THAT OPTION SCARE.

While Watson is running hither and yon over the state ruining his fine voice and his reputation for veracity by declaring that the Republican state ticket must be elected in order to prevent the Democrats from realizing the county local option law, he has raised $110,000. Senator Foraker is assuring President Roosevelt that the question is out of politics. He says further that it will be impossible for the Democrats to repeal the bill as the state senate will be Republican for some time. Hemenway says, according to the Bedford Mail, (Rep.):

"As to the state ticket?

"It is hard to guess as to the plurality it will get, but I see little reason why it should be any less than that for Taft," said Mr. Hemenway.

"The most serious of our troubles on the state ticket was removed by the action of the Legislature in passing the county local option bill. That took the question out of the fight and cleared things for the Republicans and left the Democrats without the local issues they had been expecting to win on. It is conceded that the law must remain upon the books, as the Senate will stay Republican no matter how the House goes. The question is settled for this election at least."

These men should consult together and avoid the plain inference that someone is either mistaken or lying. Both can not be right, and Hemenway says there is no danger, and Watson is black in the face with shouting there is. And Hemenway is said to have a reputation for veracity, and Watson, well—we won't say.

DEMOCRATIC NEWS

What About the Others?

The dear old New York Tribune, in discussing the recent dumping of Senator Foraker, says:

When Democrats assert that these disclosures have inflicted irreparable injury on their opponents in Ohio elsewhere they make themselves ridiculous. It is notorious that Senator Foraker has not been in touch or sympathy with Republican principles and policies for several years, and that he strenuously opposed the nomination of Mr. Taft.

But what of the others? What of Senator Aldrich, for instance? He is a Republican, and one so high in the confidence of the party as to be its leader in the Senate, the chairman of what is probably its most important committee, and he is now at work fixing up a currency bill which he hopes to get adopted at the coming session of Congress. Yet Aldrich is a Standard Oil man of the most pronounced type, sustaining the closest relations to the great head of that company, John D. Rockefeller. Is it to be said that this Republican leader and boss is "not in touch or sympathy with Republican principles and policies"? Nor should Mr. Harriman be forgotten. Four years ago he was in closest "touch," if not with Republican principles and policies, certainly with Republican statesmen. President Roosevelt himself wrote to Harriman asking him to come to the White House, saying that after the election he would like to consult with Harriman about certain parts of his message, and reminding him that "we are both practical men." Further than this Mr. Harriman was asked by Mr. Roosevelt to raise money to be used in the last days of the campaign in New York, and Harriman did raise and give $260,000. Here surely was a close "touch."

Nor is it by any means sure that the connection with Harriman has been broken. For it was Harriman's attorney, Cromwell, who suggested the appointment of Sheldon to be treasurer of Mr. Taft's committee. And then there is Senator Penrose, the representative of industrialism in politics, also a member of the advisory committee, is he not of "Touch with Republican principles and policies"?

The list, it will be seen, is a long one. There are Gary and Frick, of the steel trust, who worked for the nomination of Mr. Taft at Chicago, and whose concern was permitted by the President to take over the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, its only important competitor. The steel trust, by the way, has never been bothered by this trust-busting administration. These men and interests practically all contributed to the Roosevelt campaign fund four years ago, as did the great insurance companies, and they must all at one time have been "in touch with Republican principles and policies." The insurance money was never paid back, nor was the money raised and contributed by Harriman returned after he had been pilloried as "an undesirable citizen." The New York World charges that Archbold and Rogers, of the Standard Oil Company, also contributed $100,000 to the Roosevelt campaign fund, and that that money was never returned, though the President wrote a letter denouncing the company and commanding the return of the money. All of which seems to prove that Foraker is not the only sinner. Unless he is, his expulsion from the camp can hardly be said to purge the party of those who are "not in touch or sympathy with Republican principles and policies."—Indianapolis News.

Article 460 of the Dingley tariff law places a tariff of 20 per cent ad valorem upon harvesters, reapers, cultivators, and threshing machines and those things which are used by the farmers to till the earth and bring from the soil the substance which feeds the world. The Dingley law places a tax of 20 per cent ad valorem, but in its charity to the American farmer puts on the free list (article 466). Acorns, dried or undried, but not unground! And the the Dingley tariff law places hats, bonnets, hoods, men, women, and children's clothing upon the taxed list of $2 per hundred and 20 per cent ad valorem. But to show the great kindness of the Dingley law to the American people (article 596) it places Leeches upon the free list! If there is a country in this world in which there are blood suckers and leeches, it certainly is the United States, and if there is any one thing upon which a prohibitive tariff as high as heaven should be placed, it is leeches. But the Dingley law offers them to the American people without taxation! The same law places six cents on a pound of tobacco and that enables the trust to control the market and fix the price not only to the producer, but to the consumer as well. In article 684, however, out of the abundance of an overflowing heart, tobacco stems are placed on the free list!—Salem Democrat.

DEPAUW NEWS

TEAM IN ROUTINE PRACTICE UNRULY FRESHMEN ACT UP

VARSITY GRINDS OUT HARD WORK YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

INJURIES ARE NOW HEALING

The matter of the permanent line-up for the 1908 football team still remains mere conjecture as Coach Brown continues to mix the scrubs and subs into the varsity ranks. At yesterday's practice Schladerman and LeVan were each worked out at left half.

With a new set of signals the varsity tore through the scrubs yesterday in championship style. The coach is determined to remedy the fault of the Indiana contest and insists on a hard line charge with every offensive play.

The squad is in good condition now, being practically recovered from the bruises of Saturday's game. Dewey has completely recovered from his injured rib of last week but Harmon is still bothered by a bruise on the hip received in the Indiana game.

Scrimmage practice will probably be a part of each workout for some time to come.

GIVE STATE CROSS-COUNTRY

DePAUW RECEIVES AN INVITATION TO PARTICIPATE IN NOTRE DAME EVENT.

WILL MOST PROBABLY ACCEPT

Coach Brown yesterday received an invitation from Notre Dame officials to participate in a cross country race which is to be held at Notre Dame on November 24. It is probable that DePauw will be represented in the event and the coach is anxious that the methodist school send a team. Within short time he will issue a call for candidates and will begin to train his team. All entries will be in by November 17.

The letter which was received yesterday was not very explicit in regard to the details but it is assured that the event will be emphasized by the Catholic school and will attract not a little attention throughout Indiana.

Despite the unfavorable prospects baskets will be placed on the tennis courts and practice started there until the opera house situation is fully settled.

LAW CLUB IS ORGANIZED

FORTY-ONE STUDENTS CREATED NEW ORGANIZATION LAST NIGHT.

Forty-one enthusiastic aspirants to the law profession met last night at the Deke house and made temporary plans for the organization of a Law Club. Harold W. Bryan was elected president, Guy L. Elwell, vice-president, Wilbur J. Ward, secretary, Claud Overman, treasurer. The officers of the club are to constitute an executive committee to draw up a constitution and submit it to the club at its next meeting which will be held next Thursday night.

The generous response to the call of those who were intending to enter the profession more than met the expectations of the leaders of the club. President Bryan announces that active work will be commenced as soon as the constitution and credential committee has met and decided upon the specific work that will be taken up this term.

Peace Association Meets.

The Peace Oratorical Association met last night in Plato Hall. The association held a mere business meeting. The members discussed plans for the coming year. They decided to hold bi-monthly meetings. At the meeting to be held Friday night a week, Miss Minnetta T. Taylor will talk on some phase of the peace movement.

UNDER CLASSES ARE EYEING EACH OTHER VERY, VERY CLOSELY.

THE SOPHOMORES ARE RIDICULED

Notwithstanding the emphatic rules to the contrary there are many indications that the buoyant spirits of the underclassmen can not be held in restraint and a class scrap will be in order this year. Already both classes are active, perpetrating many harmless pranks upon each other but things have not gone too far owing to the warnings and sentiment of upper classmen against such misdeeds.

Yesterday morning several posters appeared in various public places supposedly written by Freshmen in ridicule of the Sophs. Some of these were immediately torn down. Not long ago several Freshmen were caught and frightened into supporting the Sophomores. Such things have been of frequent occurrence.

Every thing points to the fact that class feeling is running high, and the enthusiasm at chapel is only an indication of the hidden feelings of the two classes.

MAY ABOLISH BASKETBALL

ATHLETIC AUTHORITIES THINK THE GAME IS TOO EXPENSIVE.

FINAL DECISION NOT MADE YET

It is rumored that the athletic authorities may take basketball out of the athletics program of the university this year. The reason assigned for such a movement is the lack of facilities for the game at DePauw while track athletics in the spring would be greatly built up by the extra financial saving due to the elimination of the winter game.

The sum paid last year for the use of the opera house is considered as entirely unreasonable considering the poor floor it makes for the game. Last winter the use of the floor cost the athletic association $230 which is $70 more than was paid during the season before. The proposed plans would therefore place track work on a startlingly successful financial basis.

Despite the unfavorable prospects baskets will be placed on the tennis courts and practice started there until the opera house situation is fully settled.
