

F. C. BEEBE RESIGNS AS SECRETARY

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HEAD
WHO CAME TO GREENCASTLE
FROM TEXAS, WILL GO INTO PUBLICITY WORK FOR "ROUND UP" COMPANY. LEAVES TUES-DAY FOR DANVILLE, ILLS.

F. C. Beebe, who came to Greencastle from Texas a few weeks ago to accept the position as secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, on Monday night handed his resignation to C. C.
Gillen, president of the Chamber of Commerce. The resignation was accepted.

Mr. Beebe, who previously has been interested in the promotion of "Round Up" events left Tuesday afternoon for Danville, Illinois where he will look after the publicity of a "Round Up", to be held there June 9 to 12. Later he will do publicity work for a round up performance to be given in Chicago and then will return to Texas.

As yet the Chamber of Commerce has done nothing toward securing a new secretary.

"BUSTER" ABRAMS SENT TO THE COUNTY HOUSE

"Buster" Abrams, a feeble minded man, who has frequented the streets of Greencastle for the past year or so was this morning sent to the County House by Judge James P. Hughes.
Abrams is disgusting in his appearance and it is a disgrace to the community to allow him to frequent the streets. The action of Judge Hughes in ridding the community of this character should be heartily approved by the citizens.

PUTNAM COUNTY GETS ONE OF ITS NEW ROAD TRUCKS

One of the new 3 1/2 ton trucks, recently purchased by Putnam County, has been used in road repair work. It was delivered to County Road Superintendent Dora Sweet and is being used in the road repair work.

STANDARD OIL START WORK ON NEW FILLING STATION BUILD- ING HERE

Work on the filling station to be erected by the Standard Oil Co., on the lot recently purchased at the corner of Indiana and Walnut streets, was started on Tuesday morning. Green Park has the contract for the excavation and foundation work.

James W. Wright of Marion Township is critically ill of kidney disease.

William Burris of Cloverdale has purchased a new Buick touring car of the Greencastle Buick Agency.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

(By Eldon C. Hill)

Twenty four scouts reported for the first regular drill of the troop held Monday afternoon at 4:30 O'clock. A drill was held on Friday afternoon of last week but it was for forming squads and instructing the scouts about drilling.

The troops will be divided into four squads. Three of these squads were present so Mr. Friend took charge of number one and Mr. Stephens numbers two and three. These two men are very efficient drillmasters.

The next drill will be held Tuesday
and each scout is urged to be present in uniform. The troop will hold three or four drills a week.

The scouts aided Marshall O'Hair
in policing the downtown streets Monday during the speech of General
Wood which is a part of their duty.

The four best drillers in troop number one will be the four patrol leaders of troop number two. It should be remembered each scout is to try very hard in this work.

All scouts are urged to wear their uniforms to the next troop meeting to be held Wednesday evening at 7 O'clock.
There will be a special program.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

With the weather getting better and the prospects of some good track meets with neighboring schools in the near future the high school track men will practice each evening on McKean field. Coach Smith and coach Ed. Wright have charge of the squad and they expect some blue ribbon contenders for G. H. S. in the meets.

Th tickets for the Princess Chrysanthemum operetta which will be given by the girl's chorus of the school under the direction of Mrs. George Christie are selling rapidly. A matinee performance will be given in the afternoon.

William O'Daniels of Cloverdale entered the school to finish some needed credits for his diploma from the Cloverdale High School.

"It Pays To Advertise" the senior class play which the upperclassmen are going to present on Friday night
May 27 promises to be one of the best amateur play productions ever given in Greencastle. The play is not a new play but because of its great name as a high school senior play, it was chosen by Miss Lela Walls who is coaching the production.

On May 8th Greencastle and Roach-dale will compete in a track meet on McKean field. Th state district meet for this district will be held here on May 15th.

Miss Belle Painter of Darlington is visiting the school. Miss Painter taught in the Mace, Ind. High School this winter.

NEWLYWEDS FOR A THOUSAND MILE HIKE

Shank's mare instead of automobile for dusky bride and groom

Though railway trains and rice-cooking to workers for the Inter-
and-shoe-throwing friends are no church lady in the picture are bride and groom bridgemen just setting out on a thousand mile honeymoon—about.

Both were members of a caravan, bound from the west coast of Africa to the interior, which meant stopped at a Methodist mission conducted by an American, Dr. Schools, John M. Spinger. The young man man and girl, born slaves, had been sionaries as a missionary to his people.

somewhat Grim Humor.

Bozenan Bulger at the Dutch Treat
club the other day told a story illustrating the irrepressible humor of the Americans in the war. In one of the final engagements when the Canadians retook Mons and the Canadians and Americans fought side by side, the artillery was rolling a barrage at the enemy.

Every so often the Germans were dodging under it and scurrying to ward their enemies to surrender. A bunch of some thirty-five attempted this trick but the barrage backed up 50 yards instead of advancing, caught the fugitives and wiped them out, all except one man.

He flung himself into an American trench at the feet of a big American.
This chap looked him over and sang out:
"Why, you lucky son of a gun!"
then stuck a bayonet through him.—
New York Times.

Twice as Sore.

At a recent club entertainment and mission fee of 50 cents was charged.
The entertainment, to some minds, was not worth the price and several women were not backward in saying so.

"It made me mighty sore to be charged 50 cents for that performance,"
one objector said.

"Oh, you got off easy," remarked another. "I understand the chairman of the affair wanted to charge $1 admission."

"In that event I would have been just twice as sore," the original Lady Peevish shot back.

Another Matter.

With pride in her face, Mrs. Styles faced her husband.

"Don't you think this new hat improves my looks, dear?"

"I suppose so," grunted the man, surlily.

"But what makes you look so cross,
dear?" asked the woman, anxiously.

"I'm thinking of the bill for that hat," retorted Mr. Styles. "You can't expect that to improve my looks."—

What's the Use?

Wife:—Hub, do you know what day
this is?

Hubby (a funny paper addict):—Sure thing, precious. It is the anniversary of our marriage.

nothing of the kind, you callous brute!
I just knew you weren't keeping track of it!—Cartoons Magazine.

JUST WRITE TO YOUR RATS

Strangest Among the Many Remedies
Recommended for Exterminating
the Pest.

Rats are a great plague, and just now
we are suffering from them to an unusual degree. They are difficult, indeed, to get rid of.

Poison has its disadvantages, observes a writer in London Answers. A large monastery near Budapest once had to be deserted for months because a rat catcher had poisoned all the rats,
and the stench of the dead bodies was intolerable. The best trap is said to be a barrel half full of water, the top covered in, and provided with a trap door that shuts itself again as soon as a rat has fallen through. (This door
should be fastened and the trap well baited for several nights before catching actually begins.)

To drive rats out of a place, as apart
from destroying them, several plans have been tried. One is to blow a bugle often and loudly in the places they are in the habit of frequenting.

Another is to catch a rat alive, tie
him all over, or hang a small bell around his neck and let him loose
again; it is said that this will frighten his brethren out of the place. The most curious way of getting rid of rats perhaps is the old plan of writing them a letter, which must be in rhyme, warning them to go and placing it in their hands.

The present writer has heard of a case when this is said to have proved successful.

STOPPED TO GREET TEACHER

Of Course General Pershing Had to See Who This Was, From His Home Town.

Miss Lois Tracy, daughter of Dr.
and Mrs. F. L. Tracy of Anderson, former residents of Laclede, Mo., the boyhood home of Gen. John Pershing, is teaching school at Seattle, Wash.
During the recent visit of General Pershing to Seattle pupils of Miss Tracy prepared a banner and placed it in front of their school building for the notice of General Pershing, who was to pass that building. The quick eye of the general caught the banner, reading, "Our Teacher Is From Your Home Town."

The general stopped his automobile
and the pupils cheered.

"Where's the teacher?" inquired General Pershing.

Miss Tracy appeared, shook hands
with General Pershing, who recalled
her father as one of his schoolmates
and after a three-minute conversation drove on.

The American Boy.

Seven-year-old Joseph McKee of Virginia county has begun to have some doubt as to the existence of a Santa Claus.
So on Christmas eve he announced his intention of sitting up and waiting for him. When told that if he was seen Santa would not leave him anything, he declared that he would hide.

"But he would see that there was no one in your bed," protested his mother.
"and then he would think there wasn't any boy here and take your things or to some other little boy."

For a few minutes he sat thinking.
Then a queer little smile came on his face. "Mother," he asked impudently,
"can't I make a dummy and put it in my bed, and then hide behind the davenport in the living room to watch?"

Brigand Met His Match.

A certain English financial journal which had a short life, published in one of its issues a most sensible but at the same time nonactionable and amusing stricture on a member of the stock exchange who had a somewhat shady reputation. The subject of the stricture had a double-barreled name, which we will call Jones-Smithson, and the paragraph about him was as follows:

"We understand that Mr. Jones Smithson has been spending his holdings among the Italian lakes. Last week he was attacked by a brigand and in the course of the encounter the brigand lost his watch and chain."

The Human Dud.

While he was making his way about his platoon one dark night a sergeant heard the rear of a "G. I. Can" overhead, and dived into a shell hole. It was already occupied by a private,
who was hit full in the wind by the non-com's head. A moment's silence—
a long, deep breath, and then:

"Good Lord, is that you, Sergeant?"

"That's me."

"Thank heaven! I was just waiting for you to re-appear!"—The American Legion Weekly.

His Prestige Gone.

"Rattle-snake Bill" is strangely altered. What's the trouble?

"Bill says if he had known what was before him when he went into the movies he would have stuck to train robbing and kept his self-respect. In the old days no man ever talked to him the way the director does and lived to tell the tale."—Birmingham

CAN WOMEN SEE STRAIGHT?

If You Ask Them to Hang a Picture
You Will Get the Answer, Declares a Writer.

There were two little groups of three buttons on a certain woman's coat.
Four of the appendages became detached, so that she had to stitch them
on again, and when the job was finished she held up the garment and hesi-
tantly asked if the rows of buttons were quite straight. They were not.
They were about as straight as an ice cream cone in the sun remains pyra-midical, and when the buttons were cut off and reattached by another woman's matters were obviously worse instead of better.

The incident goes to prove that there is something in the assertion made by some folk to the effect that women are naturally endowed with crooked lines of vision, London Answers states. It may be true or it may not, but there is certainly a big army of women who cannot develop "a straight eye" for doing various things, no matter how hard they try. It does not call for much thinking to show evidence of this.

If you go to any sports where there is ball throwing, ring throwing, shooting at a mark and such like tests of "straight eye" skill, you will find that women are far less successful than men. Shown with coconut shies and similar things vastly prefer lady customers to men, because they take it as a matter of course that at least 95 percent of the former are "crooked eyed."

If a more homely illustration is required just watch a woman cutting a few slices of bread and mark how the loaf gradually becomes like a sloping hillside. There are dozens of women who have tried all their lives to cut loaves level and who still confess their inability to do so, "because they haven't a straight eye."

So, too, with picture hanging. A woman may hang a single picture straightly on a wall, but give her a dozen to hang in line and watch the result.

Well, it is an absolute fact that the majority of women walk very crooked-ly. If they are told to walk in a straight line for twenty yards and a guiding mark is made between the starting point and the goal the difference between the straight line and the actual walk will be found most illuminating.

Scotch Wit.

It is said that Mr. Asquith has only once been known to laugh outright when on a public platform. According to the Baltimore American, that occasion was at a political meeting in Scotland. The premier was constantly having interrupted, and one of the chief hooligans was a farmer who wore a large straw hat. Suddenly from some one in the hall came a very personal remark concerning Mrs. Asquith.

"Who said that?" demanded Mr. Asquith quickly.

There was a sudden silence. Then a man in the audience stood up and pointing to the farmer with the straw hat,
shouted:

"It was him wif the coo's breakfast
on his head!"

The reply was altogether too much for Mr. Asquith, and he had to join in the general roar of laughter.

Experiment With Wild Geese.

A familiar harbinger of spring in portions of the eastern United States is the passage northward, flying high overhead, of honking flocks of wild geese. These Canadian wild geese are supposed to hatch their young beyond the Arctic circle, but they migrate to warmer southern regions to spend the winter. One of the most interesting experiments in changing animals to new homes is that of a New Zealand society in introducing these geese to the southern hemisphere. From a beginning a few years ago with 12 pairs of birds, a flock of 300 has been developed, and fresh blood has been lately added by a new importation of 10 pairs.

Unapproachable Fishing.

The angler tackled the manager of the country hotel angrily.

"What do you mean by luring visitors here with the promise of fine fishing?" he said. "There isn't a bit of fishing here. Every brook has a sign warning people off."

"I didn't say anything about fine fishing, sir," said the manager calmly. "If you will kindly read my advertisement again with more care you will see that what I said was 'Fishing unapproachable.'"

Reforming.

John Taylor, principal director at Camp Sullivan (Military park), last fall gave some of the boys horseshoes
to play on the horseshoe court.

On returning the shoes, one of the boys said to Mr. Taylor: "Thank you."
"Hully gee," remarked the boy's companion. "You must have reformed. I never heard you say 'thank you' to your mother."—Indianapolis News.

THINGS THAT COUNT.

Not what we have but what we use; Not what we dream but what we do—These are the things that make or break. The sun of human happiness.

The things near by, not things afar; Not what we seem but what we are—These are the things that make or break. That give the heart its joy or ache.

Not what seems fair but what is true; Not what we dream but what we do—These are the things that shine like gems. Like stars in fortune's diadem.

Not as we take but as we give; Not as we take but as we live—These are the things that make for peace. Both now and after time shall cease.—The Outlook.

MADE HIS ESCAPE QUICKLY

Her First Husband's Time of Tribulation So Short as to Be Hardly Worth Mentioning.

The marriage registrar called "Come in!" and they came in. They consisted of 95 per cent woman to 5 per cent man, and the registrar's heart was smitten with pity.

"We want to get married, if you please!" said the small man behind the large but-ton-hole. The registrar gave a side glance at the portly dimensions of the would-be bride.

"Have you ever been married before?" he asked the very small man. "No, sir," replied the little fellow, in a hopeful voice.

"And you, madam?" inquired the registrar, "is this also your first venture?" "Well, not exactly," answered the dame. "You see, my first husband jumped off the roof after we'd been married only two days, so he really isn't worth mentioning."—London Tit-Bits.

More Odd Names.

The roll call of odd names that was published in a recent number of the Companion has prompted a subscriber to send us a few additional oddities that have happened to come to his notice.

John Spittler, he says, was a tobaccoist; A. W. Soper was a barber, and P. Kornman of course was a chiropodist. On the other hand, the Clay Real Estate company did not limit its activities to one variety of soil, but dealt impartially in all, while Professor Fidler, although a music teacher, made the voice and not the violin his specialty. Mrs. Toothache, whom fate appeared to have marked for a profession of dentistry, completely missed her vocation by becoming a dressmaker; nor was Mr. Drinkwater a teetotaler.—Youth's Companion.

Most Illustrious Corpse.

The Dorset (England) village of Worth Matravers, which is to be sold by auction, has few claims to fame. The most illustrious corpse in its churchyard seems to be that of one Benjamin Jesty, who died in 1816, and who was the first person who introduced the cow-pox by inoculation, and who from his great strength of mind made the experiment from the cow on his wife and two sons in the year 1774. Most readers will agree with Sir Frederick Treves's comment that "the epitaph says nothing of the greater strength of mind shown by the wife and two sons in submitting themselves to this hazard, nor how it came to pass that the iron-minded Benjamin did not first try the experiment upon himself."

ITS PURPOSE.

While waiting for his train the young man amused himself with the various slot machines. At last he came to one which did not respond to the penny he deposited.

"Look here!" he said to a porter who was standing by. "I've tried my strength on one machine and I've tried my weight on another, but what's this apparatus? I've put in a penny and got nothing."

"Oh," responded the porter, "that's to try your temper."—Boston Transcript.

Esperanto Bible.

Esperantists will learn with interest that the unpublished MS. of the late Dr. L. L. Zamenhof's translation from the Hebrew into Esperanto has been successfully transferred from Warsaw to England, and that it is to be published jointly by the British and Foreign society and the National Bible society of Scotland. For some years the new testament has been available, thanks to the labors of the Rev. J. Cyprian Rust (Soham, Cambridgeshire), and the same Esperanto expert is at the head of the revision committee which has undertaken the reading over of the Old Testament.

ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

Theatrical Critic May Have Meant Well by His Advice, but Some Will Doubt It.

The stage manager was often at his wits' end to know what to do with an amateur dramatic critic who regularly attended the theater and kept up a running conversation in a loud voice about the merits or demerits of the plays he saw.

The piece was a thrilling melodrama of the old school when the critic happened to be there one night. The hero—an understudy—was slender and short; the lovely heroine tall and stout.

"Marry that man!" shouted the villain to the princess, and pointing to the hero, "and I'll ruin you both!" The heroine then screams and falls into the arms of the hero, who is expected to carry her out. But on this occasion the slender hero, doubting his fitness for the task before him, hesitated.

"All right, mister," yelled the critic. "Just take what you can, and come back for the rest!"

Some cows actually disgraced their home and reputation by going home the other night just like a pack of old boozers. The truth of this statement is affirmed by a farmer in England, and is related in one of the leading London dailies. One day the farmer's cows broke into an orchard where large heaps of fermenting cider apples lay upon the ground awaiting removal. Evidently the cows were fascinated and ate considerable quantities.

The result was that when the farmer sent his boy to bring the cows home for milking they were all prostrate on the ground. After an effort they struggled to their feet, tottered across the orchard, only to fall in the ditch like intoxicated human beings. For a couple of days they remained quite helpless, and no milk was forthcoming. Later, however, they completely recovered.

Origin of Navel Orange.

The navel orange originated in Brazil and was introduced into the United States in 1870 by William Saunders of the United States department of agriculture at Washington. It was distributed by him to the orange growing section of this country and was often spoken of as the "Washington navel orange." Its peculiar formation, which gives the fruit its name, is due to the development of a secondary axis, with more or less cells, in the center of the fruit; the fact that it is practically seedless, combined with its sprightly flavor, has made this variety of orange popular, and it is largely grown in southern California and increasingly in Florida. The trees are propagated by cutting and by budding or grafting other stocks.

SHE HAD FORGOTTEN.

"Mother, wasn't that a funny dream I had last night?" said a little boy who was busily engaged with his breakfast cereal. "Why, I'm sure I don't know," replied his mother. "I haven't the slightest idea what your dream was about."

"Why, mother, of course you know!" said the boy reproachfully. "You were in it."—Youth's Companion.

NAMED AFTER ENGLISH CITIES

Boston and Lynn, Massachusetts, Are Neighbors Here as They Are Across the Water.

The oldest place bearing the name Lynn is Lynn Regis, or King's Lynn, to give the English meaning of the Latin word "regis." It is a town of about 20,000 inhabitants still possessing considerable commerce but a place of importance three centuries and more ago, when it was often visited by kings. It is a seaport of Norfolk county, England, situated on the Great Ouse river not far from the Wash, which is a great bay indenting the east coast of England. Lynn Regis is near the south side of the Wash and directly across the Wash is the ancient city of Boston.

In early colonial times a settlement sprang up near Boston, Mass., to which was given the Indian name, Saugus. In 1636 a minister named Samuel Whiting came to Saugus, and from that time until his death in 1679 he was the pastor of the congregation. He was born and brought up in Lynn Regis, Norfolk, England, and a year after his arrival at Saugus the name of the settlement was changed to Lynn in honor of the pastor's birthplace. And so Boston in the New World came to have a Lynn as a neighbor, just as ancient Boston in England has Lynn Regis a neighbor across the waters of the Wash.

INTELLIGENCE OF HIGH ORDER

Remarkable Stories of Sagacity Shown by Animals in Connection With the Great War.

The high intelligence of horses was superbly demonstrated during the war, and some day a lover of the horse will collate the many wonderful incidents in which he played a leading part. One of these will be the vagaries of a Canadian general's thoroughbred, which again and again refused to budge to the spur at times when there was apparently no evidence of the slightest danger.

Twice he saved his master's life by deliberate acts of insubordination. The latest yarn about a pony that had a race-track reputation is worth repeating in this connection. Every morning its owner brought this pony into the dining room of the house in which the narrator was billeted, and led him round the table.

The pony was offered all sorts of dainties, but he would only touch slices of bread and butter, of which he was inordinately fond. It was not a big room, and there was not much space between the wall and the table, so if he had shown any restlessness the table and all that was on it must have been demolished. He, however, behaved always with the manners of a retriever dog, and only the slices of bread and butter had to be replenished.

Helgoland Dismantled. A dispatch from Berlin to the Associated Press states that the Helgoland defenses are today dismantled. The island and its thousands of tons of masonry and gun emplacements is all that remains of this once most formidable fortress. With the guns dismantled, the destruction of the military harbor works and various fortifications has proceeded. Although this stronghold cost over 175 million dollars, its guns were fired but once throughout the war, when the British warship Shannon was the target. The allies recognized that it would have been impossible to silence its batteries. The artificial harbor works and the ground on which the barracks stand are to be removed and the site returned to the sea.—Scientific American.

Japanese Celluloid Industry.

The celluloid industry in Japan is of recent development, having barely passed a decade since it was started in Sakai. Today there are three factories producing celluloid sheets on a large scale. The export in 1917 was 3,067,505 pounds, valued at $2,555,204. The small increase in 1918 was not due to a decrease in the demand but to a decrease in the production of camphor, both in Japan proper and Formosa. The governor general of Formosa has made investigation of the matter of increasing the production of camphor, and it was recently announced to the celluloid manufacturers that the supply would increase by about 4,000,000 pounds for the next fiscal year.—New York Times.

PROUD DOLLAR AT 40 CENTS

In the Days Following the Civil War the Coin Fell Considerably Below Par.

Time was when the United States dollar, today worth $1.17 in Canadian money, could be picked up in Canada for 40 cents. Those were the far-off days of the Civil war, when the United States was being bled white by fratricidal strife.

During a considerable portion of the period between 1861 and 1865 the United States dollar brought 50 cents and even 40 cents. At one time things looked so black for the North that in Quebec the American greenback fell to 40 cents, whereas the Confederate dollar brought 35 cents. Not until about 1879 did the American dollar get to par.

Canada was flooded with Yankee notes during the Civil war and private individuals made a lot of money buying them and selling them after peace was declared. The late Cool Burgess, a famous Toronto minstrel of years gone by, is said to have built the row of brick houses on the east side of Upper Simcoe street from the profits he made on a trunkful of greenbacks he accumulated when receiving record salaries on the stage in the United States.—Montreal Herald.

STEWED RABBITS GO HUNTING

Bunnies That Had Indulged Overfreely in Apple Juice Chase Their Enemies, the Dogs.

After being isolated by snowdrifts that choked the country roads for several weeks, Banksville, in the Connecticut hills near here, is again in touch with civilization, according to a Stamford (Conn.) dispatch to the New York Evening Sun of a short time ago. The channel of news was opened by J. S. Clark, dealer of the place, who poked his team through the snow and got into this city.

Clark reported that he discovered a groundhog, evidently disgusted with the weather he predicted about six weeks ago, perched on the limb of an elm tree near his home. While the animal was sunning itself Clark called his dog, which quickly dispatched the groundhog. It weighed seven pounds.

Clark also reported the rabbits are having the time of their lives, despite the prohibition law. He says they are getting intoxicated by eating the decaying apples found by clawing into the snow that yet covers the orchard lands and give chase to the hound dogs.

During his two-hour stay in town Clark said he was willing to swear as to the veracity of these statements.

Lettuce by the Carload.

Lettuce is being grown on a field scale in the Imperial and Salt river valleys of California, fields of from 30 to 40 acres being not extraordinary. At the height of the production season—January and February—it is not uncommon for 25 carloads of lettuce a day to be shipped to the middle western and eastern markets. This lettuce, grown under irrigation, is produced by hand labor and is of extra fine quality. The industry was developed on a commercial basis about three years ago and during the last two years has been one of the leading agricultural occupations of the state. These localities also produce carrots, peas, cauliflower and table beans on a less extensive basis.

Money in Raising Dates.

When given proper care the date palm starts to bear at an early age and will bring the best results from the fifth year on. As it gains in age it gains in productive capacity, good palms from six to ten years bearing as high as 100 pounds of fruit per tree. It has been conservatively estimated that profits from a date plantation of choice imported varieties, given intelligent attention, should not fall short of $500 per acre for a number of years, and those who enter the field now will have better opportunities as the output is limited, and would reap the harvest coming to those producing a fine grade article, with a wide demand and limited supply.

UNDER A WAR REGIME.

"Did your daughter learn much at the cooking school?" "Well, she learned how to make a lot of dishes we can't afford to eat."

Fitting Variety.

"I want a vine to plant on the grounds of this financier's country home on the sides sloping down to the road. What would you suggest?"

"I would try some bank runner."

Classy Talk.

"That umbrella repairer has a flattering approach."

"What is it?"

"First asks the lady of the house if she has any golf clubs to mend."

THE LIGHTHOUSE.

The slow sea croons as a tiger tamed. Full fed, inclined to play. But we know his mood when the black clouds brood.

As the lightnings leap to slay. When wind and water combine for slaughter. And torture the tossing ships. Then the sea's wild whine is a cry malign.

From a loosened tiger's lips! But however the winds of the world may roar. However the wild sea whines. Warning the danger that haunts the shore.

The lamp in the lighthouse shines! Warning of danger and promise of aid. And guide on a pathless way— This is the pharos that men have made. For the ships on the sea astray.

So the waves may purr, or the winds may blow. From the south of the earth or north. From Skerryvore to the Boston shore— True point to the Fifth of North. Though death rides high through the windy sky.

On the strength of the tempest's wings. Hour on hour the lamp in the tower Burns on and the fog bell rings.

So it hath been since the ancient days. When the priests of ancient fame Kindled in Egypt a high red blaze. For the fleets that homeward came. Warning of danger, promise of aid. And guide on a pathless way— This is the pharos that men have made. For the ships on the sea astray!—Lydia M. D. O'Neill, in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

SIMPLY HAD TO BE DONE

"Dovey's" Love Was Still Strong, but, as He Said, He Positively Had to Breathe.

"Sweetie!" said she. "Dovey!" answered he. Daylight grew dim. The afternoon shadows lengthened. Lamps that should have been lit remained unlit.

By seven o'clock they had kissed each other 40 times. At last, when the echo of the dinner gong had long ceased to vibrate through the hall below, he shifted his position and drew away a little.

How much should I give to make this a better world?

A CERTAIN man in New York filled out his income tax report.

It showed an income so large that his tax was 53%. And his total gifts to church and charity for the year were $148.

Think of it—thousands spent for luxuries and pleasure for himself; and $148 to leave the world a little better than he found it!

Most of us do better than that; but not so very much better.

Our average daily gift for all church causes is

- less than we spend for daily papers
- less than a local telephone call
- less than a third of the day's car fare
- less than 3 cents a day

No wonder that 80% of the ministers of America are paid less than $20 a week. No wonder that the church hospitals turn away thousands of sick people a year. No wonder that China has only one doctor for every 400,000 people. No wonder that every church board and charity society is forever meeting deficits, forever passing the hat.

It isn't because we are selfish; it isn't because we don't want to help. It's just because no one has ever put up a great big program to us, and asked us to think of the work of the church in a systematic businesslike way.

The Interchurch World Movement represents the united program of thirty denominations. They have surveyed their whole task, no business could have done it better.

They have budgeted their needs; no business could have a more scientific budget. They have united to prevent the possibility of waste and duplication. At least a million dollars will be saved by the fact that thirty individual campaigns are joined in one united effort.

And they come to the men or women who love America—to you—this week asking you to use them as the channel through which a certain definite part of your income can be applied to make this a better world.

Only you can determine what part of your income that should be.

It's a good time right now to answer that question. We're passing through the world just once; how much better will the world be because you passed through?

SURELY MAN'S GOLDEN AGE

As W. D. Howells Writes of it, the Best Years Are Between Fifty and Sixty.

After 61 one must not take too many chances with oneself, but I should say that the golden age of man is between 50 and 60, when one may safely take them. One has peace then from the different passions; if one has been tolerably industrious one is tolerably prosperous; one has fairly learned one's trade or has mastered one's art; age seems as far off as youth; one is not so much afraid of death as earlier; one likes joking as much as ever and loves beauty and truth as much; family cares are well out of the way; if one has married timely one no longer nightly walks the floor with even the youngest child; the marriage ring is then a circle half rounded in eternity. It is a blessed time; it is, indeed, the golden age, and no age after it is more than silver, writes W. D. Howells in Harpers.

The best age after it may be that between 80 and 90, but one cannot make so sure of 90 as of 70 in the procession of years, and that is where the gold turns silver. But silver is one of the precious metals, too, and it need not have any alloy of the baser ones. I do not say how it will be in the years between 90 and 100. I am not yet confronted with that question. Still, all is not gold between 80 and 90, as it is between 50 and 60.

In that time, if one has made oneself wanted in the world, one is still wanted; but between 80 and 90, if one is still wanted, is one wanted as much as ever? It is a painful question, but one must not shrink it, and in trying for the answer one must not do less than one's utmost, at a time when one's utmost will cost more effort than before. This is a disadvantage of living so long, but we cannot change the conditioning if we wish to live.

There is always the question whether one does wish to live, but for the average happy or unhappy man, I should say yes, yes, yes. We would ignore the fact that there are some men so unhappy beyond the vast average that they cannot wish to live. These kill themselves but, speaking without statistics, I do not believe these are often people of 80 and after. Apparently life is seldom so unbearable with these that one almost never hears of their suicide.

Wanted Help.

Little Bobby had been learning his Sunday school lesson and was very much impressed with the idea of the omnipresence of God. A few nights later his mother asked him to bring her a bottle of milk from the back porch.

"Me can't," Bobby demurred. "All dark out there."
"But you're not afraid to go anywhere, Bobby," she reasoned. "You know God won't let anything hurt you."

"Is God out there on the porch in the dark?" queried Bobby.
"Certainly he is. Didn't you learn that God was everywhere?"

Cautiously Bobby opened the door a few inches and peering out, called: "God, will you please hand me that milk bottle out there?"—Everybody's Magazine.

Excess of Oil Production.

Conditions in Oklahoma when the great Cushing pool came in illustrated another aspect of the oil situation. The flush production, for a time was far in excess of storage and transportation facilities, so that oil was stored on the ground, behind earthen dikes, and run into dry creeks that were dammed up to form reservoirs.

From sheer excess of production over local demand, the price fell to 40 cents a barrel, not because that was the value of the oil to the refinery at Chicago or Bayonne, but because there was no way at the time to get it there, and new wells were coming in by the dozen day after day.—Ray Morris in the World's Work.

How Strange!

Mrs. Jenkins was reading the daily paper. Presently she exclaimed,

"What strange things these society people do, Jeremiah!"

"What's up now?" asked Jeremiah, who was half asleep.

"Well, it says here about the launching of a ship. 'With graceful ease the huge vessel slid into the water, just after the duchess of Dumphshire had cracked a bottle of champagne on her nose.' It must have hurt her! Why should she mutilate her face like that, Jeremiah?"

Hard-Boiled Philosopher.

"Fire water was the ruination of the red man," remarked the stranger in Crimmon Gulch.

"So it was," replied Three Finger Sam. "Maybe it's just as well we waited for prohibition. If there had never been anything but total abstinence the pesky Indians might have kept right on bossing the in-tire continent."—Washington Star.

Plenty of Hope.

"Seems to be a big run to the movies," commented Yorick Hamm. "I wonder if I could make good?"

"Don't see why not," declared Hamlet Fatt. "Hire a litter of puppies and a trick mule, and with your acting ability you're bound to make good."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

No Lightsome Exercise.

"I am told you are playing politics," "I don't like that word 'playing,'" protested Senator Sorghum. "You might as well use the word 'dancing' to describe the way a man gets over the field when an irascible bull is after him."

"MEMORY" TREES GOOD IDEA

Many Are Being Planted to Commemorate the War Services of Americans in the Great War.

A good many trees have been planted here and there over the country by way of memorializing American soldiers who gave up their lives in the war. Mostly they are for individuals—a single tree set in a place somehow associated in his lifetime with the one who is gone. A number of groves or parks and stretches of roadway are planned, however, where trees are to be planted in groups or in rows in honor of the fallen ones of certain communities. They call them "memory trees," which is a good name.

Of the single trees an illustration is one planted by pupils of the Force school in Washington, which was attended by Quentin Roosevelt when he was a young boy. He was the only former pupil to lose his life in the world war. A committee of 12, formed by appointment of a member from each class, will have the care of the tree; as each member graduates from his class he appoints a member from the incoming class to take his place. Thus there will always be a committee at the school to look after this tree.

WHEN MULE WAS A NOVELTY

Sent as a Present to George Washington, It Created Something of a Sensation Here.

The first mule seen in this country was sent to George Washington by the king of Spain. The mule measured 15 hands high, and his ears were 14 inches long. His disposition was so ungrateful that General Washington remarked on the beast's inability to appreciate "republican enjoyment."

The mule was given much publicity. Washington sent him out on a tour of the South, where his long ears, peculiar voice and strange appearance drew large crowds and created much excitement. The attention lavished upon the mule forced the keeper to hurry him from place to place at such a pace that the animal reduced considerably. Washington having been shocked with his condition upon his reappearance in Mount Vernon.

It is said that Washington looked forward to producing a breed of mules suitable to draw the family carriage, but history does not record whether the first president carried out this plan. He was, however, at all times very enthusiastic over mules, and commented upon them in glowing terms as an excellent race of animals.

Woman Good Trapper.

Trapping predatory animals is scarcely the kind of occupation in which a woman might be expected to distinguish herself, even with the great extension of the range of feminine activity to which we have been accustomed lately. Mrs. Ada Tingley of Idaho is reported, however, by the Northwestern division of the United States biological survey to be so successful in this employment that her male rivals are finding it hard to keep up with her records. Her victims are mainly coyotes, bobcats, wolves, lynxes and mountain lions. At 8:30 every morning Mrs. Tingley mounts her cayuse and rides off to her traps, of which she runs six lines, of 50 each. She uses a fish bait prepared by a secret formula.

A GREAT CHANGE.

"Did your war article get by the News Censor?"
"I believe it did, only I didn't recognize it after it passed."

Burglar-Proof Glass.

There is a glass of French invention which is intended to be proof against burglars. So many cases of burglary have been committed by the breaking of show-windows and snatching of valuables on exhibition that a special effort has been made to end this particular form of theft.

The French glass, it appears, is produced by a secret process, but the makers admit that thickness and care in its manufacture are its principal essentials. It is made about three-quarters of an inch thick and on test has resisted the blow of a ten-pound iron disk. The same blow would have shattered ordinary plate glass completely.

Eats Any Old Thing.

A wood-boring beetle in California, undismayed by lead or even by alloys that are harder than lead, has put hundreds of telephones out of use. The beetle bores into the cables that carry the wires, then water gets in and makes the wire useless until the damage is repaired. As yet no one has found a way to keep the beetles out. Perhaps some entomological Burbank will train wireworms to plug holes or tapeworms to wrap them.—Youth's Companion.

Her Hair Came Out In Wad

Her hair began to come out in wads when she ran the comb through it. Many things were tried but the falling continued.

"I'll see what I can do," said the chiropractor. He was careful also to adjust for other conditions that helped to improve the general health and was gratified shortly to find he had succeeded in restoring the normal conditions of scalp health.

New Local Anesthesia
A new system of local anesthesia has been successfully employed by the surgeons at the chief military hospitals in Milan, Italy, for some thousands of operations, among which were over three hundred operations on the lungs, performed by Prof. Brusch of Como. The proposed line of incision, says the London Times, is marked with phenol by dipping a sterilized scalpel into it and using the back of the point of the scalpel as a marker. After the lapse of a few seconds the scalpel is again dipped into the phenol, and the tissues are cut with a slow and gentle up-and-down movement similar to that used in sawing. A film of phenol forms on the blade when it is immersed, and that anesthetizes the tissues as they are cut. Frequent dippings are necessary to maintain the film, which is rubbed off by contact with the tissues.

Wise to Avoid Insect.

There seems to be no doubt that the big spider of Arizona, New Mexico, California, Old Mexico, and many other places is a relative of the tarantula of Spain and Italy, and in color, disposition, and the feature of hairy legs a layman might easily mistake him for the tarantula. But perhaps there is not much in a name so far as spiders go, and it is just as well to avoid if possible that particular spider which so many Americans call the tarantula, though it is quite certain that the meanness of its disposition has been exaggerated.

This Mirror.

"Bobbie Burns wanted a power the gift he gave us to see ourselves as others see us. Well, it seems to me that a wife admirably fills this want."

The speaker went on:

"A chap said, impatiently, to his wife one evening during the holidays: 'You'll never get that new dog of yours to mind you.'"

"Oh, yes, I will," she answered. "You were just as troublesome yourself at first."

His Only Love Affair.

Rose—Did Jim have more than one love affair?

Ruby—Only one, I believe.

"When he fell in love with you?"

"Oh, dear, no! He had fallen in love with himself long before we ever met."

RESIDENT HAS AWFUL EXPERIENCE

"I was twice confined in hospitals, in the last one nothing but gradual water was injected into me 4 times a day as my stomach would not retain any food. I suffered terribly; was reduced to a skeleton. My folks saw an ad of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and it has surely saved my life. I weigh 180 lbs. now." It is a simple harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. LEW SHANK NOW EXTENDING THE HEALTHFUL HAND

FORMER MAYOR OF INDIANAPOLIS PASSES GOOD WORD A-LONG ABOUT TRUTONA

Indianapolis, Ind., Apr. 26 "As a general tonic for building up a weak and run down condition of the system, Trutona is without an equal. These are the words of Lew Shank, former mayor of Indianapolis spoken in what he calls "well merited praise" of the perfect tonic, Mr. Shank is now engaged in the storage business at 227 1/2 north New Jersey street and resides at 3547 east Washington street.

"I must say that it gives me pleasure to recommend Trutona to those suffering as I did," Mr. Shank continued. "For several years I have been bothered with indigestion and constipation. I didn't have a good appetite either. I tried numberless medicines in an effort to get relief but to no avail."

"Trutona was recommended to me and I decided to try it. Today thanks to this medicine, I feel more able to attend to my business than I have in years. I've found Trutona remarkable medicine for overcoming constipation, indigestion, and a weakened condition of the system. I believe I am passing a good word along in making this statement and I feel it my duty to commend Trutona."

Trutona is really a medicine of un- usual merit. It is unsurpassed as a reconstructive agency, system purifier and body invigorant, and has been declared peerless as a treatment for stomach, liver and bowel troubles."

Trutona is sold in Greencastle at R. P. Mullins Drug Store. Adv.
