THOS. MARSHALL AND FACTS

After-Election Opinions of the Democratic Governor From Republican Sources Show His Strength.

IS SUGGESTED FOR PRESIDENT

This morning two articles dealing with the election of Marshall and his character as a man should be read by all who desire to correct their political views. The first, an editorial comment in the Indianapolis Star, which has bitterly opposed Marshall, is especially worthy of attention. The second from the pen of W. H. Blodgett, of the Indianapolis News gives some of the sanest reasons for the election of Marshall that we have seen. The view of the part taken by the Anti-Saloon League is also interesting. The two articles, in part, follow:

Governor Marshall.

Mr. Thomas R. Marshall owes his election as Governor of Indiana to his own fine qualities as a man and a citizen. All that the Republican organization could do against him and all that the brewers and saloons did for him could not swerve from him the suffrage of his fellow citizens in sufficient numbers to defeat him.

He was not elected because of the saloon issue, but in spite of it. The votes won for him by appeals to "personal liberty" were more than offset by the votes that by those appeals were alienated. He was preferred to Watson by voters enough who believe in him and distrusted Watson. It is not a victory for the breweries or the saloons, and these institutions would make a fearful mistake so to regard it. The thing that turned the tide was Mr. Marshall's irreproachable and amiable personality.

There is an element of justice and right in this result that should give heart to every man who is trying to lead a life of rectitude and honor. It shows that devotion to duty and to the higher ideals of life will build up for a man a reputation and a good name among his fellow men that the vicissitudes and mutations of politics can not take away.

When Mr. Marshall was nominated The Star gave itself the pleasure of saying:

If Mr. Marshall should be elected Governor, there is not a right-thinking or right-principled citizen of Indiana but would rejoice that a man of such fiber and grace of character would sit for four years in the executive office of the state.

To this sentiment we now cheerfully again subscribe; and with it we offer the prediction that whatever hopes have been entertained of his betraying the office of Governor into the hands of unworthy elements in our community life are doomed to cruel disappointment. He will serve the people to the best of his ability and with a clear conscience; and in that effort he will have the support of this newspaper, wherever that support can in justice and truth be extended.—Indianapolis Star.

What the League Could Have Known

The Anti-Saloon League knew, or could have known, that Thomas R. Marshall was not nominated by the brewers. That he did not make a canvass for the nomination is well known. When the Taggart machine which includes the brewers, saw in the convention that L. Ert Slack, who had been a jar to the cogs of that machine for years, was about to be nominated, it threw its vote to Mr. Marshall. It was not that the Taggart machine loved Marshall—it was that the Taggart machine hated Slack. The representatives of the Anti-Saloon League were in that convention. They heard Mr. Marshall declare from the stage that he did not seek the nomination, that he cared nothing for it, and that he wanted it distinctly understood that he would wear no man's collar, would not be the candidate of any faction and would accept no favors from any set of men, corporation or institution.

The Anti-Saloon League knew, or could have known, that Mr. Marshall is a temperance man in his daily life and in his public life; that he stands high in the esteem of his neighbors as an honest, conscientious, upright citizen and a man whose word will be taken anywhere in Indiana on any subject. The Anti-Saloon League knew, or could have known, that Mr. Marshall conducted his campaign entirely free from brewery and saloon interests. He paid his own expenses and would not accept a dollar from any one; would not permit the State committee to pay his traveling expenses or give him a penny. He borrowed the money from a bank on his personal note and would not accept free transportation even on a hack line. When Albert Lieber and Crawford Fairbanks and a number of brewery representatives of liquor interests held meetings and sent for Mr. Marshall he declined to attend their meetings and replied that he had no business with them.—Indianapolis News.

HARD GAME FOR SATURDAY

DePauw-Illinois Normal to Play Staff Contest on McKee Field—Will Give Secondary Position of DePauw.

BROWN IS HOPEFUL, HOWEVER

"Saturday's game between DePauw and Illinois State Normal, will be one of the closest games seen here in the last few years," announced the coach after an unusually fast practice last night. "The Normal beat Rose Poly to the tune of 4 to 0 two weeks ago and Rose Poly beat Wabash 13 to 9, so the game with the Suckers Saturday will give us our long-desired dope on the Little Giants."

Yesterday's practice was perhaps one of the best of the season. After the preliminary session of punting the coach put the men to work in running back punts and tackling. After this Brown put them through an hour of scrimmage, and line bucks, there being enough men out for two teams.

There will probably be several changes in the line-up Saturday as son of the subs have been showing up exceedingly well lately. During Greenstreet's absence, Scott is playing his back position. Sladerman and LeVan are holding down the other two. Grady has made good at quarter back and will probably remain there for the rest of the season.

In spite of the absence of Greenstreet Saturday's lineup will be very strong and if the men continue improving, Coach Brown hopes to down the Illinois team by a good score.

AFTER ELECTION QUIETNESS

Streets Deserted This Morning and Little Sign of Life About the Square Follows the Battle of the Ballot and the Cold Snap.

After the election everyone has settled down to business. Men this morning were hurrying toward their store rooms and offices, and when questioned declared that they had been spending time on politics and now are getting down to business again. After all these hastenings had passed the streets were deserted. At times this morning there was not a single person in sight round the entire square. It was too cold for loafing in the open, and those who had business went hastily and without tarrying.

Last night was, perhaps, the coldest night of the season. The ground was frozen hard and water exposed to the weather showed a quarter of an inch of ice. The cold held on well into the morning, and aided in keeping the people off the streets. Politics is a thing of the past, and business will now have full sway.

STILL A GOOD TOWN

No Trouble on Election Day and no Trouble Since is the Record of Greencastle—Police Court is Quiet

Greencastle is a good town. Not even the stress of election day, or the still greater stress of the night before election caused any man to break over the borders of the straight and narrow way. The police court had no work this morning, and the officers had nothing to do about the streets. We are a good town, in the moral sense and in every other sense, and our record proves it.

CASSELL TRIAL TO-DAY

Second Trial of the Man Accused of Killing Thomas Mills is Set for This Morning Before Special Judge Johnson.

COUNTY PAYS FOR ATTORNEYS

The second trial of Emory Cassell, the man accused of killing Thomas Mills near Quincy, began this morning in the circuit court at Spencer, Owen County. The trial will be before Judge William A. Johnson, of Franklin, special judge for the hearing. The first trial was before Special Judge Clark of Danville.

October 28, the prisoner asked the court to appoint attorneys to defend him as a poor person, as all his money had been exhausted in the first trial. Willis Hitchcock and John Robinson were appointed, and the county council of Owen County will be asked to appropriate $700 to pay these men.

At the first trial the jury hung, 11 standing for acquittal and 1 for conviction. It is expected that the present trial will be brief.

Following are the majorities in each county:

Counties	Tilden	Moore
Morgan	992	6
Marion	992	6
Putnam	451	—
Totals	1437	6
Tilden's majority	1437	—

BRYAN LEADS IN PUTNAM

Miscourt in Making the Totals of the Votes Cast in the Precincts Makes Commoner Appear to Fall Behind Marshall.

MAJORITY OF 505 IN COUNTY

A mistake in footing the columns of votes by precincts had, until this morning deprived Bryan of the credit of leading the ticket in this county. His majority had been given as 465. He had been credited with 3131, while his opponent, Taft had been given 2666. A refooting of the columns showed that Taft had been given fifty votes too much, his total showing only 2626. This gives Bryan a total of 505, and makes him lead the ticket in the county, Marshall having 476 and Moss 489.

There had been considerable speculation as to how it happened that Bryan fell so low, when it was known that there was a strong Bryan feeling in the county. The discovery of this error makes all plain. The mistake was found by the clerk on refooting the columns for the final filing.

BRYAN AND KERN.

Nebraska and Indiana have showed their faith in the Democratic leaders by electing Democratic houses in the legislature. On joint ballot both the legislature of Nebraska and Indiana are Democratic. It is altogether fitting that the demand of the people of these two states, and the demand of Democrats of all the states that Bryan and Kern be selected by the joint houses of each state to represent the people of Nebraska and Indiana in the senate of the United States should be obeyed. They have won the honor and deserve it. Further, these two men, who have fought the fight for the people of the country, should have the right and the chance to fight still further that battle in the upper house of the nation. We need them there. Their states have made it possible to place them there, and with their consent, the Democracy of the country demands that they go there.

And now comes the Indianapolis Star and repudiates everything it has been saying about Marshall, declares that he won on his merits, that Watson went down to defeat because he was the machine candidate, and states further that the brewers contributed nothing to Marshall's success. It will now be time for those far-seeing politicians in Greencastle, who followed the Star's lead in denouncing Marshall, to revise their opinion in harmony with the facts. A number of men who knew Watson's record for political buncombe were either fooled by it, or willingly swallowed it knowing it false. It is now time that they look up the real facts in the case and cease to hide their head in the sand of political lies.

It is evident that the good people of Danville, Ill., heeded the voice of the politician rather than the voice of the church. Joseph Cannon speaker of the house, has been re-elected by an unusually large majority. Evidently the church people of Illinois felt that morality was a matter of the fight in Indiana alone, and that Cannon and his record on the booze question was not a fit matter for clergymen to discuss. So they voted a little stronger than usual for J. C. simply because the church had warned against him.

A Statement.

Already, with the announcement that the Indiana legislature will be Democratic on joint ballot, the question of a United States Senator has been thrust before the people. I believe that most Democrats are a unit in the thought that John W. Kern, by right of merit, deserves the place. For long years he has been the bulwark of Democracy in Indiana. He has made the race for governor, only to be defeated, not for any lack of ability, political skill or personality, but by a Republican landslide. He has been put forward by the Democracy of the nation as the candidate for the second highest office in the gift of the people. His ability, his manliness, his service to his party, all demand that his party honor him if it be within that party's power. The people of Indiana, I am sure, will delight in bestowing that honor upon him, and I shall do what I can to that end.

Matrimony.

Youngly—Did you ever notice that the matrimonial process is like that of making a call? You go to adore, you ring a bell and you give your name to a maid. Cynical—Yes, and then you're taken in.—Boston Transcript.

Watched Fifteen Years.

"For fifteen years I have watched the working of Bucklen's Arnica Salve; and it has never failed to cure any sore, boil, ulcer or burn to which it was applied. It has saved us many a doctor bill," says A. F. Hardy, of East Wilton, Maine. 25c at the Owl

Von Bulow and Sarasate.

In one of his letters Von Bulow refers to Sarasate as follows: "He has enchanted me beyond measure, particularly in his concert of yesterday, when he played a splendid work, 'Symphonie Espagnole' by Lalo—played in so genuinely artistic a manner that today I am still intoxicated with it. His playing also of the Saint-Saens concert piece for violin is as entrancing as interesting. It is a shame that he cannot come to see me. N. B.—I have purposely avoided his personal acquaintance. Perhaps he has tried to see me, for over my door stands the notice:

"Mornings—not to be seen.

Afternoons—not at home.

"But perhaps he did not ring the bell. (He never plays under 1,000 francs—he received this sum here at a private musicale.) For secretary he has Otto Goldschmidt, who sent me a pass, which I returned with the remark that for such an important concert I could certainly afford to buy my ticket. Six marks was in no way too much to pay."

Bulow did make his acquaintance, however, as he refers in a later letter to Sarasate coming, quite unexpectedly, to a "conference with Johannes" (Brahms), at which he himself was present.

He Preferred Mules.

One of the pet hobbies of Senator Christopher Mabee was his newspaper, the Pittsburg Times. He kept the paper well to the front, and it was a credit to modern journalism. One morning the Times had been scooped on a railway wreck.

"Senator," asked an intimate acquaintance, "how do you console yourself on the loss of that wreck story this morning?"

"By congratulating ourselves," he answered quickly, "that we are among the number who missed that ill-fated train."

On another occasion as the senator was approaching the Times building on Fourth avenue he noticed a crowd gathered about a wagon which was filled with huge rolls of newspaper. A wheel was caught in a deep rut in the pavement and could not be budged.

"Senator," laughed a friend, "they managed at last to get your paper into a rut."

"Yes," answered Mr. Mabee, his eyes twinkling with good humor, "and I'm not trusting to men to get it out again, but to mules."—Philadelphia Press.

Vanity of Men.

In a woman's club, over tea and cigarettes, a group of ladies cited many, many instances of the foolish vanity of males.

"Take the case of bees," one said. "Because the queen bee rules the hive, because she is the absolute mistress of millions of subjects, man up to a few hundred years ago denied her sex. He called her the king bee."

"Pity wrote somewhere, 'The king bee is the only male, all the rest being females.' And Moses Rusden, beekeeper to Charles II., stoutly denied, in order to please his royal master, that the large bee, the ruler of the hives, belonged to the gentler sex."

"Even Shakespeare couldn't bear to think that the bee of bees, the largest and wisest and fairest, the live's absolute lord, was a female. No, all the proofs notwithstanding, Shakespeare called her a male. Don't you remember the lines—

"Creatures that by a rule in nature teach
 The act of order to a peopled kingdom,
 They have a king and officers of sorts."

—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Casualties Expected.

During one of Speaker Cannon's bitter political fights in his district in Illinois the opposition resorted to desperate tactics. Among other things friends of Uncle Joe were summarily dismissed from positions they held in the public service. Some of his friends became alarmed at this, and one of them called on the speaker at his residence and said, somewhat excitedly:

"Joe, Smith and Jones have just lost their positions in the postoffice. What are we going to do about it?"

"Uncle Joe took another puff at his cigar and then answered, with a benevolent smile: 'Nothing. If you go into battle, you have got to expect to have some dead and wounded.'"

A Precaution.

"Young man," said her father, "I don't want you to be too attentive to my daughter."

"Why—er—really," stammered the timid young man, "I had hoped to marry her some."

"Exactly, and I'd like to have you marry her, but if you're too attentive to her you won't have money enough to do it."—Liverpool Mercury.

Almost Qualified.

"Help you!" scoffed the irate housewife. "Well, I guess not. I only assist invalids."

"Well, mum," responded Beefsteak Ben as he tried to remove the bulldog from his shins, "I'll be an invalid if I stay here much longer."

The Poor Milkman Again.

The milkman was boiling over with indignation.

"And you mean to say my milk don't look right?" he snapped. "Why, lady, this can of milk is a picture!"

"Ah, yes," laughed the keen housewife; "a fine water color."—Exchange

Restless.

Caller—So your cook has passed away to a better place? Hostess—Yes, but I don't know if she'll stay. Poor Bridget was very hard to suit.—Boston Traveler.

"The poet is born, not made," sayeth the proverb. In other words, it isn't his own fault.

STAGE SCENERY.

Modern Settings Tax the Ingenuity of the Builders.

The big scenic artists do little actual painting beyond making the model, unless they have a panoramic effect. That they do themselves, standing on the paint bridge, many feet from the floor, while the canvas is raised or lowered. The panoramic effects are hard to handle. One difficulty is to avoid fluttering when a draft sweeps across the stage. Mountains that tremble hazily are not conducive to illusion.

With the elaborate productions of late years the importance of the builder of scenery has increased, says Everybody's Magazine. Formerly, when the scenery consisted merely of canvas stretched over a wooden frame, it was simple enough. But the struggle for realism and sensational effects has developed difficult problems for the builder of stage scenery to solve. Every piece of scenery must be made so that it can be folded into strips five feet nine inches wide, because the doors of the baggage cars in which it is transported are only six feet in breadth. Also every piece must be light and so constructed that one scene can be removed and another put in place within ten minutes. It may take thirty hours of continuous work to get the scenery "set up," to use a technical expression, after it is brought into the theater. After that the work of changing a scene is comparatively easy.

A DOGS' CLUB.

London's Luxurious Resort For Aristocratic Canine Pets.

London is the only city in the world boasting a dogs' club. The club is in a pleasant suit of rooms near the Trocadero and close to Regent street. Hand-some rugs cover the floors, the windows are veiled in lace and silk, and luxurious sofas are ranged against the walls, while a profusion of soft pillows are scattered about for the comfort of aristocratic dogs who prefer the floor for a nap. Dainty satin lined wicker baskets are provided for the smaller pets. The membership fee is half a sovereign, but this does not include meals, baths or tips to the attendants.

Ladies going shopping or to the theater leave their pugs and poodles at the club and give the attendant in charge at the time a few shillings for looking after it, but if the dog is fed half a crown is charged. This pays for a nut-ton chop and milk. A whole crown provides the little animal with minced chicken. For a half sovereign Pido is bathed, brushed and perfumed, and if he is a French poodle his hair is carefully curled. A veterinary is attached to the club to see that only dogs in perfect health are admitted, all sick members being quarantined in a separate room. Blankets, boots, collars, harness, soaps and brushes and all the accessories of a fashionable dog's toilet as well as dog medicines are sold at the club.—New York Press.

A Candid Critic.

"A criticism that has helped me a great deal in my work came from a man to whom I took a picture to be framed," said a young woman who spends much of her time copying in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. "As the picture progressed my friends told me it was fine. Some of the other copyists said it had value, character, good coloring and all those things, and even one of the guards in the gallery got real friendly one day and remarked that it was the best copy of that picture he had seen. I began to think that maybe, after all, my several years of study were beginning to bear fruit. At the frame's I picked out a nice frame, and the framer began to figure on the cost."

"I'll tell you, miss," he said, "that frame will come to $3.98. If I were you I'd get something cheaper for that picture."—New York Sun.

"Setting the River on Fire."

In old English times, when each family was obliged to sift its own flour, it sometimes happened that an energetic man would turn his sieve so rapidly as to cause it to catch fire. The style of sieve used in those days was called a "temse," and it became a customary saying that a lazy man would never set the temse on fire. Now, it happens that the name of the river Thames is pronounced like the name of this old flour sieve, and after many years, when the old fashioned temse was forgotten, it was thought that setting the temse on fire meant setting the river on fire, and that is why today we say that a stupid person will never set the river on fire.

Esperanto.

"When I first started out hunting apartments I went through a long, polite dissertation," said the woman with a haunted look and weary face. "Now I go in and say to the elevator man or janitor: 'Apartments? Rooms?' 'Price? Keep 'em.' I get along just as well, and it saves lots of time. Try it."—New York Times.

Dad—Johnnie, your teacher tells me that you are at the foot of your class. How's that? Johnnie—That ain't my fault, dad. They've taken Tommy Tuff out and sent him to a reform school.—Exchange.

Better Left Unsaid.

Noble discontent is the path to heaven.—Higginson.

NANCY'S PROXY.

By EPES W. SARGENT.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Nancy, it's awful to go to school."

Nancy Hartman nodded a solemn assent to the statement, for she always agreed with what Bobby Seaton said.

In this instance her own views were reflected, albeit those views were somewhat prejudiced at the moment by the fact that she had been kept in after school, and Bobby had had to sit on the curb and wait for her. He had done his best, too, to be kept in, and so share her punishment.

"I'll be glad when I'm married and don't have to go to school," he continued solemnly. "Married people don't have to go to school."

"Mr. Seaton did," reminded Nancy. "He was a minister," explained Bobby, as though that made a difference. "Besides he was married when he was in college. College is different from a school."

Nancy nodded wisely. She could not grasp any distinction, but since Bobby said so, there must be a difference. "School's horrid," she complained. "I just fired one twenty little spit ball, and Miss Magnus made me stay in."

"She's got to stay to correct the exercises," explained Bobby, "and she's 'fraid to stay alone. That's why she always makes some one stay in."

"Tain't fair," insisted Nancy, "and we were going after nuts too."

"I tell you what," exclaimed Bobby. "Let's get married, and then she can't make us go to school."

"Right now?" demanded Nancy, with a glance at her soiled dress.

"That little ink stain don't matter," assured Bobby. "We'll go to Mr. Seaton. He got married when he was in school, so he'll understand."

"But he went to school after he got married," reminded Nancy.

"That's because he wanted to," explained Bobby. "If he didn't want to go he didn't have to. We won't want to go."

He started to his feet, and Nancy obediently followed. Had Bobby proposed a stroll to the north pole she would have followed with the same content, for was not Bobby wise with the wisdom of full eight years, while she boasted a scant six?

It was a short walk to the minister's home, and presently Bobby, brave but a trifle weak in the knees and with a higher color on his face, was explaining to the minister his desire to wed.

The Rev. Seaton, grave and studious, was shocked at the suggestion and with gentle reproof at their sacrilege turned them from his study. The reproof was lost on a determined mind, and when the door had closed Bobby shook his tiny fist in the air.

"Just 'cause he's married he don't care 'bout no one else," he said indignantly. "He's not the only marrier in town. Huh!"

There was a world of scorn in the exclamation, and Bobby's wrath was hot. He had not understood what the minister was saying, but he had gathered that he was being scolded for even thinking of marriage, and this under the very eyes of his beloved.

There were three other ministers in town, but none of them was at home, and Bobby turned toward the third.

"It's no use," he said, with a tightening of the quivering lip. "We've got to go to Riverside."

Nancy blinked back the tears and put her hand in his.

"It's dreadful hard getting married," she said. "Do all people have trouble like this?"

"When they elope," explained Bobby calmly. "You don't have time to fix it with the minister."

"I don't think that 'loping's much fun," ventured Nancy, but Bobby's look silenced her. Together they trudged along in silence until the houses were passed and the road to Riverside lay bare and lonely before them.

The shadows were closing in, and there were clumps of trees that made patches of dark, just the sort that bears love to hide in.

For the benefit of his lady Bobby kept up a brave front, but his clasp on the tired, dirty little hand that lay within his own tightened when the dark places came, and the sturdy little legs were urged to greater speed until the danger point was passed.

The dark was closing in now, and Nancy's plump little legs were not as strong as Bobby's, and, though she bravely sought to hold the pace, she lagged behind.

At last, in spite of her fortitude, she had to give in and sank with a little sob on the grass beside the roadway.

"I just can't go any more, Bobby," she wailed. "It seems like we 'most walked round the earth."

"It's only a little way now," urged Bobby, "an' maybe the minister will ask us to stay for supper."

The mention of food was the last straw. Fatigue had prevented the thought of hunger, but now Nancy knew that she was famished.

A school lunch is not calculated to last until 7 o'clock, and Nancy remembered that there was to be jelly cake for supper.

At the sound of the sobs that shook her tiny frame Bobby knelt beside her and sought to check the flow of tears, but not until she had cried herself to sleep on Bobby's shoulder did silence come.

Bobby himself felt very much like crying, but that would never do, and he held back the tears while he stared bravely into the dark, his arm protectively about the sleeping Nancy.

It seemed to him ages passed as he sat there in the silence and the dark. No wagons came along, though once an automobile shot past at a speed that rendered his cry unavailing.

The passing of the car only served to make the loneliness the more pronounced, and when two more great yellow eyes shone far down the road Bobby gently lowered the golden head from his shoulder to the grassy bank and sprang to his feet. Perhaps if he waved his arms they would see and stop.

Nearer and nearer came the lights, and he stood directly in the yellow patch the lamps made in the white dust of the road. To his great relief the car slowed down, and from behind the curtain of light that half blinded the tired eyes came the welcome sound of a familiar voice. Bobby sprang forward to throw himself into the strong arms of his big brother.

"You're a fine pair of runaways," cried Howard. "We have been searching the roads for nearly two hours."

"Is Nancy with you?" demanded an anxious voice from the car, and Bobby knew that Nancy's sister was there too.

She gave a little cry when Howard brought the girl to her and covered the tear stained face with kisses. Howard made up a bed in the tonneau for the children and ran on to where the road permitted a turn toward home. Bobby was not sleepy now, and he stood leaning over the back of the front seat watching the car eat up the road.

"We were eloping lovely," he said plaintively, "until Nancy got tired. Now I guess this spoils it all."

"I guess it does, old man," was the laughing comment. "Suppose that you give me your proxy?"

"What's proxy?" demanded Bobby curiously.

"It's this way," explained Howard as he let the car slow down. "If you want to do something, but don't have time or for some other reason you can't, you appoint a proxy to act for you. I appreciate highly your endeavors to unite the Hartman and Seaton families, but, since your scholastic duties prevent the consummation of your laudable intentions, I propose that you constitute me your proxy in the premises. I might add that in consideration of this demonstration of your confidence in my integrity I am prepared to reciprocate with the donation of one bright silver half dollar in the coin of the realm."

Bobby regarded his brother suspiciously. He never could tell just what Howard was up to when he used the big words, but the proffer of a half dollar was a business proposition, and he stretched out his hand.

The exchange was made and Howard turned to the girl.

"Etta," he said gently, "it would be a shame to frustrate the plans of these two innocents. Don't you think, dear, that you might act for Nancy and make this marriage by proxy an assured fact?"

For a moment the girl hesitated, then she half turned in the seat.

"It would be a shame—to spoil their plans," she said gently. "I think—I should like—to act as Nancy's proxy, dear."

A Natural Result.

Willowby had a good shoemaker, Hiram Pool by name. Nobody knew the trade of making, mending and tapping, resoling and patching shoes better than he. His conversation took on local color from his shop, no matter what the subject might be. One evening an astronomer, sojourning in Willowby, gave a "talk" at the town hall, and Hiram went to hear him.

"What did you make of all he said about the cause of wet weather when he'd spoken so light of the moon having all to do with it?" somebody asked Hiram the next day.

Mr. Pool held up the boot he was mending and squinted at the sole of it.

"His talk needed waxing," said the shoemaker dryly when his inspection of the boot was finished. "But what I made out of it was that he considered the wet weather usually comes when the clouds are so old and rotten they won't hold the patches."—Youth's Companion.

Encouraged to Hope.

When the Empress Frederick, eldest daughter of Queen Victoria, was a little girl, her disposition, to the great grief of the queen, was haughty and arrogant. Once, when about to embark on the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, she was lifted across to the deck of the boat by one of the sailors, who, as he was putting her down gently, said, "There you are, my little lady."

"I am not a 'little lady' I am a princess," was the prompt and indignant reply. The queen, who had overheard the conversation, detained the man with a gesture and, turning to her spoiled little daughter, said:

"Tell the kind sailor that you are much indebted to him for his civility and that, although you are not a 'little lady' yet, you confidently hope to merit the title before long."

An Air With Real Air.

During one of the political tours of Mr. Cleveland, in which he was accompanied by Secretary Olney, he arrived during a severe storm at a town in which he was to speak. As he entered the carriage with his friends and was driven from the station the rain changed to hail, and immense stones battered and rattled against the vehicle. A brass band, rather demoralized by the storm, stuck bravely to its post and played.

"That is the most realistic music I have ever heard," remarked the president.

"What are they playing?" asked the secretary of state.

"'Hail to the Chief,' with real hail!" rejoined Mr. Cleveland.

Jenny's Quick Method.

Jenny's uncle, who was a school-teacher, met her on the street one beautiful May day and asked her if she was going to the Maypole dance.

"No, I ain't going," said her uncle, "Oh, my little dear," said her uncle, "you must not say 'I ain't going.' You must say 'I am not going.'"

And he proceeded to give her a little lesson in grammar. "You are not going. He is not going. We are not going. You are not going. They are not going. Now, can you say all that, Jenny?"

"Sure, I can," she replied, making a courtesy. "There ain't nobody going."

Jury at the Theater.

An unusual spectacle was witnessed at the Theater Royal, Nelson, Auckland, when the jury, who had been locked up three nights because they could not agree to a verdict in a murder case, were allowed to witness a living picture display. They had expressed a desire to attend the theater as a relief, and the judge consented.—Auckland News.

A Work Maker.

"Binks is weak financially, isn't he?" "He hasn't much money, but he gives employment to a great many men."

"Who are they?" "Other people's bill collectors."—London Tit-Bits.

Not Exactly What He Meant.

A German who did not talk very fluent English and who had been in England some little time was desirous of giving his wife a fortnight's holiday at the seaside. He found, however, that he would be unable to spare the time himself, but promised to accompany her there and return the following day.

Accordingly on the morning when they were to make the journey he went to the ticket office and said to the official:

"Please give me von ticket to Brighton for myself to return tomorrow." Then, to the amusement of every one, he added, "And von order for my wife—nevaire to return!"—London Tit-Bits.

Mind Your Business!

If you don't nobody will. It is your business to keep out of all the trouble you can and you can and will keep out of liver and bowel trouble if you take Dr. King's New Life Pills. They keep biliousness, malaria and jaundice out of your system.

DOCTORS MISTAKES

Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better. The doctor, in the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have effected a cure. The disease, thereby disappearing, all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured." Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," run-down, debilitated, teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nerve tonic "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

of this writing the funeral arrangements are not yet complete, owing to

OBITUARY

Edward Perry Gose.

Edward Perry Gose, for the panine years employed as a car inspector for the Southern railway died at his home on north Washington Street Saturday morning, October 17, 1908 at 7:30 o'clock of a mastoid abscess.
He had been unable to work for several weeks but his condition was not regarded as serious until Thursday night, when his sufferings became intense and continued so until the end.

Deceased was born in Putnam county, June 20, 1869, where he grew to manhood. March 29, 1899, he was married to Miss Lucy Showalter at Greencastle, Ind., to which union were born two children, Dorothy and Kenneth, whose ages are seven and four. In his early manhood he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church at Greencastle Junction. He was a member of Huntingburg Lodge No. 161, Knights of Pythias, having passed through the chairs a few years ago. He also belonged to Twin River Lodge of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen located at Princeton. He was a man of excellent personal habits, diligent in the performance of his duties, and devoted to the welfare and comfort of his family. Among his fellow employees he was highly esteemed and was generally regarded as a good and useful citizen.

Besides his devoted wife and two children, he leaves his father, mother one sister and one brother to mourn his untimely death.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. A. Breeden, pastor of the ## George Busby.

George Busby was born in Bracken County, Kentucky, April 11, 1836, and died October 25, 1908. He with his parents, Hiram and Nancy Busby, came to Putnam County when he was quite small. He was the fourth child of a family of fourteen, and naturally endured many privations during those early days. Of this large family only three remain, namely: Mrs. James Wood, Mrs. John
Wood and Nathan Busby of Windom, Kansas. In this same county he grew to manhood and was married to Hannah Boone, third daughter of Daniel and Malinda Boone, February 19, 1861. To this union were born six children—four daughters and two sons, Clara, nor Mrs. W. S.
Torr living in her home neighborhood; Harriet, nor Mrs. C. L. Torr of Muskogee, Okla.; Mattie, who died in 1883; Malinda, now Mrs. A.
S. Curtis of Putnamville; Laurence of Greencastle and Frank, who with his family has always lived at the home of his parents. These with their mother and five grand-children,
Misses May and Mande and Master
Clarence Torr of Muskogee, Okla.,
Miss Edna Curtis and Master George Wm. Busby are left to mourn the loss of a kind husband, a good father and a loving grandfather. He was a plain, industrious, honest man, upright in all his dealings ever observing the Golden Rule. His friends were unnumbered. Little, big, old and young alike loved him for his sociable and cheerful disposition.

Very Game.

A lady who had made a tour of England told a quaint story about a precocious boy.

"They are very precocious indeed,"
she said, "those little chaps from Eton or Rugby, with their round, sober faces and their quiet air."

"A very pretty American girl was talking one evening in London to one of these rascals."

"And have you got a sweetheart
yet, Tommy?" she said playfully.

"No," said Tommy. "Still I'm game enough for a bit of spooning, if that's what you're after."

A Star or the Sun.
One of the stories that Disraeli was accustomed to tell with the greatest relish was of an absentminded astronomer who, scanning the heavens one night, was much puzzled by a phenomenal brightness for which he tried vainly to account. For hours he sat profoundly studying the phenomenon, and while he was thus engaged daylight arrived. After awhile the abstracted astronomer stumbled to bed, telling himself sleepily that if he remained out of bed much longer he would miss his night's rest.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Ingenious.
A Chinese doctor opened a drug store, but for a long time he had no customers. At last one customer came. When supplying his wants the vendor observed that the drug was full of weevils.

"What is this?" said the buyer.
"Kiang tsan" (medicinal insects), replied the doctor.
"But," said the man, "Kiang tsan are always dead."
"Yes," said the doctor; "but, you see, they could not remain dead after eating my medicine."—Scrap Book.

Willie's Triumph.
Papa was about to apply the strap. "Father," said Willie firmly, "unless that instrument has been properly sterilized I desire to protest."
This gave the old man pause.
"Moreover," continued Willie, "the germ that might be released by the violent impact of leather upon a porous textile fabric but lately exposed to the dust of the streets would be apt to affect you deleteriously."
As the strap fell from a nerveless hand Willie smiled.—Kansas City Independent.

Few things are impossible in themselves. It is not so much means as perseverance that is wanting to bring them to a successful issue.—Rochefort-Cauld.

DR. GOBIN FAVORS DEBATE

SAYS THAT IT IS MORE VALUABLE TRAINING THAN IS ORATION.

WANTS FOUR DEBATE TEAMS

"Debate is a more desirable form of public speaking than is oratory," said Doctor Gobin yesterday afternoon. "In fact I think for this day and age of the world, it is the only kind of public speaking."

"There is no doubt but that students will receive a far more valuable training in the debate contests than in oratory. The student in debate must be very cautious in what he says. His words must be well chosen and precise and every statement must be backed up with proof."

"This can scarcely be said of oratory. There is a tendency to put emphasis on the mere rhetoric of the production, and little attention comparatively is given to the facts of the case."

"I have long felt that debate was the more desirable contest. Conditions are changed to what they used to be and there is now a greater demand for debaters. Besides it gives more men a chance to participate. Each team is composed of three men, while in oratory the school is represented by one. For my part I should like to see the time when DePauw has at least four debate teams."

"But can we support them?" was asked.
"Why shouldn't we. Ohio Wesleyan supports four teams, and so do many other schools no larger than DePauw. With the reputation we have in public speaking and the interest the students take in the work I think in the near future we would easily be able to support them."

"We want to get our chair of public speaking endowed some of these times. Other departments far less popular have received liberal endowments. The alumni take more interest in our work in debate and oratory than any other one thing perhaps, and I think when the time comes we will easily be able to secure a $10,000 endowment more or less for that chair."

DEPAUW NEWS

DEPAUW MEN IN LIMELIGHT

MANY GRADUATES OF THIS SCHOOL APPEAR ON THE BALLOTS.

INTEREST IN WATSON'S RACE

The campaign has as usual brought many DePauw men into the limelight. Governor, Senator, Judge and Representatives are included in the list.

On the Pacific Coast William Riddpath, a loyal son of DePauw, has been waging a strenuous battle for the generalship of Washington on the Democratic ticket. The returns show Washington to be in the Republican column so far as national issues are concerned and it is probable Mr. Riddpath is among the losers.

Ex-Senator Patterson of Colorado has been trying for the last few months to bring Colorado back in the ranks of the Democrats, but it seems he too has failed. The election returns are not all in and while it is true the result was very close, yet Taft's plurality in the state is sufficient to warrant the conclusion that the legislature is safely Republican.

In our own state three DePauw men were up for office. Merrill Moores, running for Probate Judge in Marion County, failed of election. The Democratic landslide in Indianapolis, that contributed so largely to Democratic success in the state worked havoc with Mr. Moores' race.

State Senator Moore of Greencastle was defeated by Mr. Tilden, who held the chair of English literature at DePauw before Professor Caldwell.

Unusual interest was centered on James E. Watson, in his race for the governorship, and it was largely on account of this that a vacation was granted yesterday.

Edwards, class of '53 could not withstand the temptation to further his record so he came to Greencastle Tuesday, after traveling all the way from Iowa, and deposited his ballot here for the national president for the fourteenth time. Dr. Edwards voted first when he was a junior in the Indiana Asbury University and ever since then he has never failed to be present at the polls.

THE MEN ARE SELECTED

PROFESSOR R. B. VON KLEINSMID ANNOUNCES PERSONNEL OF GLEE CLUB.

ORGANIZATION VERY STRONG

After having studied the merits of the various Glee Club candidates for some time, Prof. R. B. von Kleinsmid announced the personnel of the club, Wednesday. In picking the men for the club, Director von Kleinsmid took into consideration quality of voice, ability to read music and many other things. In several instances preference was given to those candidates who had ability in two lines. Prof. Kleinsmid had an abundance of material to choose from, about thirty-five having reported for try-out, and believes that the club will be one of exceptional class.

Before the tryouts were held, it was thought that a Mandolin club could be organized and carried in conjunction with the Glee Club, but because so few of the candidates could double, the idea was abandoned. However, two mandolins and a guitar will be carried, and a special number will be worked up, in which they will have a part.

The list of successful candidates and their parts, is as follows:

First tenor, Crick, Gore and Plank.

Second tenor, Henderson (mandolin), Carpenter and McLain (ass't. reader).

First bass, Whitcomb (mandolin), Duddy (ass't. accompanist), Nicholson (guitar) and Lytle.

Second bass, Randle and Lucas.

Reader, Nattkemper. Accompanist, Rhea.

The first rehearsal will be held this afternoon at four o'clock in McHarry Hall.

STARTS BASEBALL SLATE

IT IS PROBABLE THAT DEPAUW WILL SCHEDULE FOURTEEN GAMES.

SEVEN TO BE PLAYED HERE

Manager Hollopeter, of the baseball team, has already made a good start on the schedule for the coming season and hopes to have it completed by the middle of the second term. It is probable that fourteen games will be scheduled, with about half of them on McKean Field. It is also quite probable that a four or five day trip will be arranged. Last season the trip was into Kentucky, but this season an attempt will be made to schedule a trip through Illinois, Michigan or Ohio.

Coach Brown is confident that DePauw will have a winning team next spring. All of last year's stars, with the exceptions of Tucker, Rhoades and Dee, will be in the field again, and it is understood that there is much promising material in the freshman class. The old varsity men who will be seen in the DePauw line up this season are, Capt. Holderman, Overman, Jewett, Bryant, Collins and Comstock.
