Brazil City Officials Do Not Permit The Violations of the Speed Ordinance That are Winked at by Greencastle's Officials.

CAR CREW ARE UNDER ARREST

The Brazil Democrat gives the following in regard to violations of the speed ordinance by the interurban:

Henry G. Parnell, motorman, and Fred W. Laffin, conductor, of west-bound traction car No. 45, were placed under arrest and taken from their car when it pulled into the traction station at 6:28 o'clock last evening for exceeding the speed limit.

The arrest was made by Chief of Police McMillan, who charged the motorman and conductor with running their car through the city at a speed of at least 20 miles an hour. The crew strenuously objected to being taken from their car and the traction company officials also put in a kick but McMillan was firm and compelled the motorman and conductor to accompany him to police headquarters, where they were arraigned on the charge of violating the city speed ordinance.

Their trial was set for 10 o'clock Saturday morning before Mayor Shattuck and bond was furnished for their appearance by Clarence Turner, the local manager of the traction company.

About 45 minutes were consumed in arranging the details and securing bond for the conductor and motorman and the car was held on the Meridian Street switch until these details had been arranged.

Chief McMillan stated that in the future he would arrest all crews that violate the speed limit and would hold them personally responsible for the infraction of the speed ordinance. He said that the twenty cases which he had filed against the traction company for speed violations did not seem to have any effect on the company and that in spite of the fact that they had been convicted in one case the cars were still being run through the city at a speed of fifteen to twenty miles an hour and he intended to put a stop to it.

It is expected that the action of Chief McMillan in arresting the crew last night and holding the car here until bond was secured for the men, will have the effect of causing the traction company to sit up and take notice and that in the future they will try to comply with the speed ordinance.

HE STUDIED TOO HARD

The Cause of Cloyd Hershey's Suicide is Given Out—Advice and Remittance Too Late in Arriving.

HIS DEATH IS WIDELY MOURNED

A special from Logansport says: The body of Cloyd Hershey, who committed suicide in Boston last Friday night, was brought to this city Monday afternoon, and the funeral was held today. Hershey was a student in the Boston Theological College, and during the last summer had been pastor of the Hanover Center Church. Overstudy unbalanced the young man's mind and while in a fit of insanity he sent a bullet crashing through his brain. Several days previously he had written his mother, Mrs. Lottie Hershey, of this city, a letter, in which he complained of racking pains in his head and homesickness. The letter was a rambling missive, and his mother, fearing that the youth's mind was affected, immediately sent him a letter, enclosing money with which to buy a ticket and come home. The letter arrived the day following the shooting.

Hershey was a devout Christian, and his ambition was to become a great preacher.

STATE ELECTION RESULT

Those Elected on the Face of the Returns—Three Democrats are Admittedly Elected While the Remainder of the State Officers Are Lined up as Republicans.

THE ELECTION TO BE CONTESTED

The illegal, unnecessary and unusual delay in making the election returns, a delay which has held the state in uncertainty and which has aroused suspicion everywhere within the borders of Indiana, appears, in itself, to justify a demand for a legislative investigation.

The people, according to the belief of many leaders of all political parties, ought to know why the returns were delayed; why some counties failed for days to make reports of their official votes; why, in some instances, the returns dragged, contrary to law, for four, five and even six days, before they could be obtained and tabulated by the secretary of state.

With the result so close, any delay in any part of the state, left room for doubt and for suspicion as to the honesty of the delayed returns, and doubt as to the motives and purposes of men who are responsible for the unreasonable delay.

After many errors, false statements, untrue reports and incorrect tabulations, it appears that the state officers, other than governor, lieutenant governor and superintendent of public instruction have gone to the Republican candidates.

Governor—Marshall, Dem., 348,849; Watson, Rep., 334,040; Haynes, Pro., 15,826; Robinson, Pro., 986; Goodman, Soc., 11,948; Stoner, Soc. L., 573; Zion, Ind., 383; Marshall's plurality, 14,809.

Lieutenant Governor—Frank J. Hall, Dem., 340,577; Fremont Goodwine, Rep., 338,995; Abraham Huntsinger, Pro., 16,740; Hall's plurality, 1,672.

Secretary of State—James F. Cox, Dem., 339,007; Fred A. Sims, Rep.,

339,499; Sims' plurality, 492.

Auditor of State—Marion Bailey, Dem., 339,294; John Billheimer, Rep., 339,522; Billheimer's plurality, 228.

Treasurer of State—John Isenbarger, Dem., 338,907; Oscar Hadley, Rep., 339,744; Hadley's plurality, 837.

Attorney General—Walter J. Lotz, Dem., 339,017; James Bingham, Rep., 339,805; Bingham's plurality, 788.

Reporter of Supreme Court—Burt New, Dem., 339,115; George W. Self, Rep., 339,286; Self's plurality, 171.

Superintendent of Public Instruction—Robert J. Ale, Dem., 339,581; Laurence McTurnan, Rep., 338,819; Ale's plurality, 762.

State Statistician—P. J. Kelleher, Dem., 338,913; J. L. Peetz, Rep., 339,220; Peetz's plurality, 307.

Judge of Supreme Court—Edward W. Felt, Dem., 338,731; Q. A. Myers, Rep., 339,899; Myers' plurality, 168.

Judge Appellate Court—Moses B. Lairy, Dem., 338,977; David Myers, Rep., 340,018; Myers' plurality, 841.

Democrats Plan for Contest.

Nearly all the defeated Democratic candidates for State offices at last week's election held a conference to determine on a plan of action in the contest they will make for the offices. Thomas Taggart was also present. So were Stokes Jackson, Joseph Kelley, secretary of the State committee, and Judge Willard New, of North Vernon, the latter a brother of Burt New, Democratic candidate for Reporter of the Supreme Court.

It was learned that a full investigation will be made in every county in the state to hunt out any errors that may have been made in the count of the votes.

It was arranged to send experts into several of the counties and have them make a careful recount of the vote and revision of the figures shown on the tally sheets and on the certificates of election.

It was decided to pay special attention to the vote in Lake County. Two or three men will be sent there to pursue different lines of investigation. One will look into the vote, as will be done in other counties. Another will investigate the foreigners who were naturalized by the Republicans in time to vote at the election. The manner in which they were naturalized will also be looked into, the State organization having received information that it would be well to see just how it was done.

The Democrats are saying that they will be able to show that many of these foreigners—possibly 700—had not been residents of Indiana a sufficient length of time to entitle them to citizenship, and if this is found to be true the Democrats will use it as one of the grounds for their contest before the Legislature.

Stokes Jackson said that he had also learned that in another county a crowd of Italians working on a railroad were voted. He says he is informed that they were not entitled to vote at the election, and this is another matter that will receive special attention during the investigation.

Burt New, who on the face of the official returns, was defeated by George W. Self for Reporter of the Supreme Court, says he has discovered enough errors in the returns from some of the counties to wipe out Self's plurality and give him the state by about 150 votes.

"I have not gone very far with my investigation," he said, "but I shall continue it to the end, and am confident I shall be able to convince the canvassing board that I am entitled to the office. I am not charging fraud, however. What I am saying is that many of the precinct election boards made errors in putting down their figures and counting the votes and it is these errors that I shall try to discover. Then I shall show them to Governor Hanly and Secretary of State Sims and hope to convince them that I am entitled to the office."

Some of the candidates were asked if they would request Governor Hanly to delay the issuance of commissions to the Republican candidates until after the investigations have been completed, but they said this subject was not discussed.

Neither would they give out any detailed information as to the errors discovered in the count or the counties in which they were found. They said they would keep this to themselves until the investigation was completed.

EXAMINE THE TALLY SHEETS

Lincoln Dixon and Burt New Appear in Greencastle to Examine the Election Returns for Any Errors Overlooked by Board.

NOTHING FOUND IN OLD PUTNAM

Lincoln Dixon and Burt New, candidate for Supreme Court Reporter on the Democratic ticket, were in Greencastle a few hours last evening. They came for the purpose of examining the tally sheets and the election returns from the various precincts to see if any error has been made in the footings. After a careful examination they found the Putnam County returns in exact harmony with the tally sheets except for one vote in the case of Attorney-General Bingham. No action will be taken as, in order to correct the returns, the state officers would be obliged to summon the boards of the precincts and take their evidence on the question before any change could be ordered.

The visiting gentlemen stated that an expert accountant had been sent into each county of the state to examine the tally sheets and the returns. They did not look for fraud, but only for clerical errors, and a number of these had been found, some in favor of one party and some in favor of the other. All these errors will be reported today to the governor at his final canvass of the vote. What the result will be no one knows.

THE I. O. O. F. DEDICATION

New Grand Lodge Building to be Dedicated on November 18, and a Large Delegation of the Greencastle Brethren Expected to Attend.

The arrangements for the dedication of the new Grand Lodge building of the I. O. O. F. of Indiana, will take place at Indianapolis on November 18. The program arranged is as follows:

Dedication Ceremonies, 3:30 p. m.
Dedication Parade, 7:30 p. m.
Dedication Address by the Grand Sire, 9:00 p. m.

The dedication parade will be an attractive feature of the occasion and will consist of more than 5,000 members.

All bodies will march in fours, except Patriarchs Militant, who are governed by code.

Counties will form their lodges in numerical order and be in command of their D. D. G. Ms.

Single lodges will be placed in their respective divisions according to number, and be in command of a marshal of their own selection.

All bodies and members will report to the marshal of their division at rendezvous at 7:15 p. m. sharp. Individual members are invited and urged to be in line, and will be welcomed in any division.

All counties and members will have torches distributed to them on and after 7 p. m. at place of formation of parade.

Torches must not be lighted until the parade reaches Ohio Street, where officers will be stationed for the purpose of giving command to do so—not before.

The fours of each command as nearly as possible will carry torches as follows: The first four will carry red torches, to be lighted at Ohio Street; the second four will carry red torches not lighted until commanded to do so is given at Capitol avenue; the third set of fours will carry "sparklers" to be lighted at Ohio street on command; the fourth set of fours will carry green torches, to be lighted at Ohio street; the fifth set of fours will carry green torches to be lighted at Capitol avenue, and so on ad libitum. The red and green torches burn 20 minutes each. A set of the "sparklers" will burn 35 minutes.

No torch much be lighted until commanded to do so.

The headquarters will be on the second floor of Odd Fellow Building, where marshals of lodges and counties, and others, if detached, on desiring information or instruction of any kind are requested to report at any time during the day of the parade. An effort is being made to get a special car to leave at 5 p. m. Fare to be 80 cents if 50 or more go. Those wishing to go leave names with John Sutherland or John Cook.

Putnam County Delegation is going to take a band with them.

MOFFETT FAMILY REUNION

Members of the Family From Many Places Meet For a Day of Re-Acquaintance and Good Cheer.

ALL DINE AT THE BELNAP HOTEL

Members of the Moffett family from far and near are enjoying a reunion here today. They came in this morning from all directions on both trains and interurban. They met for organization in the court house, from which place they went to the Belnap for a reunion dinner served especially for the family by the genial host of that hostelry. The afternoon was spent in conversation and family reminiscences. The following is a list of the members present:

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Miller of Terre Haute, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Moffett, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moffett of Bainbridge, Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Moffett, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gill of Cloverdale, Mr. and Mrs. George Kirkpatrick of Oakland, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Moffett, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Moffett of Paris, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Bennett of Westfield, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Moffett of Indianapolis, Mrs. Susan Brinkenhoff of Kansas.

NINE KILLED AND BURNED

Collision Between Trains Near New Orleans Results in Killing Nine People—Wreck Catches Fire and Bodies Are Cremated.

RESPONSIBILITY NOT YET LOCATED

New Orleans, Nov. 11.—(Special to the Herald.)—This morning a collision took place at Little Woods, twelve miles north of New Orleans, between trains on the New Orleans and Great Northern Railroad and the Northwestern Railroad. The trains were running at high speed and several of the coaches were smashed and overturned. It is known that nine people were killed in the wreck, and as the wreckage caught on fire almost immediately, the bodies of the killed were cremated.

The belief is that there were more deaths than the nine reported.

The responsibility for the accident has not been made public.

THEY ARE MARRIED

Jacob C. Rogers and Mrs. Ellen Reese Were Wed at Brazil on Tuesday Morning.

Jacob C. Rogers, a Putnam County giant 85 years old and Mrs. Ellen Reese of Bowling Green, aged 60 years were united in marriage at the county clerk's office at 8:30 o'clock this morning. Justice Mershon officiating.

The groom is a well to do farmer, living north of Reelsville. He is over six feet in height and weighs about 300 pounds and his robust appearance would indicate that he is not over 60 years old. The bride has been a well known and highly respected resident of Bowling Green for many years.—Brazil Democrat.

DINNER PARTY

A delightful dinner was served yesterday at the home of Miss Jennie Black, in honor of her guest, Miss Nelle Hackett of Oakland, Ill. Those attending the dinner were Mrs. Chas. Bridges, Mrs. Gray Potter, Miss Alice Potter, Miss Jennie Raines and Miss Florence Williamson.

COUNCIL HAS NO QUORUM

Some of the City Fathers Are Out of Town And Others Fail to Appear And the Council Adjourns Without Results.

WILL MEET IN CATLEO SESSION

Business, forgetfulness or disinclination to attend on the part of the city fathers last night made it impossible to hold a council meeting. Two of the members were out of the city, and three were at the city hall, and one was not accounted for. As four were necessary to a quorum, and as the fourth member failed to appear, the mayor, after waiting till nearly eight o'clock, adjourned the meeting. It is probable that a special session will be called to attend to the business left unfinished by last night's adjournment.

Evidently even the city council is suffering from that remarkable attention to business that has been characteristic of all our people since the election. Many could not leave their own work to take up that of the city.

FOR BENEFIT OF FARMERS

A Short Course at Purdue University From January 11 to 16, 1909.

The seventh annual farmers' short course (formerly called corn school and stockmen's convention) will be held January 11 to 16, 1909, by the School of Agriculture of Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

This course of one week is especially designed for and adapted to the needs of corn growers, stockmen, dairymen, horticulturists, and home makers. That the work is popular and has proven to be of practical value is borne out by the fact that more than 3,500 people have taken the course during the past three years.

The instruction consists of lectures and demonstrations which include a discussion of the various important phases of the subjects together with practical scoring and judging. The schedule for the week is arranged so that the time is about equally divided between the lectures and the judging work.

On Wednesday of Short Course week, the State Corn Growers will hold their annual meeting. Men with national reputations will be secured for the day. Corn growers should plan to attend.

During the week the state corn and fruit shows will be held by the Corn Grower's Association and Horticultural Society. More than $1,000 will be offered in premiums which is sure to bring out a large number of entries. All corn and fruit men are eligible, no membership or entry fee being charged.

For program and other information apply to Purdue University School of Agriculture, Lafayette, Ind.

TRAMPS FIRE BIG FOUR CARS

Build Fire in Box Car to Drive Out The Chills—Two Cars Destroyed Before Engine Arrives.

As a result of a little fire which some hoboes evidently built in one of the empties standing on the eastern spur of the old Big Four yards, two box cars were destroyed and the rest, twenty empties in all, were only saved by the fact that an engine was in the yards at the time and succeeded in pulling them to a safe distance.

This makes the second fire of this sort in which the Big Four has suffered in the last month, as two weeks ago a similar fire was started and seven cars were destroyed.

DEATH OF MARION BOSWELL

Jacob Marion Boswell died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Boswell in Clinton Township Tuesday night after a long illness of tuberculosis. He was about 22 years of age. Funeral and burial will be at Clinton Falls.

WATSON'S POSITION.

It is declared in some quarters that James Eli Watson will again be the candidate of the Republican party for Governor of Indiana in 1912. We are inclined to think that neither Watson nor his party will look with favor upon this proposition. It is well known that Watson was not the choice of the rank and file of his party as its leader during the last campaign. We are inclined to think that the only thing that gave him any showing at all was the thrusting into the campaign of the temperance question. Of course it was known by all who think in the least that his election as governor could effect the matter little way or the other. In Indiana the veto amounts to nothing since it requires but a constitutional majority to carry legislation over that veto. So far as giving temperance any moral support even his friends acknowledge that his record made this impossible. Still the Republicans were able to gather many into line on the temperance question who they could not otherwise have brought to the polls. We believe that with this question out of the fight Watson would not be even as strong a candidate as he was. The machine which gave him his nomination last spring is broken. Other men will be coming to the front and Watson's chance is gone. He may get a consulate or an appointive position, but he will not again appeal to the people. His party must take care of him for what he has done as whip of the house.

The suggestion that Roosevelt be sent to the United States senate from New York is not meeting with that loud and prolonged applause that was expected. The position the President took in the last campaign, his partisan attacks upon men and measures, his forgetfulness of the "square deal," his renewed friendships with some of "The malefactors of great wealth" have tended to shake the faith of many people in the usefulness of Roosevelt in the senate. It is probable that the applause failing, Roosevelt will not ask for the place.

OBITUARY

Eva Mae Clark.

Eva Mae, daughter of Roy and Margaret Clark, was born, February 1, 1908, and died October 30, 1908, aged eight months and twenty-six days. After days of suffering, although under the tender and watchful care of father and mother and friends the little soul took its leave of this mortal body and went to its home.

She was a flower too bright for earth and the Father above needed her for another jewel in his realm. It is hard for papa and mama to give up their darling, but we know that Eva Mae is now at home in the mansion beyond the skies where angels are the wardens and where all is peace and delight. Although it is sad to give up our little one, we know that our loss is Eva Mae's gain.

Funeral conducted at the M. E. Church at Lena, Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock, by Rev. J. O. Powell. Interment in Calcutta Cemetery.

Condolence.

Mrs. Mattie Hillis, Dear Sister: Your pathway has led down through the "valley of the shadow of death." Many of us, like you, have said good-bye to loved ones, knowing they will come to us no more. Yet we have the blessed thought that we can go to them.

Be comforted then dear sister, in the knowledge of your husband's infinite gain, in the thought that for him all suffering is over, and he is now in that "beautiful somewhere," to dwell forever in the presence of the Christ, who gave His life that all who believe in Him, and do His will might have life eternal. We join in offering your our sincerest sympathy in your sorrow and pray that you be soon restored to health and again meet with us.

Young Conway jabbed the oars into the water viciously.

"If I can't have what I want," he said sullenly, "I'll take what I can get. I'll ask her tonight."

Little Miss Pennell held on to the boat with both hands and gurgled delightedly.

"What a humble, doglike disposition is yours, Robert," she said admiringly. "I'm sure she will take you. She has been throwing herself at your head for six weeks."

"Thank heaven, women can never throw straight," he growled sullenly. "Seems to me she has done very well," said Miss Pennell flippantly. "If you ask her tonight she surely will have achieved her aim. But I can't say that you look a willing victim."

She saw her false step and tried to retrieve. "I meant—perhaps."

"No; you don't renege," he said happily. The shadows grew longer. He looked at his watch in the fading light.

"Too bad, but I must take you back in time for you to dress for the dance."

"How?" incredulously. He waved her doubts aside with an airy gesture. "The hero of this romance knows how to relieve the heroine in distress, my lovely lady. See that hut?" dramatically. "Well, there are four canoes sheltered in it."

Little Miss Pennell dimpled appreciatively. "You dare!" she said.

She Liked Variety. She is a very nice little girl, and yet she has an imagination so vivid that people can't help wondering once in awhile what is going to become of it. The little girl can and does tell the most marvelous tales, and when she is reproved she is entirely complacent and cannot see that her effective inventions are anything more than jokes. One of these she told to an interested neighbor at whose house she called frequently.

"How is your mamma, dear?" asked the neighbor one morning when the little girl made her appearance.

"She is very sick," answered the little girl earnestly. "Nelly (her sister) and I were up with her all night. We called the doctor." But when the kind neighbor went in haste to see her sick friend she found her in every respect as well as ever.

"Why did you tell kind Mrs. Blank such a story about me?" asked mamma seriously of her little girl at the first opportunity.

"Well, mamma," said the little girl, with a toss of her curls, "Mrs. Blank asks me every single morning how you are, and I get tired of telling her that you are very well."—New York Times

A Busy Family. "Say, bub," said the book agent as he drew up at the gate of a house in a country town on his way to a barefooted boy, "is your pa around?"

"Nope. Pa's out breakin' in a colt," was the reply.

"Could I see your ma?"

"Nope. Ma's jest took a walk to break in a new pair of shoes."

"Is your big sister at home?"

"Nope. Pete Lawson fell over town an' busted his leg, an' she's gone over to break the news to his ma."

"Maybe I could see another one of your sisters."

"Nope. The other's gone to town to break a ten dollar bill."

"Well, I guess I'll have to talk to your big brother, then. Will you call him, please?"

"Your folks seem to be pretty well occupied," smiled the book agent. "Maybe I could interest you in a big book bargain."

"Not me, mister," replied the boy. "That feller comin' over the hill called me squint eyed yesterday, an' I'll soon be so busy breakin' his head that I won't have no time to talk to you."

No Wonder She Didn't Know. Before he had been in the car three minutes most of the women passengers and some of the men were explaining to their neighbors what they would do with the little imp if he belonged to them. Spanking was the popular remedy, and if that boy had received their critics were aching to administer he surely would have been well blistered.

To the general babel of advice and fault finding, however, there was one woman who contributed nothing. She was a gentle, gray haired body who remained unmoved in the midst of the small tempest raging.

"If that child was mine," said the determined woman beside her, "I'd make him mind if I had to half kill him. Wouldn't you?"

"I don't know," said the little woman mildly, "what I'd do."

"You don't?" said the determined woman. "Well, I know. But maybe you are not used to children? Maybe you never had any of your own?"

"Oh, yes," said the little woman. "I brought up thirteen. That is why I don't know what I would do."

thing in the way of company," with slightly more amiability.

"Oh, you!" she returned gloomily. "But you will be so bad tempered because of Miss Stubbs. You were going to have a tete-a-tete with her tonight, you know."

"That's all over now," he sighed. "Over? Can't you ask her tomorrow?"

He threw a pebble far out in the water and waited to see it splash. "I'm going to ask you again," he said slowly, "and you will have to consider it this time—keep those old cats at the hotel from saying things."

She drew a quick breath, and her eyes were mutinous.

"Let them talk. They have to talk about something. I certainly shall not let their silly chatter force me into matrimony."

"But, Betty, I hate to have them say things. And I'm not such a bad chap."

"I know you're not," said Miss Pennell, fast becoming more excited and angry, "but they can talk—and talk! I intended marrying you all along, but I won't be forced into it."

"What?" shouted Conway so loudly that a lone bird perched on a nearby grass stalk flapped its wings hurriedly.

She saw her false step and tried to retrieve. "I meant—perhaps."

"No; you don't renege," he said happily.

The shadows grew longer. He looked at his watch in the fading light.

"Too bad, but I must take you back in time for you to dress for the dance."

"How?" incredulously.

He waved her doubts aside with an airy gesture. "The hero of this romance knows how to relieve the heroine in distress, my lovely lady. See that hut?" dramatically. "Well, there are four canoes sheltered in it."

Little Miss Pennell dimpled appreciatively. "You dare!" she said.

She Liked Variety. She is a very nice little girl, and yet she has an imagination so vivid that people can't help wondering once in awhile what is going to become of it. The little girl can and does tell the most marvelous tales, and when she is reproved she is entirely complacent and cannot see that her effective inventions are anything more than jokes. One of these she told to an interested neighbor at whose house she called frequently.

"How is your mamma, dear?" asked the neighbor one morning when the little girl made her appearance.

"She is very sick," answered the little girl earnestly. "Nelly (her sister) and I were up with her all night. We called the doctor." But when the kind neighbor went in haste to see her sick friend she found her in every respect as well as ever.

SCARLET FEVER.

A Scourge of White Races in All Ages and Countries.

Now that smallpox, thanks to compulsory vaccination, has become a rarity in civilized communities, scarlet fever steps forward as the worst of the eruptive diseases of childhood. It is a malady of enormous antiquity. Thucydides, writing nearly 500 years before the beginning of our era, called it a heritage from the remote past. It has scourged the white races in all ages and all countries, and the physicians of all schools have leveled their heaviest artillery upon it. Yet it remains a puzzle unsolved and an enemy unconquered even today. We are in doubt as to its cause, and there is no drug or antitoxin that will cure it. But despite all this the death rate from scarlet fever is steadily declining, and we may expect it to decline more and more as the years go by. The reason for this, I take it, lies in the fact that the modern doctor is a great deal more sparing with pills and powders than his predecessor and a great deal more lavish with water, air and antiseptics. In the old days it was customary to dose scarlet fever patients with all sorts of violent remedies in staggering quantities, and as a result many of them died. Today medicines are but minor auxiliaries in the sickroom, and both doctor and nurse devote their main energies to preventing a spread of the infection.—Delinctor.

USE FOR A TELESCOPE.

Interesting Discovery One Woman Made by Use of the Glass.

"I thought it was a pretty fair sort of telescope for one that wasn't very big," said Uncle Elias. "I rigged it up in the attic by the high north window and had it fixed so it would swing around easy. I took a deal of satisfaction in looking through it, the sky seemed so wide and full of wonders, so when Hester was here I thought I'd give her the pleasure too. She stayed a long time upstairs and seemed to be enjoying it. When she came down I asked her if she'd discovered anything new.

"Yes," she says. "Why, it made everybody's house seem so near that I seemed to be right beside 'em, and I found out what John Pritchard's folks are doin' in their outkitchen. I've wondered what they had a light there for night after night, and I just turned the glass on their windows. They are cuttin' apples to dry—folks as rich as them cuttin' apples!"

"And actually that was all the woman had seen! With the whole heavens before her to study, she had spent her time prying into the affairs of her neighbors! And there are lots more like her—with and without telescopes."—Christian Uplook.

Fiddled Into Office.

Lossing relates that in 1848 he met at Oswego, N. Y., Major Cochran, then nearly eighty years old, a son-in-law of General Philip Schuyler, who told the story of his election to congress during the administration of the elder Adams. A vessel was to be launched on one of the lakes in Interior New York, and people came from afar to see it. The young folks gathered there, determined to have a dance at night. There was a fiddle, but no fiddler. Young Cochran was an amateur performer, and his services were demanded. He gratified the joyous company, and at the supper table one of the gentlemen remarked, in commendation of his talents, that he was "fit for congress." The matter was talked up, and he was nominated and elected a representative in congress for the district then comprising the whole of New York west of Schenectady. He always claimed to have "fiddled himself into congress."

A Worthy Desire.

An ambitious young Chicagoan called upon a publisher of novels in that city, to whom he imparted confidentially the information that he had decided to "write a book" and that he would be pleased to afford the publisher the chance to bring it out.

"May I venture to inquire as to the nature of the book you propose to write?" asked the publisher very politely.

"Oh," came in an offhand way from the aspirant for fame, "I think of doing something on the line of 'Les Miserables,' only livelier, you know!"—Lippincott's.

Spoiled His Appetite.

"Every bit of food on this table," said the serving lady to Lamson as he sat down to eat at the church supper, "was cooked by your wife."

"Oh, I don't mind," rejoined Lamson faintly. "I'm not a bit hungry, anyway!"—New York Times.

HARD TACKLING PRACTICE GIVES WHOLESOME ADVICE

BROWN TRIES TO IMPROVE HIS PROTEGES' STYLE OF PLAY.

SCRIMMAGE WITH THE SCRUBS

Twenty minutes of steady tackling practice in the open field was the first thing on the program for yesterday's workout. The play in that department in the Illinois Normal game was not up to the standard and the workout yesterday came as a result, the aim being to make every tackle low and sure. Saturday's shift in lineup did not seem to bring any apparent weakness or unbalance in the line although it made it somewhat lighter and the lineup for the Earlham game next Saturday is yet a guess to the followers of the varsity game. Greenstreet will no doubt be in the game for the rest of the season which will make a strong force to rely on.

A half hour or more of secret scrimmage practice with the scrubs on the offensive wound up yesterday's work on McKee Field. Both the scrubs and varsity have been working the forward pass often in practice for the last week or two. It has, however, not been used with much success in the contests DePauw has played this season, in fact it has so far this year largely given way to straight line plays and the on-side kick. The latter play has been used by the varsity in practically all the games of the season and has netted substantial benefit over the opposing teams so far met.

Earlham is not as strong this year as last season and next Saturday's game at Richmond is not expected to hinder preparations for the Wabash contest on November 20.

MAY LOWER GYM FLOOR

IF HALL FOR BASKETBALL CANNOT BE SECURED IN THE NEAR FUTURE.

THE COMMITTEE IS AT WORK

The Athletic Board has appointed a committee to secure a basketball floor for the coming season. The committee as appointed are Dr. Seaman, Coach Brown and basketball manager Fred Wallace.

Last season the opera house was rented for this purpose, but because of occasional shows and poor lights it was not at all satisfactory. Three years ago the present skating rink was used, but the board has not been able to get it since then.

There was a rather lengthy discussion on the possibility of lowering our present gymnasium floor, so as to utilize it for basketball. This would necessitate quite a large expenditure of money, and also interfere with gymnasium classes in order to have the use of the floor for practice this term.

This latter course will not be attempted if either of the other halls can be secured upon satisfactory terms; but in case they can not the committee will investigate the expense of such alterations and report at the next meeting of the board.

PROSPECTS DISCOURAGING

Indiana Has Very Little Good Basketball Material.

The Indiana athletic supporters are rapidly becoming despondant. This state of affairs is not due to their unsuccessful football season just coming to a close, but to the fact that their basketball prospects promise even less. According to the statement of one of Indiana's disheartened players, the squad even when re-inforced as it will be when the football season closes, scarcely warrants the making-out of a basketball schedule.

DR. STEPHENSON URGES HIS STUDENTS TO BE CAREFUL OF HEALTH.

EDUCATION NOT SO VALUABLE

"Four-fifths of the students in this university study in over-heated rooms," said Dr. Andrew Stephenson yesterday when lecturing to his class in English Constitutional and Political History, "and very few of them have enough fresh air."

The doctor laid aside his manuscript long enough to give his students some wholesome advice on how to keep healthy and said that all of our places of public assemblage are heated to excess in most instances. He suggested that each student should buy the best thermometer on the market and whenever the temperature gets above sixty-five degrees open all of the windows and "let some of God's fresh air in."

"I wish that some one would stand over you," he continued, "and get you out of bed at five o'clock every morning and make you run a mile and a half. I won't say what you would do the rest of the day but I could guarantee your health. The majority of consumptives would never have been afflicted had they taken more exercise and been careful to get plenty of fresh air."

Dr. Stephenson concluded his remarks by asserting that education was of no value as compared to one's health, that a person could get more enjoyment out of life "if he didn't know nothing" but health is the source of all happiness. He urged all in his class to be more solicitous as regards to over-heated rooms and that each should be an exponent of the fresh air cure.

ONLY TWO WILL BE SENT

ATHLETIC BOARD DECIDES THAT FIVE CANNOT BE SENT TO NOTRE DAME

WABASH EXCURSION FAVORED

Although it was thought that five men would represent DePauw in the State Cross Country run, to be held at Notre Dame, November 24, it has been decided by the athletic board that only two men will be sent.

Coach Brown has been empowered to pick the men from the five who finished first in Monday's tryout but as yet he has taken no action in the matter. He will do so in a few days. At the meeting it was decided that the board should officially support an excursion to Crawfordsville, November 20, when the DePauw-Wabash game will be played.

This is the first time this year that the board has officially supported a football trip, but are doing so this time because the Wabash game is the important contest of the season.

The board also officially voted that track athletics would be included in our list of regular sports. This will be the first track team since 1905.

CHEMISTS TO MEET

Professor Blanchard to be Host For Indiana Section of Chemical Association.

Upon December 12 Dr. Blanchard will entertain the Indiana section of the American Chemical Society at his home in this city. At that time all members of that organization in Indiana will take advantage of an opportunity to visit DePauw and inspect its laboratories. Although the object of the meeting is primarily for pleasure, several important matters will be considered. Preparations are being made to give the visitors a royal welcome, and an effort will be put forth to make their visit a pleasant one.

HIS CONCEPT OF COLLEGE

PROF. WILSON SHOWS DANGERS OF THE PRESENT DAY TENDENCY.

TOO MANY OUTSIDE INTERESTS

In a recent address before Haverford College, Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton, set forth certain vital truths pertinent to DePauw as well as other schools of the country.

The educator skillfully showed how the conditions in the country today were moulding the university and colleges therein. "Courses in schools he finds to have degenerated into a mixed mass of subjects meant to serve every interest and utility in modern life." Then Dr. Wilson shows how athletics, social dramatics, gastronomical, convivial, political organizations "have thrust study to one side and dwarfed the very thing for which school and college were established."

Dr. Wilson went further than this, he stated what he believed to be the true college: "They should conceive themselves as organizations into which men are received as unto a family of free persons bound together by common obligations and common privileges, living together, teacher and pupil, in an intercourse of common advantage, its main object, study; its diversions, diversions; its sport, sport, not a competitive business; its society, a free society of equals; not a contest of rival social groups."

From an interview with one member of the DePauw faculty relating to this matter, it seems that he believes that this institution although tinctured by such conditions, has not lost the fine, old ideals which have always distinguished it.

FREAKS OF MACHINE VOTE

Voters Case Ballots for Candidates Not on the Ticket and do Not Know the Names of Candidates on The Ticket.

Some queer things have come to light with regard to the work of the voting machines in Indianapolis. It appears that in the vote for joint senator the men who prepared the machines for the voting did not know the names of the candidates beyond those on the Republican and Democratic tickets. As a result they simply put down the name of the party in the place where the name of the candidate for joint senator should go. Now the Prohibitionists and Socialists had no candidate for joint senator, but the voters, deceived by the arrangement of the machine, cast 477 votes on the Prohibition ticket and 684 on the Socialist ticket, neither of which parties had a candidate for that office in the field. James W. Walker, candidate on the Independence ticket was on the machine and so was the party. The party received 27 votes and the man 4 votes. This is another case where the machines registered queer results.

Too Many Funerals.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

Stepan Metrof rushed into his house where his wife was getting the dinner, pale as a ghost and his eyes starting out of his head.

"What is it, Stepan? For the love of God, what is it? Have you been drawn?"

"Yes; I must kill the minister of the Interior."

The wife covered her face with her hands and trembled; then she said, "It is you who must die, not the minister."

"Rather, we must both die."

"I mean you must die to the world."

"How can I do that, Natalie?"

"Leave it to me."

Metrof shook his head doubtfully. Nevertheless he had confidence in his wife's ingenuity and hoped. In a week he was apparently very ill. His wife sent for Alex Gagin, president of the circle, to come and see him. Metrof was in bed. His wife said that worry over the order to kill the minister was driving him into the grave.

In two weeks from that time Natalie sent again for Gagin, who came and saw Metrof lying in his coffin. Natalie had painted his face so that he made a disagreeable looking corpse.

"See what you have done!" she said, covering her hands and weeping copiously.

"Acht!" exclaimed Gagin contemptuously. "Your husband was a coward," and went away. But in a moment he returned and, taking a hand glass, placed it before Metrof's nostrils. Metrof heard him ask for the glass and when the test was made held his breath. Gagin, catching no moisture on the glass, went away again—this time for good.

The next day Natalie, in the garb of a widow, followed a coffin in which there were stones and boards to the grave, and a new man was chosen to kill the minister.

Two years later Metrof and his wife were living in New York, keeping a wine shop. One day a man entered the shop and, sitting at a table, called for a glass of wine. At seeing Metrof he looked at him keenly. Metrof went into a back room, where he found Natalie and told her that Peter Katsivof, one of the circle which had ordered him to kill the minister, was in the shop and had recognized him. "I shall be followed and murdered," he added.

Natalie, instead of giving way to grief, began to think.

"You must die again," she said presently.

"That game will not work twice."

"It will, but must be done differently."

Metrof kept a revolver in the house. His wife went out and got a paper of red dye and a little sponge. Putting water and the dye on the sponge and handing her husband the revolver loaded with blank cartridges, she gave him instructions what to do. Metrof went out into the shop, where he found the stranger waiting. Metrof went up to him and said: "You have recognized me. I am lost. But I can stand this strain no longer. I will save you the trouble of punishing me." With that he stepped back to the door through which he had come, put the revolver to his temple and fired. He fell into Natalie's arms, and a red stream trickled from his temple. She had squeezed the sponge. She drew him into the room and shut the door, refusing to admit any one but the police.

The next morning the papers mentioned a suicide in the Bowery, and Metrof's representative corpse was buried again.

After the funeral Natalie, a widow for the second time, sold the shop and went west, where she was joined by her husband. Having bought a farm, they settled to its cultivation, hoping that there would be no necessity for any more funerals.

One day when the couple were on a train who should walk down the aisle but Peter Katsivof. As he passed them and saw Metrof he stopped, his eyes fixed on him with astonishment. Then he passed on, and the hunted man knew that his life was again the object of the dreaded circle.

Metrof believed that Katsivof would report him to the circle at St. Petersburg and some one would be commissioned to kill him. He never went out of his house at night and in the day always carried weapons. One day there was a knock at his door. Natalie motioned him to conceal himself while she answered the summons. A man with shaggy hair and beard, whom both recognized for a Russian, entered and asked for something to eat. The reply to his request was a bullet from Metrof sent through the heart.

Natalie found on the body papers to satisfy her that he had been sent to kill her husband. Copying his handwriting, she wrote the circle in his name that he had succeeded, but he must go into hiding to escape the law. Natalie told her neighbors that her husband had been murdered, showed them his corpse, which she had painted as before, and buried the would be assassin.

"Well," said Metrof the night after having been buried the third time, "I've tired of these funerals."

"Be comforted," said his wife. "They will be sure this time of your death. We will change once more, and hereafter you must be made up to look like some one else."

"You can't make me up for anything worse than a corpse," he replied, "and I've got used to that."
