefit of posterity or not. Perhaps the task would prove too much for him.

Would Mortgage the Farm.

A farmer on Rural Route 2, Empire, Ga., W. A. Floyd by name, says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured the two worst sores I ever saw; one on my hand and one on my leg. It is worth more than its weight in gold. I would not be without it if I had to mortgage the farm to get it." Only 25c, at the Owl Drug Store.

ARRANGE FOR OLD GOLD DAY METHODISTS TAKE SLUMP

THE STUDENT COUNCIL WILL MAKES PLANS FOR A CELEBRATION.

THE DATE TO BE SET LATER

When the student council meets one matter of importance will be to plan for the coming Old Gold day celebration. A definite date has yet to be decided upon. It was at first planned to have the usual exercises of the annual occasion take place on the same day as the dedication of the new library, but it is thought by many that on account of the meeting of the bishops at Greencastle on this day that the time will be fully occupied by the exercises pertaining to the dedicatory ceremonies for a complete Old Gold day celebration to be carried on satisfactorily. Another plan has been to pull off the contests of the rival underclassmen together with the other exercises of the holiday on the Saturday following the football game with Wabash which comes on Friday the 20th of November.

A plan proposed for coming years in regard to the university holiday is that of making the day of the first football game at home as the time of the annual occasion. Besides furnishing means for underclass rivalry as is now a regular part of the opening of the season at Indiana, an enthusiastic day at the beginning of the football schedule would start out the varsity with a spirit that would count for real aid.

SEVERAL "D" MEN DO NOT
STEP UP FOR PRACTICE.

ONLY TEMPORARY, HOWEVER

Yesterday saw a slump in football practice on McKee Field. Several of the regulars failed to put in their appearance and the varsity lineup was doctored with subs from beginning to end. This condition of affairs is however, only temporary, there being no contest scheduled for this week. Most of yesterday's practice was spent in signal practice with a quarter hour's scrimmage to wind up on. Although there is no game for a week or two the coach is allowing no lagging on the part of his men and lands on every man that is not in every play called.

Grady and Overman were again trying their kicking toes during the practice and are sending out some long punts. The two quarter backs are running a neck to neck race in all branches of the game and seem to have shared honors about equally.

The preps have a game scheduled with Greencastle High School for McKee Field next Saturday.

Old Turkish Customs.

As long ago as 1613 Coryate visited Constantinople and has left a minute account of its manners and customs. Among other matters he notes that "it is the custom that whenever any fire ariseth in the city to hang up him in whose house it beginneth, as now a cook in whose house it begun was hanged up presently after the fire ceased." The Turks themselves, it appears, were models of good breeding. "The Turk doth never at the saluting of his friend at any time of the day or when he drinketh to him at dinner or supper put off his turban, as we Christians do our hats one to another, but boweth his head and putteth his right hand upon his breast, so that he utterly disliketh the fashion that is used among us of putting off our hats. Therefore, when he wisheth any ill to his enemy he prayeth God to send him no more rest than a Christian's hat."

WOMEN OF PARAGUAY.

Patient and Good Natured, Barefooted and White Robed.

Paraguay is rich in local color. The picturesque character of the native population, with their quaint Indian features and habits of everyday life, is interesting to anybody fond of observing strange phases of human life. By nature these people are patient and gentle, seldom complaining, chattering and laughing from sunrise to sunset and taking small thought of what the morrow may have in store for them.

It is hard to imagine how Lopez could have drilled them into fighting material of strength enough to keep in check the colorful forces of Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay for five long, weary years, and it speaks volumes for the indomitable energy of the man that he was able to sustain his position for so protracted a time.

Clothing is very much of a superfluity in Paraguay, says the Boston Transcript. The attire of the women is a cotton chemise with a long sheet-like shawl, or manta, passed over the head and around the body in Moorish fashion. The dress of the men is equally simple, consisting only of cotton shirt and trousers. Both sexes are guileless of foot covering. At times an almost uncanny feeling rises when a group of these white-robed, dark-haired maidens pass suddenly with the silent tread of unshod feet.

Of a morning in the market places the women folk flock to sell their wares, carrying on their heads the baskets containing the few cents' worth of native produce they have been able to gather together for disposal in the towns. The soft Guarani language, the common tongue of the Paraguayans, adds further charm to the scene.

No Discharge.

"Maggie," said the inexperienced young thing to the cook, "the biscuits were a sight. If you can't do better next time, I will have to discharge you."

"Ye will, will ye?" Maggie retorted. "I'll have ye know, mum, that I've bin workin' out two years, an' I've worked for eighty-nine of the best families in town, an' I ain't never bin discharged yet. I'm leavin' this afternoon fer a better place."—Judge.

Something Happened.

[Original.]

Bob Southwick was sauntering on the street, a victim of ennui. He was twenty-three years old, possessed a fortune, but was miserable. The trouble with Bob was that he had nothing to interest him. He wished something would happen.

Something did happen. Indeed, something remarkable happened—very remarkable. A young girl, pretty and prettily dressed, came out of an office building looking very much perplexed. She turned northward, walked rapidly for a dozen steps, stopped, turned and walked southward for an equal distance, stopped again and muttered to herself, but loud enough for Bob, of whose presence she was unconscious, to hear:

"What in the world shall I do?"

Bob stepped up to her, raised his hat politely and said:

"Can I be of service to you? You seem to be in a quandary about something."

The girl became suddenly conscious that a young man was standing deferentially before her and had asked her a question. She suddenly replied by a question, "What time is it?"

Bob took out his watch and told her that it was a quarter to 12 o'clock.

"Oh, my goodness gracious!"

"Please tell me," he said, "what's your trouble. I may be able to help you."

"You can't."

"Do you want anything?"

"Yes."

"What is it?"

"I want a husband."

"Phew!" exclaimed the young man, then, after a pause, "Will I do?"

The girl knelt her brows, bit her lip and finally said that he would.

"All right. I'll look into the matter."

"There is no time. I must be married before the clock strikes 12."

"But you can surely tell me why this thing must be so sudden."

"It's too long a story."

Just then a man came out of the building before which they stood, approached the young lady and said:

"The jig's up. It's ten minutes to 12."

"This gentleman," she said, meaning Bob, "is thinking of."

"There's no time for thinking. We must be acting," said the man. "If I hadn't a wife and family, I'd help you out."

"If you've got to have a husband right off," said Bob resolutely, "I'm your man."

"All right," said the other. "I'm a lawyer. I'll see that you are well paid for what you do and no trouble. Come along."

He hurried the couple around the corner to the office of a justice of the peace. The justice was coming out on his way to luncheon.

"Marry this couple," said the lawyer, "and do it quick."

"You guarantee it's all right?"

"Certainly."

"The names?"

"Mine is Robert Blair Southwick."

"Your name, please."

"Ella Ruth Gurney."

"One minute of 12," remarked the lawyer, looking at his watch and shoving it back in his pocket excitedly.

"Go ahead, judge, and be quick about it."

A brief ceremony was performed, and a moment after the couple had been pronounced husband and wife the clock struck 12. The bride fell limp into a chair and fanned herself vigorously.

"Now make out a certificate," said the lawyer to the justice, "stating that you married these two before 12 o'clock this day," then, turning to Bob, "If you will accompany me and Miss Gurney—"

"Mrs. Southwick, you mean."

"Beg pardon—to my office we will be happy to make this marriage worth your while, and I will guarantee you a divorce without trouble or remuneration."

"Must that be got right off?" asked Bob. "There's been hurry enough about getting into the thing. I would like a little time about getting out of it."

The lawyer wiped the perspiration from his forehead and said more deliberately:

"No hurry about that, I assure you. Perhaps I may as well explain briefly the occasion for this hurried marriage, and we can all meet to arrange further plans later. Miss Gurney?"

"Mrs. Southwick, please."

"Beg pardon—Mrs. Southwick—returned today from a long trip in foreign lands, having been delayed on the voyage home. A year ago her uncle died leaving a will bequeathing her his fortune on condition that she marry his son, Elmer Gurney, on or before 12 o'clock today. If Elmer Gurney refused or died she would inherit anyway if married on or before the said date. This was to secure a succession. Gurney died a week ago."

"Thank you," said Bob. "I'll see you later about the divorce." Then to the lady he said, "May I be permitted to call, Mrs. Southwick?"

"I shall be very happy."

"Will this evening at 8 be convenient?"

"It will."

"Your address, please."

"Washington place—No. 64."

"Good day," raising his hat. "Pleased to have met you."

For the first time the absurdity of the situation occurred to the girl, and she laughed. "Good day. Much obliged."

"Don't mention it."

"There was no divorce. Bob Southwick, now having a wife to 'globe trot' with him, is not so bored as formerly."

Why It Was Cheaper.
Two poorly clad women were proceeding homeward after the exhilarating gayeties of the mothers' meeting, and what more natural than that they should discuss domestic economy?

"Dae ye ken, Mrs. Brown, I'm due ten and nine for gas this quarter, and I dinna ken how I'll get it paid."

"Why not be like me," said Mrs. Green, "and use the penny in the slot meter?"

"But they say it's the dearest in the end. Ye get less gas for your penny, ye ken, than I get for mine."

"Aye, but, ye see, it's just this way wi me—I never pit in nae more than a penny at a time, and, ye see, a lot o' folk comes tae my house at night, and whenever the gas begins to gae down I just let on I hinna got a copper, an' there is aye somebody ready to stump up the penny. Oh, yes; it's far cheaper in the end!"—London Express.

Gallows Work.
A curious note in "Peppys' Diary" refers to the unpopularity of hangmen in those days. Commissioner Pett, who had traveled, told Peppys "how despicable a thing it is to be a hangman in Poland, although it is a place of credit, and that in his time there were some repairs to be made of the gallows there, which was very fine, of stone, but nobody could be got to mend it till the burgo-master or mayor of the town, with all the companies of those trades which are necessary to be used about those repairs, did go in their habits with flags in solemn procession to the place, and there the burgo-master did give the first blow with the hammer upon the wooden work and the rest of the masters of the companies upon the works belonging to their trades that so workmen might not be ashamed to be employed upon doing of the gallows work."

Education.
I consider a human soul without education like marble in a quarry, which shows none of its inherent beauties until the skill of the polisher fetches out the colors, makes the surface shine and discovers every ornamental cloud, spot and vein that runs throughout the body of it. Education, after the same manner, when it works upon a noble mind, draws out to view every latent virtue and perfection, which, without such helps, are never able to make their appearance and would otherwise be lost.—Selected.

The Sheep's Nod.

"Say, Cornetossel, wot makes dem sheep nod while they feed?"

The speaker, a little city wail, pale with the awful pallor of the slums, gave his bucolic host a patronizing smile and laid a familiar hand on his leg. The farmer caught a sheep, opened its mouth and directed the boy to look within.

"You see, sonny," he explained, "the sheep has no incisors, or cutting teeth, in its upper jaw. With its tongue it makes a ball of grass, and it holds this ball firmly between the cutting teeth of the lower jaw and a callous pad—see it?—above. Now, the ball must be cut up. How? With a fork of the head, a sharp nod, the grass is the partly torn and partly cut, and the sheep feeds on. The sheep nod is a substitute, in other words, for the missing upper teeth."—Atlanta Constitution.

"I give you my word the next person who interrupts the proceedings," said the judge sternly, "will be expelled from the courtroom and ordered home."

"Hooray!" cried the prisoner, and the judge pondered.—Ladies' Home Journal.
