CYCLONE DESTROYS PUTNAM COUNTY HOMES; LEAVES RUIN IN WAKE

Storm Which Visited Putnam County This Morning Accompanied by Funnel Shaped Cloud Which Came from the Southwest and Travelled in a Northeasterly Direction—Struck Just West of Fillmore

HOUSE TORN FROM ITS FOUNDATION

Residence of John Sinclair, West of Fillmore, is Lifted from its Support—Two Barns on the Farm of Mrs. William Dimler Destroyed and Her Home Badly Damaged—Wind Mill, too, is Wrecked

TRACTION CREW WATCHED THE CLOUD

Men Saw Poles Twisted Off, Hay and Straw Stacks Lifted into the Air, Trees Uprooted, and Plainly Heard Roar of the Storm as it Passed Behind Them—They Narrowly Escaped by Running from the Cloud as They Saw it Approach

A cyclone which came with the storm this morning, struck just west of Fillmore causing much damage. The cyclone, which was traveling in a northeasterly direction, struck just about a half mile west of Fillmore. It came near 8:45 o'clock. The cyclone came in the form of a funnel shaped cloud.

As it struck the earth it would twist out trees, lift hay and straw stacks into the air, tear down rail fences and demolish any large building in its path. It would strike the earth with a roar and seemingly bounce into the air, only to light again a few hundred feet ahead. The roar it made as it struck the earth could be heard for quite a distance.

House Torn From Foundation.

The house of John Sinclair, between Bunker switch on the interurban line and Fillmore was in the path of the cyclone. The house was lifted from its foundation and set to one side. The damage will amount to several hundred dollars. Hay stacks, fences and trees which happened to be in the road of the cyclone were demolished.

The storm left a track of ruin in cloud. They saw it approach in a funnel shape from the southwest and come with great speed. The tail of the cloud would strike the earth with a roar tearing up anything it happened to hit and then bounce into the air again. It went across the country as if by great leaps. The car crew saw great trees uprooted, hay and straw stacks whirled into the air, fences torn down and as the cloud crossed the interurban tracks only a short distance behind them, saw a large high tension wire pole twisted in two.

INTERURBAN TRAFFIC TIED UP.

The breaking of this pole caused traffic on the interurban to be tied up for more than an hour. The men say that as the tail of the cloud would strike the ground there would be a great roar which would diminish as the cyclone then arose into the air again.

After passing Fillmore the cyclone continued in a northeasterly direction. All telephone wires were torn down, however, and no word of what damage was done north was not known up to noon.

THE WIND STRIKES BUGGY.

Three men were driving along the road near the Dimler home just as the cyclone reached that place. The cyclone struck the buggy and rolled it into a field but luckily none of the men were badly injured. The names of the men are not known here at this time.

Cyclone or Tornado.

The storm at Fillmore this morning was distinctly cyclonic in its character. The cyclone is a wind storm with a circular motion, the greatest intensity at the center, and a decided lifting motion. The cloud is always funnel shaped. A tornado is usually formed by the meeting of two storms at less than a right angle. The two then unite and move forward in a line that is the resultant of the force of the two storm clouds. There is no rotary motion in the tornado, and its force is crushing rather than lifting.

NOTES OF THE STORM.

Jacob Fogle, was driving a single horse near the farm of Walter Cooper, southeast of town, when the wind struck him. Horse, vehicle and man were swept from the road and over turned. Fogle was carried to the home of Walter Cooper, but proved to be uninjured.

Walter Cooper lost more than two hundred shocks of corn fodder. It had just been shucked, and the wind cleaned the field.

The general course of the storm was from southwest to northeast. It began not far from the Deer Creek crossing of the Cloverdale road and extended beyond Delmar.

He and the other members of the crew, after they had escaped, had a splendid opportunity to view the

The trouble occurred last Saturday night. Henry Blake gave Siddons a dozen bottles of beer to take to Blake's home. Siddons started but failed to find the right house and went home and to bed, leaving the beer in the yard. About 12 o'clock Homer Blake appeared on the scene and demanded to see Siddons. He was called by his sister and at length appeared on the porch. After some words Blake struck him and Siddons was rendered unconscious. He still bears the marks of the severe treatment he received.

SIMPLE IN HIS TASTES

Will Have No Personal Staff and Does Not Believe in Brass Buttons And Gold Lace.

A special from Fort Wayne says: When Thomas R. Marshall becomes governor he will have no personal staff if his present intentions prevail, and he thinks they will. He is simple in his tastes, and he says he really does not at this time see the necessity for the traditional accompaniment of gold lace, brass buttons and military titles of the personal escort to the Governor of Indiana on State occasions. He has stated that he believes he will try to pull through his term without this display.

When occasion demands the presence of a governor's staff, he has it in his mind to request the officers of the Indiana national guard to serve in this capacity.

It has been the custom for the Governor of Indiana to name a personal staff, comprising about a score of civilians, who are thereby invested with military titles.

And now Andrew Carnegie has declared for tariff for revenue only, and even Uncle Joe is out for revision downward. This will be an awful surprise to the Manufacturers Association, but it will be welcomed by the long-suffering consumer, who grasps at these promises as drowning men at straws. Democracy has accomplished something if it has forced such obstinate stand-patters as Uncle Joe into line for revision downward.

Governor-elect Marshall still insists that the business of a governor is to enforce the laws, not to influence legislation. He does not propose to place either himself or his party in the position of Hanly and the Republicans. The people of Indiana never did, do not and never will like one-man government and Hanly has made it more unpopular than ever.

Now that the injunction has been issued a number of our citizens are anxious that neither political reasoning nor lack of energy stand between them and some arrangements for a sewer system.

About four more nights like last night will be about right for this week, Mr. Weatherman.

Nominating a President.

Until the constitutional amendment of 1844 the president and the vice president were voted for on the same ballot, the man with the second highest number of votes becoming vice president. The presidential electors have not always been chosen by popular vote.

Before 1800 it was the general custom for the state legislatures to choose the electors, and it was not until 1828 that presidential electors were chosen in nearly all the states by popular vote. As late as 1876 the Colorado legislature chose the three presidential electors to represent that state. There is nothing in the constitution to prevent any state legislature naming its own electors without appeal to the people provided such a method of election is prescribed by the state laws.

From 1800 to 1824 presidential candidates were chosen by the members of congress in caucus. In 1824 the electoral college failed to make a choice from the candidates so submitted, and the matter went to the house of representatives. Four years later Tennessee's legislature nominated Andrew Jackson without any reference to the congressional caucus. His opponent, John Quincy Adams, was nominated in the old way, but that was the end of presidential nominations by congressional caucus.

Seven Years of Proof.

"I have had seven years of proof that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best medicine to take for coughs and colds and for every diseased condition of throat, chest or lungs," says W. V. Henry, of Panama, Mo. The world has had thirty-eight years of proof that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and colds, lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, bronchitis, hemorrhage of the lungs, and the early stages of consumption. Its timely use always prevents the development of pneumonia. Sold under guarantee at the Owl Drug Store 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

A Little Paint Badly Applied.

The Journal des Debats in an article on "Napoleon on the Stage" tells why the play "L'Homme de Destin" was taken from the stage when its triumph was at the zenith. One evening, according to the story, the emperor, accompanied by his friend Duroc, went in disguise to the Porte St. Martin theater, where the piece was being performed. Eugene Chevalier appearing as the man of destiny. They bought a box, but had hardly entered it when the emperor broke forth in violent execrations against the "fool managers." It seemed that the decorators had left in the box pots of oil and paint, and into these the emperor had stepped. "Wild with rage," says the writer, "he rushed from the house and, to make matters worse, was recognized in the lobby. No paper mentioned the incident, but by order of the emperor the play was never produced again, and Chevalier never appeared again as the man of destiny—and all on account of a little paint badly applied."

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Thoughts from men of affairs upon questions of the Day.

The County Option Law.

they had confidence in his integrity, who would have voted against him had he or the Democratic party declared in favor of the repeal of the county option law without giving it a trial.

Who is demanding its repeal? The most vociferous are those Republicans who want to rebuke Governor Hanly for having forced the measure on the party; but with this sentiment the Democrats have no sympathy and very little concern. Others, and the Democrat confesses that it shares the feeling, harbor a feeling of resentment against the Anti-Saloon League leaders for their unwaranted activity in the interest of Mr. Watson. But if the law should be repealed the Democratic party would be bound by its platform pledge to enact a township and ward option law in its place. This would simply be relieving the Republicans of a burden—and taking upon ourselves an unnecessary responsibility. Who is asking for this and whom will it benefit? The Democratic Editorial Association was the first to declare for local option in addition to the present remonstrance law, and in the resolution adopted by them last February the unit was not specified.

Personally the Democrat believes township option properly safeguarded would be better and more effective than county option; but the Democratic party is not responsible for the present law, has nothing to lose if it should prove expensive and ineffective and has nothing to gain by its immediate repeal. Again we repeat that the vote for Mr. Marshall was no more an expression on the option unit than was the unexpected election of eleven Democratic congressmen in the election of a vast majority of the township trustees in the state.—White County Democrat.

Anyone with a thimble full of brains containing a due proportion of gray matter knows that the over fourteen thousand majority given Mr. Marshall was not a vote for or against county option or township option or any other option unit. The option principle was enacted into law and the option unit removed as a campaign question by Governor Hanly's special session; and many, many thousands of anti-saloon Democrats voted for Mr. Marshall because should be taken entirely out of the realm of politics; an efficient man, and an efficient woman, for it was conceded that the woman's part was quite as important as that of the man should be retained through all changes in politics.

The main thing in the selection of a superintendent should be his previous success in the business in which he had been engaged. If he had been a hotel keeper, or a good farmer, or a good grocery keeper, the chances were he would make a good superintendent but he should not be put into the position merely through sympathy, because he was a failure some place else. It was conceded and insisted upon that his first duty is to the inmates, rather than to the farm.

If he can do his duty by them and run the farm so as to make it pay, well and good; but as he is not placed there primarily to run a farm, but to make a home in every sense of the word for the unfortunate men and women who are confined to his care.

In order to do this the law provides that he shall be supplied with help sufficient to do it with and the county must pay for it.

Great stress was laid upon the importance of keeping the records of every inmate; thereby one gets rid of the vagrants who tramp from county to county and some inmates have been enabled to come into possession of inheritance of which otherwise they would have been deprived.

The County Superintendent should see that he has the record so far as possible of every inmate. It was argued that every County Home be provided with an infirmary where the sick and aged can be made comfortable; and if necessary a nurse should be employed, that coming under the provision of the law which says sufficient help should be provided.

Good beds with springs should be furnished this hospital, and the same care bestowed upon the inmates, as if they were in their own homes.

I visited the St. Joseph infirmary in South Bend and to say that I was delighted, but expresses my feeling mildly.

It has been tested that the best way to strengthen the work is by kindness.

We link the names of Charities and Corrections together because those who are wicked are weak, either morally or mentally.

As County Boards, we are interested in the County Asylums, County Jails, Children's Homes, the placing of dependent children, and Juvenile Courts, and I have tried to glean the best thoughts in reference to these subjects, and place them before you as connectedly as possible.

The prevailing sentiment in regard to the County Superintendent of the Poor Farm was that his appointment

There were 98 inmates just on the same order as we find in our Patman

County institution. Many more men than women. There were eight insane men in a separate building, with a constant attendant.

Mr. Pifer has ever provided a barber's chair, and requires the men to be shaved once a week. One of the inmates acting as barber.

In one large room the clothing is kept. Each having his separate compartment. There is also a room for bedding supplies. Flowers were in many rooms. The most affectionate relation seemed to exist between the matron and the sick old women.

I thought of our own home and longed to introduce at least a few of those improvements.

One thing I hope we will bear in mind, and be prepared to act upon. Within a month the epileptic hospital at New Castle will have accommodations for 25 more inmates. These must be men, as they are not yet prepared to care for women; but those from the County Homes have the first opportunity, and I think we should put in our application at once, for some of our epileptics.

One of the best papers presented on the subject of County Jails was by Senator Slack of Johnson County. His thought was the result of much study, and personal examination.

There was a strong feeling of disapproval of our jail system, evidenced in the convention.

Senator Slack urged promptness in bringing to trial those accused of crime. The injustice of detaining in jail those accused of violating the law for weeks and sometimes for months without giving them even a chance to prove their innocence, if innocent, or if guilty bringing them to conviction speedily, and relieving the county of the expense of their maintenance was strongly denounced.

The folly of keeping men and boys in the county jail in idleness, squirting tobacco juice, handling greasy cards, exchanging filthy jokes and reading cheap J. E. L. literature while the county pays for their board at the rate of 25 cent per day, was held up to ridicule.

Many commit minor offenses for the sake of being cared for through the winter; there is something wrong with the system of laws which permits such things, and we are yet far from the ideal.

These men and boys should be put to work and kept at work for the benefit of the county.

It was brought out in the discussion that in some counties this is done, the prisoners being taken out every day and put to work on the county roads. Senator Slack advocated a county workhouse; or if the county is unable to support one alone, let several counties unite and build a district workhouse.

The boys should be kept away from those hardened in crime. Bathing facilities should be amply provided, cleanliness is next to Godliness; and the man who is clean feels himself at least on the road to respectability.

The St. Joseph county jail as well as the workhouse, is a model for other counties to imitate. The boys are on the first floor, the men on the second, the women on the third. There is a bathroom on each floor for the prisoners, beside those for the sheriff and the prison matron. The jail is some hundred feet in depth, the cells in the center of the building with long corridors extending around them furnished with large windows, which afford light and air, while the prisoners have the length of the inside corridor for exercise.

I was told this jail cost $40,000 and our county paid the same amount for our little cramped pile of brick with not a single convenience. We had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Selon of Louisville, Ky., who is at the head of the children's work in Kentucky, and Mr. Hart, the national superintendent of the Child Saving department, upon the subject of the best methods of dealing with dependent children. The old method was to place them in asylums and let the county or state care for them until they were able to care for themselves and then let them out to shift for themselves. But more and more that method is being abandoned, and more and more are those who have studied the subject coming to the belief that the home is the best place for the all round development of the child.

So the county homes where children are kept and educated are being displaced by the temporary home where children are cared for only until a permanent home in a family has been secured; and for this purpose state officers are constantly at work.

The Westfield home, which is kept up by private donations, was established fifteen years ago. In that time homes have been found for 1,400

and more than one per cent have gone wrong. Mr. and Mrs. Haynes are in charge of this home. Mr. Haynes is the candidate for Probation president, and Mrs. Haynes is a sister of Mrs. Jesse Weik of our town. I was glad to learn that the twelve of fourteen children who have been placed there by our present Board of Children's Guardians, have all but one found good homes.

Mr. Hart, the national superintendent, reported that 33,000 children had been placed in homes since the National work had been established twenty-five years ago. This work was organized by Mr. Van Arsdel of Cincinnati, a cousin of our Greencastle Mr. Van Arsdel.

One point made by Mr. Selon was that while little children should be placed in some homes if possible, in every community there should be a public home where girls between the ages of 12 and 15 could be detained in the care of a kind, motherly woman until their morals were strengthened, and they had been trained industrially, so that they could care for themselves.

This he thought a crying need in most every community. Adult probation and the juvenile court were discussed and ardently supported.

Many instances were cited showing that individuals had never violated the law the second time after being placed on probation for the first offense.

One instance was told of a man who was committed to the penitentiary for having helped himself, while drunk, to about 35 cents worth of corn with which to feed his horse. He endured all the ignominy of a vile criminal, his reputation was ruined and when he came out of the penitentiary he was unable to secure employment with this stigma upon him. All for so slight an offense for the first time.

Entire privacy was advocated for the juvenile court. The newspapers should not be allowed to send their emisaries there, for the purpose of advertising the delinquencies of youth.

Mr. Whitaker of the Jeffersonville reformatory made a stirring speech for temperance and county local option. "You have a club with which to down crime," he said, "use it." His testimony for temperance is valuable. He said there were but few of the 3,000 young men whose ages averaged under 20 years, under his care, who come from the dry counties, only one or two now and then.

Senator Slack urged free clubs for young men and young women. Places where interesting and innocent amusements are furnished free of charge. I thought that one of the best suggestions made for young people. The gem of the convention from a literary standpoint was given by Mrs. Bacon of Evansville. Mrs. Bacon belongs to a literary family. Her sister is the author of the charming and wholesome Little Colonel series. Mrs. Bacon herself is the editor of a publication called, "The Charities." She has a charming personality and face that glows, and sparkles and saddens with the intense earnestness she feels in her subject which was, "the housing of the poor."

These men and boys should be put to work and kept at work for the benefit of the county.

It was brought out in the discussion that in some counties this is done, the prisoners being taken out every day and put to work on the county roads. Senator Slack advocated a county workhouse; or if the county is unable to support one alone, let several counties unite and build a district workhouse.

The boys should be kept away from those hardened in crime. Bathing facilities should be amply provided, cleanliness is next to Godliness; and the man who is clean feels himself at least on the road to respectability.

Many commit minor offenses for the sake of being cared for through the winter; there is something wrong with the system of laws which permits such things, and we are yet far from the ideal.

SEASON WAS A SUCCESS

METHODISTS SCORED 103 POINTS
TO OPPONENTS SEVENTY EIGHT.

WON FOUR OF SEVEN GAMES

Having lost only three games out of the seven played this season and all of these being against schools which have athletic records better than DePauw, the Methodist football season may be considered a success. During the season only seventy-eight points were scored against our molen-skinned artists, while the old gold representatives tallied 103 counts against the opponents.

When asked for an expression Coach Brown said that he was of course not satisfied because we did not defeat Wabash but that taken all in all the season was as successful as any of the Indiana schools. He said that Indiana's season might be considered a failure because the State school lost all her games but one. Purdue lost to Indiana, Illinois and Chicago, but took the smaller games. Wabash was certainly unsuccessful because she lost against the larger schools and even to those of secondary class. Rose Polytechnic trimmed the crimson and the Miami aggregation won against the Little Giants. Rose Polytechnic's season might be considered successful because she beat Wabash but Earlham and Franklin lost outright.

Captain Jackson is fairly pleased with the results of the season but of course would have been more enthusiastic if his eleven could have defeated Wabash. On the whole he is satisfied because no school in the secondary conference took games from us. "We took all of our home games and were not beaten by schools of our class. Our defeats came from schools which have a better standing in athletics," he said, "and all in all believe that we did well."

The season was also a financial success because of the fact that the deficit is smaller than it has been for several years. There is an incumbrance of some $25 for the season and this is unusually small.

The results for the season are:

	DePauw	Opponents
Franklin	20	0
Indiana	0	16
Georgetown	44	6
Illinois Normal	29	16
Earlham	10	0
Purdue	0	28
Wabash	0	12
Totals	103	78

The Uses of Adversity.

"Grogan," said the head of the department store, eying him sharply, "you've quit drinking, haven't you?" "Yes, sir," answered the red headed Hibernian who worked in the packing department. "I haven't taken a drinkin' av anything stronger th'n leed tay fr three months."

"I am glad to hear it, Grogan. I'll make it an object to you to stay quit. But how did you break yourself of the habit?"

"Be hittin' me thumb nail wid a hammer whin' I was packin' a box o' goods."

"I don't see how that could cure you."

"Well, Misster Barker, it was this way. If I'd been sober, d'yeh moud, I'd never have done it, but I wasn't. Whil I whacked my thumb instead av the nail I was thryin' to driv it made a black spot at the root av me thumb nail."

"I says to meself: 'Grogan, I'll punish ye fr that. Ye shan't have a drinkin' av another beer 'whusky until that black spot has gone!'

"Well, sor, it was two months before it had growed out to the end o' me thumb nail! I end cut it off, an' be that time I'd lost all me appetite fr beer an' whusky."

"Thin I says to meself: 'Grogan, I'll reward ye fr that. Ye're a sober man now, an' ye'll stay sober.' That's the whole story, sor."—Youth's Companion.

The Russian Joke Teller.

Story telling and jesting have always been counted the favorite amusements of semi-barbaric people. To the first we owe the "Arabian Nights" and to the second the clowns, who were formerly the appendage of all great houses. In Russia the paid joker still flourishes, and the people pay so much an hour to listen to his jokes and witticisms. He provides himself with two or three hundred tickets, and, mounting a sort of rostrum, he announces that he is going to regale his audience with choice tidbits of mirth provoking lore. He begins selling tickets at a penny each, and when he has sold enough to warrant his beginning he turns himself loose, and the audience remains spellbound by his humorous stories for an hour or two. A recent traveler who saw a number of these Jokers in St. Petersburg says, "I listened to them several times, and, although I could not understand one word the joker said, I was sure from the way the audience greeted his stories with roars of laughter that the jokes were above the average."

STARTS ON SCHEDULE M. A. C. TAKES 1ST HONORS

MANAGER FRED WALLACE HAS SLATED BASKETBALL GAMES EARLY.

THE LIST NOT COMPLETE YET

Although the slate is not complete as yet Manager Fred Wallace has arranged a partial basketball schedule. It is probable that the contracts will be in within a week or two and until then none of the games already booked will be published.

As yet no definite action has been taken concerning a hall in which to play. Indications are that the games will be played in the opera house and the practices will probably be held in the skating rink. Providing a hall is secured by December 1 practice will begin on that date, or as soon after as the hall may be secured.

Coach Brown and Captain Grady both expressed themselves as being hopeful of a strong team this year. Three of last year's team will be out for the beginning of practice, and with the addition of the strong second team men of last year and several good freshmen there should be no difficulty in choosing a much stronger team than that of last year.

SMOKING SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED ON CAMPUS

Professor Kleinsmid Expresses His Views Concerning the Present Practices.

In a chapel talk to the academy students recently Professor Kleinsmid said that smoking should be prohibited on the campus. He stated that as a matter of fact it was against the rules to smoke on the university grounds, but that the rules no longer prevailed. "The sentiment of the school is against the practice," said the professor, "and you as students should use your influence to stop it."

When questioned concerning what action the faculty might take in the matter Professor Kleinsmid said that the university did not feel inclined to absolutely prohibit the practice because it was the opinion that the student influence would finally result in wiping it out.

"DER DEUTSCHE BUND" HOLDS MONTHLY MEETING

The Lorelei and Mephistopheles Quartettes Sing as Feature of The Program.

The German Society, "Der Deutsche Bund" held their regular monthly meeting at the Alpha Phi house last night. A feature of the evening was songs by the Lorelei and Mephistopheles quartettes. The following program was carried out:

Translation of President's Thanksgiving Proclamation, Herr Koehler.

"What's the Matter With the German Emperor?" Fraulein Wedekind.

Thanksgiving Story.

Conundrums, Fraulein Walker and Fraulein Stingley.

A Talk, Professor Norris.

Gathered Him In.

"You look very much excited, dear," he said when she entered the parlor where he was waiting for her.

"Well, I should think I ought to look excited," she answered. "I've just had the most awful argument with ma. And she began to weep hysterically."

"Why, what is the matter, my darling?" he inquired as he slid an arm around her waist and endeavored to soothe her. "What was the argument?"

"Oh, how can I tell you? She said you were only trifling with me and that you would never propose, and I told her she did you a great injustice, for I believed that you would propose tonight. She said you wouldn't, and I said you would, and we had it hot and heavy. Dear George, you will not let me triumph over me, will you?"

"Oh—why, certainly not," answered George.

"I knew it, my darling," the dear girl exclaimed; "come, let us go to ma and tell her how much mistaken she was."

And they did, and ma didn't seem to be very much broken down over the affair, after all.

THE GROUND SPOILS COUNT

DEPAUW MIGHT HAVE HAD SAFETY AGAINST WABASH TEAM.

AGREEMENT MADE BEFORE GAME

Had it not been for ground rules DePauw would have scored two points against the Crimson team at Crawfordsville, Friday. Much wonder was expressed by the DePauw rooters over the decision of the referee in not allowing the Old Gold credit for a safety in the last half of the game, but it has since been found that Eckersall as referee had announced to both teams before the game that the territory back of the goal posts would not be used in case of punts or kicks on account of the roughness of the ground. The point of question arose in the last half when Overman tried at a field goal. The kick went wide and Hawkins the Wabash quarter touched the oval but could not catch it before it rolled back of the goal line where the player downed it. Ordinarily this would have meant a safety for DePauw as the ball crossed the line by the impetus of the play of the defenders of the opposite goal but ground rules allowed a shut out for the Little Giants as a result.

CARNEGIE FOR REDUCTION

Steel Magnate Says Tariff For Protection Has Had its Day and Must Now be For Revenue.

NO MORE DUTY ON STEEL

An article from Andrew Carnegie, dealing with the tariff will appear in the forthcoming December number of the Century Magazine, in which the ironmaster takes the position that "infant industries" no longer need protection, that the steel and other industries have grown beyond the need of tariff protection; that duties on luxuries used by the rich should be maintained, but that those on manufactured articles should be reduced greatly, or abolished entirely, when no longer needed.

"We have already become by far the greatest of all manufacturing nations. Our 'infant industries' of the past have reached maturity and, speaking generally, are now quite able to protect themselves. The pulling infant in the nurse's arms that Congress, in 1871, nursed so tenderly will appear next year before its guardian as the stalwart champion who has conquered in many fields, thus proving himself worthy of the protection bestowed upon him in his youth, and fully vindicating the protective policy pursued."

"While the tariff as a whole, even today, has ceased to be primarily beneficial as a measure of protection, it has become of vast importance from the standpoint of revenue, and it is to this feature I bespeak the special attention of readers of all parties, for duties upon imports, not for protection, but for needed revenue, should not become a party question. Reasonable men of all parties may be expected to approve this plan of obtaining revenue."

"The next Congress dealing with the tariff will probably be inclined at first to reduce duties all around and perhaps to abolish some, but its first care should be to maintain present duties, and even in some cases to increase them, upon all articles used almost exclusively by the rich, and this not for protection but for revenue, not drawn from the workers, but from the rich."

"That is the first and prime duty of Congress. We should not forget that Government expenditures have increased enormously in recent years and that additional revenue is required."

"Its second duty is to reduce duties greatly upon manufactured articles and to abolish entirely those no longer needed."

"The writer has co-operated in making several reductions as steel manufacturers became able to bear reductions. Today they need no protection, unless, perhaps in some new specialties unknown to the writer, because steel is now produced cheaper here than anywhere else, notwithstanding the higher wages paid per man. Not a ton of steel is produced in the world at as small an outlay for labor as in our country. Our coke, coal and iron ore are much cheaper, because more easily obtained and transported, and our output per man is so much greater, owing chiefly to the large standardized orders obtainable only upon our continent, the specialized rolling mills, machinery kept weeks upon uniform shapes without change of rolls and several other advantages."

"The day has passed when any foreign country can seriously affect our steel manufacturers, tariff or no tariff. The Republic has become the home of steel, and this is the age of steel. It may probably be found that there exists the small manufacturer of some specialty in steel which still needs a measure of protection."
