HARD FREEZE; FRUIT SAFE IS WETZ OPINION

TEMPERATURE MONDAY NIGHT
REACHES LOW MARK OF 27
DEGREES—COLD SNAP PASS-ED IS PREDICTED.

PURDUE EXPERTS HOPEFUL

Although the temperature reached a low mark of 27 degrees Monday night, the fruit growers are hopeful, and it is the opinion of William Wetz, a Greencastle fruit grower and authority on fruit conditions that the fruit has not been killed. Because of the cool weather this spring the fruit buds were not far advanced.

The cold weather of the past two weeks had not injured the fruit and unless the hard freeze on Monday night did more damage than has been predicted there is a chance for a fine fruit crop in this county. Mr. Wetz, after examining the fruit buds this morning, telephoned to Purdue University, and in the opinion of the experts there, the central Indiana fruit is not killed. However, it cannot be determined for several days the exact effect of the Monday night freeze on the fruit.

The temperature on Monday night was much of a winter tinge and thin ice was formed on still water during the night. The prediction for today is for warmer weather.

AUTO BANDITS

HOLD UP BANK

South Bend, Ind., April 12.—Northern Indiana and southern Michigan are being combed by hundreds of city police, sheriffs, deputies and village constables in an effort to find some trace of the five masked automobile bandits who entered the South Bend State Bank this morning at 11 o'clock and at the point of revolvers forced Gustav Haslanger, the cashier to surrender nearly $15,000 in cash after driving the assistant cashier and the patrons into an ante room. The robbers made their escape in an auto believed to have been stolen in this city. The cashier refused to give the combination of the small cash safe within the main vault. Although threatened with instant death if he refused, the cashier refused to give the combination of the small cash safe within the main vault. ## THE RAILROAD STRIKE IS NEAR AN END

SWITCHMEN ARE RETURNING TO THEIR WORK AND SITUATION IS RAPIDLY IMPROVING
ACCORDING TO STATEMENTS
BY OFFICIALS.

AN EARLY RETURN TO NORMAL

Chicago, April 11.—While officers of the railroad brotherhoods who united with the rail road officials to break the unauthorized strike of switchmen which started in the Chicago terminal district, announced tonight that the situation was steadily improving and that the crisis of the walk out was past, John Grunau, president of the Chicago yardmen's association, who called the strike, declared "the situation is unchanged."

The largest break among the strikers was at Columbus O., where 600 switchmen voted to return to work.

The situation in Chicago is distinctly improved tonight," said S. E. Heberling, president of the Switchmen's Union of North America. "Men are turning to work and we look for an early return to normal conditions."

Mr. Heberling said that the brotherhood leaders were meeting with delegations of strikers in an effort to end the walkout and that satisfactory progress was being made.

Chicago April 12.—While the unauthorized strike of rail road employees which started in Chicago two weeks ago with the walk out of 700 switchmen on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul rail road, today appeared gradually to be waning in the midwest and the far east, the situation in the territory east of Cleveland took a more serious aspect.

The center of developments in the walkout of insurgents had definitely shifted to the east, where additions to the ranks of rebel railroad workers had caused a serious stoppage of the freight and passenger traffic and the closing of several industries dependent on rail roads for supplies.

The situation in the Chicago yards showed a marked improvement, and reports from large rail centers in the midwest indicated that the crisis of the strike was past and strikers were returning to work in considerable numbers. Officers of the railroad brotherhood have been fighting the strike since its inception, were confident that the breaking up of the Chicago district would be followed by a great resumption of work in other areas.

More freight moved in the Chicago yards today than any day since the strike started, railroads announce. At the stock yards 229 cars of live stock were received and 9,000 employees who had been forced out of work by the strike, returned to duty.

Mrs. Mort Diall went to Indianapolis Sunday to spend a few days with her mother, Mrs. Jennie Smythe who is ill in the Methodist hospital.

Mrs. O. F. Overstreet entertained the bridge club Monday afternoon at her home on east Seminary street. J. Owen Sigler of the Back Woods Stock farm was in Greencastle Monday. Mr. Sigler's farm is three miles south of Morton. For many years he has engaged in the Jack and Stallion business and this year he has an excellent lot of animals on his farm. Mr. Sigler believes there will soon be a serious shortage good horses in the United States and advises all farmers to raise as many good colts as possible, as he predicts a big increase in price for horses and mules in the next few years.

DEMONSTRATE BETTER HOME CONDITIONS

Running water in farm homes was the keynote of the Indiana Home Special Train which was in Greencastle from nine to 11:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. More than 400 persons visited the train which is touring the state on New York Central lines under the auspices of Purdue University, to inaugurate a campaign for running water in country homes.

"Nothing means more to the farm woman than running water in the home," said W. Q. Fitch, of Purdue, who has charge of the train. "Only by providing these conveniences and making actual farm living more attractive can we hope to keep real farmers on the land and assure the future food supply of the nation. Life in the country must be made so attractive that when a man who has spent most of his life on the farm desires to retire, he can have a modern home right there and will not have to move to town."

Although running water in the farm home was featured throughout the train, lighting outfits and many labor-saving devices were not lacking and the display was good. Septic tanks, which provide sanitary sewage disposal for the farm, attracted unusual interest, especially from the farmers. The women showed unusual interest in the running water system and that they wanted modern kitchens and bath rooms in their homes.

"A farmer doesn't think much of putting several hundred dollars into a binder which he uses a few days out of a year," said Alma Garvin, one of the train's lecturers, "and he should think more of putting several hundred dollars into a running water system, which is a convenience for his wife."

The first coach entered by the train visitors showed an electric power plant which lighted the car, operated an electric water system which pumped water to a milk room and well equipped bath room. It also provided power for an electric ironer, a washer, a churn, separator, and other features. All had individual motors controlled by a switch. The septic tank, actual size for the average farm home, was in one end of this car and attracted a great deal of attention. Its construction was explained by university speakers.

Two individual water systems were shown in the next car and another complete electric power plant was running. Their workings were explained by attendants.

The third car was equipped somewhat like the first, but instead of the milk room a modern kitchen was shown, with tables at the proper working heights, built in closets and features to lessen the housewife's work. A feature of this was the dish drainer which does away the labor of drying dishes three times a day. A living room, equipped like any city home and shown how it could be in the country added to the attractiveness of the car.

The fourth car served as a lecture room. Better living conditions for rural people was the general theme of the whole train, and the hearty reception given it here indicated a wide public interest in this problem.

SAY FOSTER IS HEAD OF THE STRIKE

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Department of Justice investigators report that evidence in their possession proves that William Z. Foster, leader of the ill-fated steel strike, is the prime mover behind the "outlaw" railroad strike.

The government let this be known tonight, feeling that when the strikers learn what influences are behind the movement they will align themselves with their recognized organizations. Action by the government in the direction of prosecution of strike leaders therefore will be held in abeyance pending the expected reaction among the strikers on receipt of information showing the directing impulse of the strike agitation.

BREAK IN RANKS OF STRIKERS

CHICAGO, April 14.—The first important break in the ranks of insurgent railroad employees in the Chicago terminal district came today, when railroad officers announced that groups of strikers on the Pennsylvania, the Soo line and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific had decided to return to work.

Edward Corrogan, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said that enginemen on a number of roads had voted to go back tomorrow or Friday.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The strike overtures of peace on the part of the striking railroad workers, who have disorganized the railroad transportation facilities of New York and northern New Jersey, came tonight when Edward McHugh, chairman of the strikers' committee, gave out a statement that "now that the railroad labor board has been appointed, we desire to avail ourselves of the opportunity provided by it for a consideration of our grievances."

Mr. McHugh declared, however, that the strikers would not go back until they had received a substantial wage increase and that "they are not going to permit politicians in their ranks to lead them." He denied emphatically that the ranks of the strikers were weakened here and declared they were "stronger than ever."

EARL ELLIS HOME DAMAGED

The old frame building on east Anderson street, owned by Walter Ashton, was destroyed by fire at near ten o'clock Saturday night. The building was an old delapidated structure and was not occupied. The cause of the fire is not known.

Flames got big headway before the fire department arrived. Because of the delapidated condition the loss is not great. The old residence building was one of the oldest structures in the city and formerly occupied by the Vorhees family one of the pioneer families of Greencastle.

On Sunday afternoon, burning soot from the fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ellis on Locust street which is being occupied for the summer by Mr. and Mrs. William P. Koehler ignited the shingles and quite a hole was burned in the roof before the fire men extinguished the flames with the chemical apparatus. The loss will not be great.

ALL DISTRICT CONTESTS WON BY THE G. H. S.

The District High School discussion, voice and pianoforte contests, held at Brazil, in the Brazil High school auditorium Friday night, were won by three Greencastle students, Marshall Abrams, Miss Lucille Gillespie and Ruth Wilson.

The discussion victory Friday night gives Greencastle the first place for three consecutive years. Previous winners have been Carl O'Hair, 1919, and Allen Tilden, 1918.

The subject of the discussion contest was "How to solve the railroad problem," and Abrams easily out-classed his opponents, both in speech and in delivery. Miss Gillespie sang "The Swiss Echo Song," written by Echert, and Miss Wilson, who is only a Freshman in the high school, played Rachmaninoff's "Prelude."

There were four contestants in discussion, the following schools being represented: Greencastle, Brazil, Bridgeton, and Armo. Brazil's contestant won second place. There were four contestants in voice and three in piano.

The judges for the discussion contest were Principal T. W. Record, of Garfield High, Terre Haute, Superintendent B. T. Stephenson of Tan Gier, and Principal Zimmerman of Clinton.

Principal C. C. Copple of the Brazil high school and chairman of the district contests, managed the meet and the local representatives and those who accompanied the contestants were pleased with their courteous treatment while in Brazil.

Abrams will represent this district in the state discussion contest, to be held at Bloomington on the afternoon of April 23. The other winners of Friday night will not contest farther as those contests are not to be held at Bloomington.

Those who attended the contest Friday night at Brazil were: Miss Lela Walls, Miss Edna West, Miss Cox, Miss Beryl O'Hair, Miss Dorothy Norfolk, Miss Retta Vaughn, Miss Elva Ayler, Miss Evelyn Ayler, Mr. Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. M. ## NEWSPRINT TO GO

TO 15c A POUND

CINCINNATI, O., April 9.—Bryant Venable, vice president of the Whitaker Paper Company, having vast paper warehouses and stocks in all the principal cities of the United States, today in an address before the Advertisers' Club of this city predicted a further marked rise in the price of news print throughout America by June 15, to 15 cents per pound.

Mr. Venable stated further that "the price of news print paper in general will never return to the pre-war basis because general conditions will never return."

Printing ink and paper must carry the burden of salesmanship until normal conditions are restored. Since 1914, the price of newsprint, according to Mr. Venable, has risen from 2 cents to 12 cents per pound, and will continue to rise regardless of efforts otherwise.

RAILROAD CROSSING

CASE IS POSTPONED

The hearing of the petition of George Akers and others, before the public service commission of Indiana, which petition asks that the Vandalia railroad be required to abolish its grade crossing at Reelsville, which was to have been heard Monday, April 13, has been postponed. The date of the hearing will be announced later. The request for a continuation of the hearing was filed by the railroad.

When Deputy Sheriff B. B. Stringer and Marshall Henry O'Hair went to Commercial Place this morning to remove the household goods of Mrs. Drew Edmonson, from a residence property owned by Cyrus O'Hair, Mrs. Edmonson, colored, refused to allow the officers to enter the house. The woman slammed the door in the officers' face and dares them to enter.

The officers previously had served on the colored woman, a writ issued by the court ordering her to vacate the property by April 9. When the colored woman demonstrated that she was going to resist the order, the deputy sheriff telephoned to Sheriff Howard Harris and told him of the situation.

"Break down the door, and if necessary, handcuff the woman and bring her to jail," was the instructions of the sheriff. The officers carried out the order to a detail. The door was forced, the woman was handcuffed and brought to jail, and the household property of the woman was piled in the street. O'Hair had been attempting to secure possession of the property for many weeks and finally had to resort to court action to get possession of the property.

After she had been placed in jail, the woman "cooled down" considerably, and appealed to Judge Hughes, who, on her promise to be good, allowed her her freedom so that she might arrange to have her household goods cared for and so that she might look after her children. The woman is divorced from her husband.

NOTICE-PETITION TO IMPROVE A HIGHWAY

Notice is hereby given by the undersigned Auditor of Putnam County, Indiana, that was filed in his office on April 5th, 1920, a petition by W. W.

Glover, et al, for improvement of a certain public Highway in Warren Township, said Putnam County, and that said petition is set for hearing before the Board of Commissioners of said County, on Monday, the 3rd day of May, 1920, the same being the first day of the regular May Term, 1920.

Which said petition is in the following words and figures to-wit: To the Honorable board of Commissioners, of said County and State: We the undersigned, respectfully represent to your honorable body that we and each of us are free holders and voters in Putnam County, Indiana, and we ask that you take the proper legal and lawful procedure to improve the following Public Highway situate in Warren Township, Putnam County, Indiana, and described as follows:

Commencing at intersection of the C. G. Lee improved road at a point on the south line of Warren Township five (5), chains and thirty-eight (38) links east of the south west corner of the south east quarter (1/4) of section twenty nine (29) T 18 N of R 4 W. in Warren Township, Putnam County, Indiana and running in a north easterly direction along or near the present highway to a point about thirteen (13) chains and fifty (50) links north of the south west corner of the east half of the south east quarter of section twenty (20) of said township and range at the Williams School House: said road to be improved is about one and one half (1 1/2) miles in length.

And your petitioners ask that said Public Highway above described be improved by straightening, draining and paving with Macadam from and on terminal points, and we further show that said road connects with a free gravel road at its terminus.

We ask that said improvement be ordered without submitting the same to an election by the voters of said township, as said highway to be improved, is less than three miles in length, we recommend that said highway be 33 feet wide and that the Macadam be 16 feet in width and fourteen inches deep in the center and tapering to six inches in each side.

Respectfully Submitted.

Signed by W. W. Glover and 55 others.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and the seal of my office this 5th, day of April, 1920.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Eldon Hill
The boy scouts held a business meeting in the Chamber of Commerce room Tuesday afternoon at 5 O'clock
Mr. Daugherty in charge.
The scouts did their good turn by stringing tags for "friends day" at the tabernacle.
The pledge to the flag by the troop body was the opening action of the meeting. Then came the roll call by the scribe.
The inspection of the individual for points in the efficiency contest was performed by Mr. Daugherty.

A report on the unfinished business was next given. The new business was then brought up.

Prof. B. A. Knight wishes to meet all scouts Wednesday after school in the auditorium of the high school building.

At 7 O'clock Friday evening the troop will meet above the Central bank building in the office of Scout master L. S. Carpenter in order to go to the tabernacle in a delegation.

A hike for Saturday Mr. Daugherty has arranged for the first hike of the local troop on next Saturday.
All scouts must meet in the tabernacle at 9 O'clock sharp, Saturday morning with bacon, ham, eggs or anything may be cooked in camp so that members of the troop may have experience in cooking.

Mr. Daugherty has an outline for the day which involves hunts games
etc. which will surely prove interesting.

The membership cards will be given to the members of the troop
Friday evening at the tabernacle.

The invitation for other troop problems to be brought up and the meeting was closed with the scout oath which was given by the troop body.

LILA LEE

Miss Lila Lee is a most able dispenser of cheer. Only a few short years ago she was a little tot playing
"Ring Around a Rosie," in the streets of Union Hill, N. J. She was induced to enter vaudeville, and a little later was entered as a candidate for laurels in the silent drama, soon becoming a "movie" star. "Keep smiling" is the motto of this little film favorite.

TWO BRANDS OF PROPHET.

Two kinds of prophet I have met
Upon my journey here below—
Two kinds! And I am free to bet
Both kinds you also chance to know.

One kind keeps still before events,
And later says, "I told you so."
I must admit I am too dense
To see why he keeps lying so.

The other kind blurts out his say,
And when the day is past and gone
He hies, if things don't go his way,
And keeps as still as Coal Oil John.

Two kinds of prophet—each no good—
Both you and I have always known;
Two kinds of prophet; and we should Be scared if neither "pulled a bone."

'SNOTHIN'!

Recently one of the greatest painters of poultry was operated on at a St. Louis hospital. Poultry painting, perhaps, does not require great ability. We know a butcher who never had an art lesson in his life who can draw a chicken in a minute, so skillfully that the most careful cook has only to wash it a little and put it in to roast.

Couldn't Be Done So Soon.

A proverbially indigent though honest citizen in a western town lately applied to the president of the local bank for a 30-day loan of $50.

When the president refused the loan, the man was astonished.

"I know you're honest, but you might die."

"Might die? Gosh, but a feller couldn't die in just 30 days!"

THE WAIL OF A MERE MAN.

I ain't no Hizzle; I live
At Sisseton, S. D.
But why can wife wear such pretty things

For clothing, and not me?

An Ally Dog.

Evidently there are dogs in this country that are opposed to hyphenated, but not hydrophobated Americans. Lately at Ames, Ia., a German scientific laborer, employed in the state agricultural school work, was bitten in the face by a rabid or unneutral dog and had to be taken to the Pasteuriz-ing studio in Des Moines. Bitten by an American dog and given French treatment, all inside of 24 hours, is going some for a German!

WON FAME EARLY IN LIFE

Precocious Youths Have Given to the World Many Works That Are Classed as Remarkable.

Mlle. Germaine Sablin, the French girl of ten summers, who wrote a novel of which the critics declared "Victor Hugo might be proud," had many predecessors in precocity whom she herself might almost envy, London Answers states.

Torquato Tasso was famous through-out Italy before he was nine years old, an accomplished Greek and Latin scholar and the author of clever and polished verses. At eight Louis de Bourbon, prince of Conde, was a perfect Latin scholar; three years later he published a work on rhetoric, and at seventeen he was appointed governor of Burgundy. Fenelon displayed so much precocity that he won fame as a preacher of rare eloquence when he was but fifteen years of age. Pascal wrote treatises on acoustics at twelve and at sixteen he published his treatise on conic sections, which Descartes refused to believe was not the work of a great master.

Of more recent and familiar feats of precocity it may be sufficient to mention that John Stuart Mill was studying Greek at three, had practically mastered the language at seven and a year later was acting as schoolmaster to his younger brothers and sisters; while, to give but one other example, John Ruskin actually produced a manuscript work in three volumes before he reached his seventh birthday.

MAN OF SUPREME TALENTS

George Du Maurier, Whose "Trilby" Is Immortal, Celebrated as Master of Three Arts.

George Du Maurier was singularly talented. He could have made a lasting reputation as an artist, a writer or a caricaturist—he stands immortal as a master of all three arts. He was born March 6, 1834, and died in 1896.

He was the son of a naturalized Englishman—a man who had left France to escape the reign of terror. He himself was born in Paris and much of his early youth was passed there. His life was idyllically happy. His "gay and jovial" father brought him up in a charming home; his pretty wife was an object of adoration to him; his success was certain from the start.

Intending first to be a chemist, he soon found that his real vocation was art, so he went to the Latin quarter in Paris and later to Holland to study. In London he joined the staff of Punch, a connection he kept for 36 years. Besides the light and graceful cartoons for Punch he exhibited water color sketches.

Late in life he began writing novels. "Peter Ibbotson" and "Trilby" were especially well received. "Trilby" was dramatized and produced in 1895, a year before Du Maurier's death, by Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree. Lately it has been revived with immense success.

Like his pictures, his writings were graceful, humorous, too fanciful to be true, yet written with an air of great truth.

Squirrel Will Put Up Fight.

When surprised in the woods, the behavior of the fox squirrel is quite different from that of the gray species. As a rule the former will put forth his best endeavor to reach some hollow in a tree, and into this he quickly scrambles to avoid his enemy, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington. One may often see them stretched out on a limb as flat as possible, and they will, thinking themselves unperceived, remain a long time in that position as quiet as a mouse. If cornered and there is no hole handy for him to get into, and the limb he is on is too small to hide him, he will begin barking at the hunter or his dog in the most defiant manner possible. It is said that a fox squirrel can beat off a small dog, and will put up a hard fight if one attacks him.

A Wholesale Rat Cure.

An interesting experiment in dealing with rats infesting the workings at a Welsh colliery has proved a tremendous success. On a Saturday afternoon, after the miners had left work, and the horses had been removed, a large stock of sulphur was placed at the bottom of the main shaft and lit. The fan was kept going at quarter speed, and the rats scurried as far as they could go to the upcast shaft, where they congregated. The next afternoon to get the workings clear of the fumes the fan was set going at full speed, and when the men descended the pit thousands of dead rats were found at the bottom of the upcast shaft. Four trains were filled with them.

Trying to Appear Dignified.

When I was a girl of eighteen I was chosen to be Goddess of Liberty at a Fourth of July celebration in a small town. As is usual on such occasions, the whole countryside turned out to celebrate, and there was a great crowd to see the goddess mount her improvised throne. As I crossed the lawn trying to appear dignified before the crowd I stepped in a gopher hole that had become overgrown with grass and turned a complete somersault, losing my crown and becoming unbecomingly tangled up in my long robes. My maids of honor picked me up, but it is needless to say I heard little of the address that followed.—Exchange.

R. F. D.

By MILDRED WHITE.

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"It's a ridiculous world"—the girl addressed the dog at her feet. "Here we are dying of loneliness, Billy, and the nicest, friendliest looking man living just down the road. Yet we dare not speak to him, or be to us, because we have not been introduced. In this wild world he is likely to appear. I ask you, to introduce us? A girl is mighty hard up for conversation, Billy, when she has to exercise her own voice talking to a dog. Otherwise I should not be certain but that I had turned dumb. After father bringing me to this place, where he could rest his overwrought nerves, I now appear to be the only nerve irritant, so he hides himself away among the pines, responding only to my dinner bell."

The dog, who had listened, his loving, humid eyes searching the girl's face, came to rest his head in sympathy against her shoulder and her laugh rang out like the joyous carol of a bird. "It isn't that I want to marry the nice man, you understand, or to have him make love to me, Billy. It's just that his log veranda looks so inviting, with its chairs and magazines and the victrola in the corner. Our own magazines are either delayed or gone astray, and I've read the last ones to shreds."

Now let us put the saddle on Lassie, and be off to our one amusement—the exciting quest for mail at the distant post office.

Billy, recognizing one single word, became at once excitedly alert, and the girl changed her chatter to a merry whistle as she saddled the slim pony and went picking her way down the narrow path through the growth.

"Who is she?" the man asked of old Annie, who came in to do his chores. Old Annie didn't know.

"A summer stranger," she thought, "probably."

The "summer stranger," advancing, wondered impatiently why in the world the nice man lay always lazily in his long wicker chair. Why didn't he move and stir about, as one of his athletic build might be expected to do? Then her face clouded in quick comprehension—close to the man's chair stood a crutch. He was lame, then—a cripple. Her heart beat faster as he sat up and called to her. He was asking some favor, and if in remorse for her unkind criticism there was anything that she could do—she reined in Lassie promptly and flashed at the man an entrancing smile.

"You asked me—?" she questioned. "I wonder," he asked—his voice was pleasing—"if you are going down for the mail? And if so, could I ask you also to bring mine. I am—unable to go by myself, you see, and am expecting an important communication. You will pardon, I hope," he finished, "my boldness."

"I shall be very glad to accommodate you," the girl answered matter-of-factly.

"Your name?"

"Dalton," the man replied, "Donald Dalton, and thank you very much."

Billy had a difficult time keeping up with Lassie's heels after that. Some of her rider's joyous spirit seemed to have entered into the pony's being; and when the girl later slipped from Lassie's saddle before the log veranda and bestowed a generous supply of businesslike mail upon the recliner in the wicker chair her eyes were shining and her cheeks aglow with the promise of adventure.

"I am a civil engineer," the nice man told her. "We are scouting around here to try to put our railroad through. I was so unfortunate in my 'scouting' as to break my leg. Every day since then has been forty-eight hours long. You—" he smiled apologetically, "have been my one interest. I wondered about your being in this desolate region, you see," he hastened to add, "and how you got here."

The girl laughed as she cuddled the cat in her arms. "I love to be a mystery," she said. "It is so unusual. Back home I'm so well known that I am tiresome."

"But you will tell me your name," Dalton begged, "and allow me to introduce you, and your family, perhaps, down occasionally to break my monotony."

"I've only part of a family," the girl replied, "and he is here just to keep from being invited. Father is determined to 'commune only with nature.' And as for my name," she laughed back at him as she swung into the saddle, "you may call me R. F. D. Rural Free Delivery," you know, for I'm going to bring your mail every day until you are well."

The moments that she stood each day by his side were to Dalton the happiest that he had ever known. The girl, too, looked forward to them in wondering joyous intensity. And when at last the leaves had turned from green to scarlet, the young engineer made his way walking still with difficulty to the copse above.

"It's unusual not to know the name of the girl you are going to ask to be your wife," he said. "But I think I can wait to know your name, little R. F. D., better than I can wait to know the answer to my question."

"Well," the girl said, and she laughed softly, "my initials will always remain R. F. D. I hope, Mr. Donald Dalton, I'm Rose, Forrest, now. So that's the answer to your question."

OH, PLEASE DO

By RITA SULLIVAN.

(Copyright, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"No, Lou, I'm not going to 'make up' with him at all. I never had any real good times like I'm having now. Just think, if I hadn't broken my engagement with him I'd be home just reading or sewing or some stupid, 'sensible' thing like that, instead of having the time of my young life these few weeks with the crowd out more. Once and for all, Louise, dear, even if you are his cousin, I refuse to hear anything about him. If Bob really and truly ever loved me, he would be willing to give up that night work and take me around more. Come Lou, let's forget it."

With a pretty little pout and a coaxing note in her voice Betty won her way as usual, and the subject to all appearances was forgotten.

"Well, how about it, Lou?"

Trying to make his voice nonchalant, and putting a "don't care" expression on his face, Bob asked the question which meant so much more to him than he would admit, as he met his cousin on his return from work, just as she was leaving the house.

"Oh, Bob, I'm so sorry, but I can't say anything to her. I told her about the extra money that you were saving, and all that; but—oh, Bobby, dear, she's right when you think of it."

Then, noting the hurt look which her cousin was vainly trying to conceal, Lou considerably ignored it, and with a few conventional remarks passed on.

That evening as she was whirling in the arms of her partner, who was the best dancer on the floor, and enjoying the fact that she was the center of admiration from all sides, the thought suddenly struck her that all of this gaiety was surface deep.

"How silly it is," she thought, "to see all of these people working so hard, just twirling around so senselessly."

"What can be the matter with me, I wonder?" she asked herself. "I'm actually dying for the dance to come to an end. Well, I'll have a good time later on," she promised herself.

After the dance came supper in a well-known, fashionable hotel.

The thought of another night spent as this one must have been too much for poor Betty, and she thought she would scream if she remained in this artificial, noisy place one minute longer. To her companion's surprise, just as the waiter approached the table with a familiar greeting, she leaned across and whispered: "Jack, I want to go home this very minute."

"Well, for heaven's sake, Betty—you? You don't really mean that you want to go home? Will wonders never cease?"

Then, seeing that she was really in earnest, he added:

"Come on, then, Bettikins, let's go. You're 'boss' with me tonight, you know, sweetie."

"Jack, please don't start that."

The tired, wistful little note in her voice appealed to the boy, and he refrained from further comment and led her to a little door so as to avoid the curious glances which Betty would surely meet if she left so early.

When Betty reached home she was tired.

With a little laugh at the absurdity of the thought (for Betty would not admit, even to herself, that she missed a certain person) she turned on the light before her mirror and stood staring at the pretty face.

The next morning Betty could not rise, and at noon she awoke to hear a deep, heavy voice ringing in her ears. "Rest is what she will have to have."

Without opening her eyes Betty listened, and as the voice of her mother entered the conversation and receded down the hall two tears stole out from her closed lids and Betty was crying as if her heart would break.

A week later a puzzled doctor frowned over a case. Betty was no better. She took no interest in anything. The little notes of sympathy, the flowers, candy and books only received a passing glance.

"There is something on her mind," was his final conclusion, and he let the room to seek her mother, and an hour later the friendly doctor came to the room a wiser man.

"How are you going to be, the roses back to these cheeks, little Betty, but there's nothing you want? Never mind; your mother and I have agreed to let you have just one visitor today. Do you think that would cheer you up? Come now, Betty, whom do you want to see?"

Before Betty had a chance to reply the telephone on the stand by her side started her with a sharp, impatient ring. With a questioning look at the doctor, who tried his best to frown, she lifted the receiver and sent a weak little "hello" over the phone. With relief the doctor watched her brightening face, but the only part of the conversation that he heard was just one brief little sentence, but he was satisfied.

As he left the house he was almost knocked over by an impetuous youth who was leaping up the steps, three at a time. He knew that from now on Betty would be on the high road to recovery, for he had recognized their mutual friend, Bob. He smiled as he remembered the tone of her voice as Betty had said over the telephone just the one little sentence which had been her entire part of the conversation:

"Oh, please do."

BAPTIST CHURCH QUOTAS IN FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN

Quotas of the Indiana Baptist churches in the Northern Indiana Baptist Convention, that will participate in a financial drive April 25th to May 3rd, have been announced by Dr. Carlos M. Dinsmore of Indianapolis, general superintendent of the Indiana Baptist Convention.

Th church quotas for Putnam County follows:—
New Mayssville $2.14
Bethel $3.81
Big Walnut $4.40
Greencastle $2.50

The front wheel was torn off a Ford touring car driven by Walter Evans, a rural mail carrier when his machine collided with a Ford Roadster driven by Robert Quinlan of Limesdale at the corner of Walnut and Jackson streets at near three o'clock Sunday afternoon. Evans was driving east on Walnut street and Quinlan was going south on Jackson street when the accident occurred.

The view of both drivers was obstructed by Dr. Gillespie's office until they were on each other and it was too late to avoid the collision. A left front wheel was torn completely off the Evans machine and the crank, fenders, lights and radiator were badly damaged on the Quinlan machine. Fortunately no one was injured, although Dr. Gilbert Sallist of Cloverdale who was riding in the Evans machine was badly shaken up.

Otto Webb, Putnam County treasurer, who has been ill at his home on East Washington street for several days of the influenza, is unimproved. Henry Runyan, ex-treasurer, is taking Mr. Webb's place during his illness.

Mrs. Catherine Price, who has been spending the winter with her son in Marion, has returned to her home in this city.

JIM'S SURPRISE

By ETHEL L. STANTON

Little Mrs. Carey frowned at her monthly budget.

"Three dollars and nineteen cents for this month. Last month it was two dollars, and the month before it was one-thirty-seven. That is a lot of money for a college graduate to squander, isn't it? I know Jim can't give me any more, besides I suspect he is worried over his magazine. It would be too bad for him to have to suspend publication just as he has worked up a good circulation."

"Wish I could help him," she mused. "What good is my college-trained mind if I can't think up a scheme to earn money at home? It certainly was not much use when I began to care for a baby and a house all at once. Poor Jim, what chaos he lived in for two years, until I tried to make a household efficiency expert of myself."

An idea like a flash sprang into her mind.

"Why can't I at home train a few college girls so their husbands won't have to suffer as Jim did while I was earning my job? They could come here from 9 till 5, one girl in the morning and one in the afternoon, or two all day. I'll charge two dollars for a three-hour lesson, three months' course. Maybe the dean will let it count one-half point toward a degree. I'll go right over to the college this afternoon."

The dean of the nearby college allowed Mrs. Carey to present her plan to a gathering of the girls.

Humorously she described her own helpless floundering when she was trying to begin housekeeping. Then she explained her idea of allowing girls to come to her own home, where by actual experience they could learn the routine work of a house.

"Baking and dressmaking will also be included," she added. "Now don't think that your trained minds can easily master the intricacies of housekeeping. That idea, I believe, is wrong. A girl without college training will take more kindly to housework because her mind has never had the advantage of advanced study, which has the tendency to make the routine work of a house seem petty."

"That does not mean that I object to college training in the home. On the contrary, the college bred women will attack the confusion caused by her ignorance of housework with a keenness that will make her more efficient than her sister with the untrained mind. She will give to the home and will surround her children with an atmosphere which only education can give."

Eight girls responded to this appeal. Six of these could start the next week and take three lessons a week. The other two, who were to be married soon, wanted to come together every morning for three months. Mrs. Carey went home jubilant. She even decided to teach her pupils to bathe her baby.

The success of the plan was far beyond her expectations. For two years she had pupils every day, and at the end of that time had $2,800 in the bank. The best of it was that Jim never suspected what was going on.

He was working night and day himself, yet did not act like a prosperous man. Several times she tried to urge him to tell her his troubles, but he evidently decided to spare her as long as possible. Perhaps she did not press the matter sufficiently, knowing that the day for her surprise would surely come.

It was two and one-half years after the teaching had been inaugurated that he came and slumped wearily into a chair.

"The bad news to tell you," he said, "I shall have to go into bankruptcy this week, and for only $600, too. I've tried everywhere to raise the money, but I can't do it. I am ashamed to bring this on you. The little home will have to go," he added, brokenly. "I'm sorry for you. I have tried—I guess I'm a failure. You ought not to have married me."

"Not another word," whispered his wife, kissing him. "Just shut your eyes and I'll get a surprise for you." In a minute she had put in his hands her savings bank book.

Jim looked at the cover and then at his wife. "I don't understand," he said slowly.

"Open it," said Mrs. Carey, eagerly. "It's all yours. I did it for you."

After her explanation he looked up from the total figure to the face of his wife, saying in a low, reverent voice:

"You can't realize what this means to me." He took her face between his palms and drew it to him. "It is your hand, dear, that make men worship women. Thank God that he let me marry you."

CAVE-MEN IN MANY LANDS

Some of Their Dwellings Are Not Without a Fair Standard of Modern Comfort.

Troglodytes, cave men, living in their cave dwellings, are to be found in Mexico, the Canary Islands, in the Crimea, as well as in Spain, France, Italy and England, according to Harold J. Shepherson, in the Wide World Magazine. The Italian troglodyte dwellings at Bari are little more than houses which it has been found simpler to cut out of the soft rock rather than to go to the trouble of collecting building materials.

The chief headquarters of the Spanish troglodytes is the village of Burgasot, near Valencia. Their dwellings are practically entirely beneath the ground. Many of these dwellings have been recently excavated and offer a fair standard of comfort, often having a handsome palm tree in front of the entrance.

Throughout the whole of Crimea there are endless successions of cave dwellings, but the only ones still inhabited are in Inkermann, a name which itself means "cave castle." There are vast holes and cozy rooms, with ledges of stones which were doubtless bedsteads in prehistoric times. There is also a wonderful cave church, fitted with columns, a choir loft and elaborate sarcophagi. The altar and the cross are of so unique a form that antiquarians are unable to connect them with any known sect.

WEAR DEAD HUSBAND'S SKULL

Andaman Widows Carry Grewsome Relic for Full Year, and Then Take Another Mate.

Widows in the Andaman Islands mourn on the death of their husbands by detaching the jaws of the dead, placing the heads on a platform in a tree for the birds to pick, then cleaning and ornamenting them with shells and wearing them on their backs for a year, even while working. At the end of the year they are free to marry again.

The widow has a warrior picked out for her by the chief, and he is usually accepted by her at sight. Then she goes to some lone spot, buries her beloved skull and returns to the camp to feast and dance. She soon, however, returns to the skull and spends a week in praying and fasting in its company, after which the skull is unearthed and brought to the village, where it is stuck on a pole and made to look on at a scene of feasting and dancing. When the marriage ceremony is over the skull is buried somewhere and forgotten.

The dead man is of no importance to the tribe. At the banquet the people gorge themselves and whirl and dance like mad things to the sound of the yemanga, a native instrument, until they drop one by one from sheer exhaustion.

Alexandria Modern City.

Alexandria, founded by the world conqueror, Alexander the Great, is an Egyptian city that is eager to lose its connection with the far away past and become completely modernized. Fate favors this ambition, for the wonders that Cleopatra knew have been eaten by fire or swept away by the sea. Alexandria is a city of trade and fashion, dominated by prosperous Europeans too deeply absorbed in the stock exchange to be even vaguely interested in the romantic side of their city.

Except for a few visitors who have read a little history and are wildly inquisitive regarding Cleopatra's palace and Pompey's pillar, the ruins of Alexandria rest peacefully, unphotographed and unchipped by souvenir hunters. One thing against the popularity of Alexandria's ruins is their scantiness. For the most part, they consist of a few carved stones and some "sites."

Because of You.

Because of you, is the world any better off? Because—never forget—it is because of you that a great many things in this world are as they are.

Because of you are there more smiles than tears?

Because of you, how many people are going to be glad that this day came around?

Because of you, is the contribution to human character enlarged? Are there people of bigger vision, finer ideals, broader sympathies and more tolerant opinions—because of you?

Would things slack up a little if you were to go away—but then grow in power and widened usefulness through the influence you left behind?

Because of you, is there more beauty in human association and more zest for enduring things? Is the day better off and are you glad that it came?—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Achievement Follows Work.

A reasoning age demands respect for the person of others no matter what the sex or social station. It's folly for a man to imagine that he is strangely destined to rank above his fellows. You may be on the road to power, but that will result from fitness rather than from any endowment of divinity. The old idea that nature bestows exceptional gifts upon certain individuals is pretty much fiction. It's nice for the gifted but rather hard on the common, ordinary chap. But experience shows that achievement is a matter of work and not of gift. The world is daily awarding prizes to those who dare to toll to the limit for the sake of winning place. Men who rise to remain leaders are those who fit themselves to hold high station.

BEAUTIFUL ISLE IS TOBAGO

Crusoe's Famous Abode, in the Caribbean, Described as a Place of Many Attractions.

Tobago, the scene of Robinson Crusoe's story, and the one-time residence of John Paul Jones, is an island of supreme beauty nestled in the Caribbean, whose stormy history is without parallel in the bloodstained annals of the West Indies. History says it was fought over for centuries by French, Spanish, British, Dutch and savage Caribs and often deserted for scores of years at a time. The Detroit News recalls. The justice of Tobago's claim to be called Crusoe's island is unquestionable. De foe's hero was one Alexander Selkirk in real life. That he was marooned as related is an historical fact. The natives can even show one the caves in which he dwelt, and from no other isle could the castaway have peered forth across the waters of the "Gulf of Oroneque," to which he refers, and see the faint outlines of the "Island of Trinidad," as stated in his story.

Wonderfully varied and beautiful is Tobago and the visitor is inclined to wonder why Crusoe ever deserted it. Its coast line has crescent sand beaches bordering sheltered coves; outlying verdure-draped rocky islets and wooded bays; surf-washed reefs protecting secluded lagoons. Everywhere wonderfully luxuriant vegetation covers the land. It has a delightful climate, there are no snakes, and it would be an ideal winter resort if its attractiveness were known. There is one village of 3,000 people on the island.

High Priests' Swimming Pool in Solomon's Temple Most Wonderful "Tub" Ever Constructed.

How many persons ponder, while "tubbing" in the midst of modern conveniences, on how the rest of the world performs this same act of personal cleanliness? The stolen pleasures of the "old swimmin' hole," the wooden tub in the kitchen surrounded by that questionable curtain of privacy—a sheet over the clothes horse—a real sea bath or swim in a "gym" pool have been the stepping stones of progression for most of us to the modern conveniences.

This bathing idea started with Bible folk, who built the most wonderful swimming pool the world has ever seen in Solomon's temple. This "molten sea" measured ten cubits from brim to brim, five cubits in height and was round in compass; the thickness was a hand's breadth, and the brim, shaped like that of a teacup, was carved with lilies and leaves. The immense basin was borne aloft by 12 curved oxen, three each facing north, south, east and west. The pool received and held 3,000 bathes at one time and was designed for and used by high priests, there being 20,000 baths of wine and the same number of oil provided for the laymen.—Indianapolis Star.

Beautiful St. Sophia.

St. Sophia's church at Constantinople is one of the most remarkable buildings in the world. In architectural features the structure has a 107-foot dome carried on four pillars, one at each corner, and composed of light pumice stone, with the apex 175 feet above the floor.

So extraordinary is the appearance of the church that the awe-stricken Sultan Mohammed is reported as having stopped at the door when the building was taken over by the Moslems and, seeing a soldier bowing at the floor "For the faith," exclaimed, "ye have the whole city to pillage and enslave; leave ye me the buildings!"

The Mohammedans have never destroyed the treasures of art they found upon taking Constantinople, but have covered them up. They have preserved whole cisterns or cellars full of priceless manuscripts of Greek and Byzantine literature, and writings belonging to the early part of the Gospel age.

To Drill Holes in Glass.

By using a combination of turpentine and camphor, glass may be drilled with a common drill, says Everyday Engineering. When the point of the drill comes through the hole should be worked with the end of a three-cornered file, having edges ground sharp. Use the corners of the file to scrape rather than as a reamer. Great care must be taken not to crack the glass or flake off pieces of it while finishing. The mixture should be used freely, both while drilling and scraping. It may be used as well to drill hard cast iron and tempered steel.

Effective Remedy.

"Glipping is beginning to talk bolshvist."

"Is there any cure for that sort of thing?"

"Certainly. Give Glipping a tip that will enable him to pick up a few thousands in the stock market and the alleged woes of the proletariat will no longer mean anything to him."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Reflected Glory.

"How would you like to see your wife making a speech from the rear end of a train?" asked the old-fashioned man.

"I wouldn't object," replied the new type of citizen. "I might wear a silk hat and be permitted to introduce her to the assembled multitude."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

AN ANNIVERSARY

By MABEL E. BLIGH.

(Copyright, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Mrs. Crawford picked up her sewing and threw it down again in disgust. Her wrath was not unjustified. She surveyed her surroundings with profound indignation. The furniture seemed a kind of symbol of the dreary monotony of life. It expressed so clearly the relentless decay of youth and hope.

The rocker in which she sat, with all the defects of antiquity save its charm, was a summary of her married life. It had been intended for mere temporary use; it had been their pleasant conviction that in a year or two they would replace it with something better—something that one could live with always. But Alfred's affluence had proved always just over the ridge of attainment.

She then went over again the bills in her desk. Once a month for 20 years she had struggled over these bills, buoyed up with a placid faith, that "next month" there would be something left over. But that next month never came.

It was not the everlasting proximity to poverty which made Mrs. Crawford's eyes grow dim as she sat in the fast darkening room reviewing her life. She had not married Alfred for money. She had loved him. He was a sober, steady, quiet, generous little man, with an unflinching good disposition, whom anyone must love.

Nevertheless, she could not quell an unrelenting sense of resentment. If only Alfred would be different occasionally. She shook her head helplessly. There was no use. The glowing fabric of hope had faded, as doubtless it must for everyone.

Her mind flashed back over the years to the perfumed summer evenings when she waited at the gate in the twilight, eagerly awaiting Alfred in his neat, dark suit and prodigiously high collar, swinging his stick smartly. It was usually dark when he arrived—with no regrets for that. They had not been married then, of course.

She thought of her wedding. She had made her bridal gown herself. Their honeymoon had been spent at a little summer resort only a few miles from her home by trolley. She smiled to think of those few days and how quickly they had slipped away.

Reluctantly, her thoughts came back to the bleak present. Alfred would be coming in presently. Then he would say: "Hello, dear," make some formal inquiry as to her occupation during the day and sometimes about the children. After supper he would submerge himself in the rocker and go to sleep. Sometimes he would kiss her or permit himself to be kissed.

Thus the days had ended for more years than she could remember.

Just at this stage of thinking she heard voices on the porch outside where she was sitting. Evelyn, the oldest of her girls and most like herself, was there with her young man. Her eyes clouded wistfully. Evelyn was adorable and so young!

Hearing Alfred coming up the front steps, she went to greet him.

"Supper is ready," she said, for want of something else to say.

"Let the children eat it," he replied briefly; "we are going out tonight."

"Out?" she repeated, amazed.

"Yep," he smiled mysteriously.

"Hurry up, dear; get dressed!" She turned and faced him.

"Alfred Crawford! Whatever are you up to?" she demanded.

He looked comically sheepish and said:

"Why—er—I thought we'd have a little dinner in town and then go to the theater. Remember how we used to go, dear?"

"Of course I remember!" she cried. "But Alfred, we can't afford it."

"Oh, hang the expense!" he said cheerfully. "Guess you don't remember what day this is, dear."

Well, she remembered that, too.

Thoroughly mystified, she went up and dressed. She could hear her husband softly singing one of her favorite songs—"Silver Threads Among the Gold."

"By gracious, you're a better looking girl than any of our daughters!" he declared with conviction as he looked at her.

Then, trying to change the subject, she said:

"What in the world has got into you?"

He hung his head quite boyishly, she thought.

"Well," he replied, "I just happened to be thinking that—well—that we are getting into sort of a rut, you know."

As they were about to leave she noticed a long, white-papered box on the hall table and asked:

"What have you there, Alfred?"

His absent-mindedness still clung to him.

"Oh, that? You got me so excited I forgot it." With a quick gesture he tore off the paper. "They're just some flowers I bought for you at the florist's—some pinks. You used to be so fond of them, you know."

As they sat in the darkness of the theater, and the orchestra was playing "Hearts and Flowers," her husband became aware of suspicious sounds emanating from his wife.

"What are you crying about, dear?" Her hand stole out until it found his.

"Oh, Alfred," she sniffed; "I—I'm so happy to know you are still the same old sweetheart. You did not forget, after all."

EUROPE TAKES TO 'TYPISTS'

Business Men There Are Gradually Laying Aside Steel Pen and Using Modern Methods.

Without a typewriter an American office would not be an office, but a relic of a past age. But Europe has been writing with pen and ink, and is just waking up to the typewriter, remarks the Golden Age. In France the courts are working on the problem whether a document such as a deed or a mortgage is legal if written on a typewriter.

The world war taught Europe many things, among others to value the typewriter. Prior to the conflict the proportion of the American writing machine output that was exported was 35 per cent to 40 per cent; now it is 50 per cent. The machines would be going over the water much faster if Europe could get the credits necessary to correct the unfavorable conditions of exchange. When the great loans that are expected have been made, the situation will be improved and a much greater volume of typewriter exports is looked for as a result of the credits.

Europe needs among other things modern office methods. She will be helped in effecting this improvement, because the prices of writing machines have not increased nearly as much as those of other products, partly perhaps because the prices were unduly high before the war. Improvement is the order of the day, and the tendency will become ever more marked as the golden age comes on.

NEED OF SPECIAL TRAINING

Youth Starting in Life Must Remember That This Is an Age of Specialists.

We are living today in the age of specialists in almost all lines and unless the young man who goes out to earn his own living is definitely trained in some one line, his chances of advancement are negligible. It is true that he can earn good wages at the outset and can hope for a few advancements, but unless he fits himself by training, experience and study for something bigger he will soon find he is in a blind alley job.

A boy does not always realize this; school life becomes humdrum to the lad bubbling over with fun and energy, and for him to sit on a bench with a book in his hands, studying what seems to be uninteresting facts, impresses him as a real hardship when he longs to be out in the world taking a place among comrades who have proved themselves independent.

This Is the Place Where the Guiding Hand of the Parent Is Necessary.

The boy must be made to understand that the training he is receiving now is sharpening him for future opportunities. He is likely to be reasonable if his parents have retained his confidence, and if they can show him that in dollars and cents he will be the gainer by continuing in school.—Emma Gary Wallace, in Christian Herald.

Coastal Defense of China.

The government of Peking, it is said, has a complete coastal defense plan for China, according to which the whole Chinese coast will be divided into four sections, i. e., the Gulf of Chihli, the coast of Kiang-su and Chekiang, the coast of Fukien and the coast of Kwantung. A coast defense commissioner will be appointed for each section, and he will be held responsible for the maintenance of peace and order in his own section. He will also control all ships entering his section.

The first, the second and the training squadrons will retain their present status, under the direct control of the navy department. The navy ministry contemplates appointing Admiral Li Ting-hsing as commissioner for the Gulf of Chihli, Admiral Lan Chien-shu for the Kiang-su and Chekiang section and Admiral Liu Kuan-hsing for Fukien. As to Kwantung, the commissioner will be appointed after the north and south have been reunified.—East and West News.

One Day Late.

The women's club of the little town where I worked in a grocery store near the depot had arranged for a well-known speaker to give an address in our theater one evening. The evening arrived, the hall was crowded, but no speaker appeared, and everyone was disappointed. The following evening just after the train came in a stranger appeared in the store and asked where Mr. ——— was to speak that night. I replied that he was to have spoken the night before, but added, "The big boob didn't come." Just then one of the leading women of the town came in and recognized the man as the speaker who had been expected the night before. Needless to say, I soon found work in the back of the store which needed immediate attention.

Terrible Effect of Prohibition.

The wives of two Muncie factory workmen were discussing the effect of prohibition on their husbands.

"When John comes home on Saturday nights nowadays with his pay envelope and turns it over to me," said one, "I always deals him out fifty cents for spendin' money and he spends it for himself."

"And what did he do in the old saloon days?" asked the other.

"In them terrible days," said the first, "when John turned over to me his pay envelope on Saturday noons, I used to give him fifty cents for a little spendin' money for himself, and soon he'd be back with a growler of beer for the two of us, bless his heart."—Indianapolis News.

THEIR DAY OFF

By LYDIA L. ROBERTS.

(Copyright, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Goodby, dears; be good children for grandma. Yes, I'll bring some candy; yes, baby, you may stay up and wait for us. Don't forget to practice. Bob; and please return the library books. Dick, Goodby, everybody," and Barbara Allen ran down the steps and hurried for the train.

"Now for a real rest and some fun," she thought in relief as the train neared the city.

"You are right on time, Harvey," she smiled as a tall, gray-eyed man eagerly met her in the station. "Today I can have you for a whole afternoon all to myself. I don't know how I should stand life otherwise, for business claims most of your time usually, and the furnace and the children demand the rest of it."

"It is very flattering to think you prize my society so highly," replied her husband, looking with fond pride at the dainty, fair-haired little woman at his side.

"Here we are in the palace of thrills, and we are lucky today, for these are good seats," said Barbara as they settled themselves in the theater.

"Sweetest to the sweetest," murmured Harvey, handing her a ribboned box and squeezing her hand in the darkness.

"I told you to buy only half a pound," scolded Barbara, "for you know the other half would buy a pair of stockings for baby; but they do look delicious."

After the picture the lights went on and the orchestra began to play.

"It was a good show," said Barbara as they left the theater. "I laughed till I cried, and then I laughed at myself for laughing."

"Yes, I enjoyed it," agreed Harvey.

A large, perfumed, fur-coated lady came toward them and stopped to chat.

"We are dining in town tonight," said Mrs. Graham, "and we take in the opera afterward. Have you been lately?"

"Oh, dear, no!" laughed Barbara. "We are having our regular day off. Every Saturday afternoon we meet in town and enjoy the movies, and end up with coffee and crackers at a dairy lunch and go home with a bagful of groceries and goodies for the children. We have heaps of fun and it brightens all the week."

"Oh, you children!" said Mrs. Graham indulgently. "Well, it's all right if you like it, I suppose. We really must be hurrying, so goodby."

"That couple has never grown up," pityingly said Mrs. Graham to her husband as they walked on.

"They seem very happy," he replied quietly.

"I wish you had a fur coat," sighed Harvey, as they came out of a store. "You would look mighty pretty in one."

"Yes, of course it would enhance my beauty," said Barbara demurely, "but the real question is, would you love me more in it?"

"Impossible," said Harvey sincerely.

"Well, then, would it make me any happier? No, because I'm as happy as anyone can be right now. Don't mind, Harvey, dear; we are young yet and there are years of furs and operas to anticipate, but meanwhile it's a very nice world today."

"Just think, hubby, we've got four pounds of sugar to take home. Listen till I tell you something:

We hold up our hands, For we're quite at our ease; In tones loud and fearless We say, "More sugar please!"

"Who is this young and frivolous girl I have with me?" mused her husband. "Come in this store at once while I buy flowers for my poetical wife."

"No, no, dear, you must not! Yes, of course I love Jonquills. Well, just three, then, for the little vase on my brown desk. Oh, dearies, these are lovely."

"Had a good time, wife?" asked Harvey as they finished their shopping and started for the train.

"Lovely time," said Barbara enthusiastically. "I feel very luxurious going home with candy and flowers and a new magazine, besides all our necessities."

"Well, I have to treat my young lady right," teased Harvey.

The train was crowded and the white-haired conductor good-naturedly struggled and pushed his way through the happy end-of-the-week throng.

"Don't squeeze me so hard, ladies, you make me blush," he joked as he nodded to Barbara and Harvey.

"Yes, I sold her the hat," said a girl's voice in front of them. "She's my brother's girl and thinks nothing of buying a fifty-dollar hat whenever she wants it."

"Commuters' special," whispered Barbara. "Isn't it funny that what buys only enough for one person's head will feed and house and take care of several other people from head to foot?"

"Here is our station," smiled Harvey. "We've bought happiness today, anyway, haven't we, dear?"

"Yes, the sugar is in the bag," regally teased Barbara.

A short walk brought them to their street.

"I see the boys watching for us and there's baby with her curly head bobbing in the window. Now they are! Oh, Harvey, how rich we are! We've got each other and home and love and little children!"

BANISH DEMON OF INSOMNIA

Physician Declares "Balm Sleep" May Be Obtained by Following Advice He Gives.

The other day a medical man, consulted by a patient who feared insomnia, instead of prescribing the expected drug, merely told his patient how to sleep. The threatened insomnia was banished, says London Answers.

One should lie on the right side—not because this affects the heart, but because it relieves pressure on the digestive organs. But the right side is not "a full right." There should be a slight tilt to the left, so that the right shoulder blade, and not just the shoulder, takes the weight.

The proper position is to elevate the feet three inches or so higher than the head and just to "crook" the legs slightly. Head pillows should not be used, or but just a small one. And that should come under the neck. Nature's pillow is the sleeper's own arm, curved.

Bed clothing should be just sufficient for warmth. Overweight or over-tightness—some sheets are tucked in much too tightly—induce restlessness, which may easily develop into insomnia, which is as much a habit as a disease.

Each individual has a nervous system which is his own and unlike any one else's. It is, therefore, undesirable, in the case of persistent inability to sleep, to move the bedstead. Try an east-west position, instead of a north-south, or vice-versa.

The sleeping result may surprise you.

PLAN CLINICS TO STUDY CRIME

Psychiatric Research Offers Possibilities in the Solving of Problems.

WORK RENEWED AFTER WAR

Preventive Rather Than Cure Is the Watchword of the Modern Psychiatricist—Reach Them Before Crime Becomes a Habit.

New York.—Broad possibilities for the operation of psychiatric clinics in connection with courts and correctional institutions during the reconstruction period are outlined in an article appearing in Mental Hygiene, written by Dr. Thomas W. Salmon, medical director of the national committee for mental hygiene. The title of the article is "Some New Problems for Psychiatric Research in Delinquency."

The work of which Dr. Salmon writes was well under way in a number of institutions, notably in the vicinity of New York City, when war interrupted it, taking many of the trained psychiatrists into the service and otherwise curtailing the effort to apply the principles of modern psychiatry to the handling of persons accused of crime and those already convicted.

Sufficient progress had been made with the work, says Dr. Salmon, to assure it of an important place in all future efforts to get at the roots of crime and delinquency and to make it certain that these conditions "can no more be successfully managed without investigating the state of the organ of conduct than disorders of other kinds can be treated without understanding the processes responsible for them."

Its Importance in Courts.

The beginning of the application of psychiatry to crime and delinquency was through clinics in children's courts. Successful here, it spread into other criminal courts and into institutions where, according to Dr. Salmon, it is destined to play an important part in determining the best methods for handling prisoners so as to do the best by them and by society as well.

In connection with the part the psychiatrist is destined to play in modern court procedure, Dr. Salmon believes that the establishment of such clinics, presided over by experts with no connection with either side of the cases tried, will go a long way toward bringing about better conditions. Concerning the so-called "alienist" and his "expert testimony," Dr. Salmon says:

"Why supreme courts and courts of the general sessions content themselves with the so-called medico-legal testimony of 'alienists' employed by the district attorney and the defense—which is neither medical nor legal—remains a mystery. The findings of a psychiatric clinic, scientifically and impartially conducted with the sole purpose of adding the judges in disposing of human issues before them, have more practical value than all the expert testimony that either side could purchase with the proceeds of a liberty loan."

Wide Field for Investigation.

Interesting especially is the suggestion by Dr. Salmon of the possibilities of finding out the deep seated causes of anti-social conduct in the individual through psychiatry. He says a comparatively small element furnishes the crime of a community and affords a field for scientific and impartial, unprejudiced study that is rich and almost virgin.

He thinks that this phase of criminology has barely been scratched as yet and believes it should be carried far in an endeavor to trace to their sources the original impulses for crime, so that eventually remedies may be found.

Prevention, rather than cure, is the watchword of the modern psychiatrist, as it is of the modern physician, although neither is inclined to neglect the person who has fallen ill. Dr. Salmon emphasizes the need of clinics that may reach first offenders before crime has become a habit. These, discovering the sources of criminal impulses and applying the proper remedies, may restore many persons of anti-social tendencies to society as normal citizens, in the opinion of Dr. Salmon.

Red-Haired Old Maids Scarce, Says Briton

London.—"Have you noticed that there are very few red-haired old maids?" said an authoritative anthropologist. "Red-haired people are of a very high order of intelligence. Consequently red-haired girls have many admirers and marry young."

His opinion was expressed relative to the statement of a cinema producer that brunettes are cleverer than blondes. Several scientists agreed generally that both men and women of dark complexion are quick-witted and imaginative, while the great majority of fair people are more hardheaded but a little slower in mental response.

MAKES A PIKER OF CAPT. KIDD

Florida Coast Is Infested With Smugglers.

TELL TALES OF EXPLOITS

Liquor Running on Vast Scale Is in Progress—Revenue Officers Have 500 Miles of Coast to Cover—Almost Every One of Thousand Islands in West Indies Group Is Cache for Liquor—Shipped Out and Smuggled Back

Miami is agog today with tales of smuggling that bring memories of the old days when pirates infested the West Indies a century ago, ran the gauntlet of revenue officers and brought rich cargoes into Florida.

In every club, hotel, restaurant and cafe people are discussing thrilling stories of how Capt. K— or Skipper L— slipped through the net of revenue cutters and landed with a rich cargo. And as these people talk they drink.

They drink cargoes that have been smuggled past the federal authorities. The prohibition amendment didn't stop the sale of liquor in Florida; it merely boosted the price.

It is not difficult to secure a drink of whisky in Florida. It cannot be said that the stuff is sold openly, but a pleasant assurance that you are "all right" and a dollar bill will bring a highball in almost any restaurant.

Sheriff a Wet Sympathizer.

In one county the sheriff is supposed to be in league with the liquor runners. It is said that this sheriff went out with some revenue agents, made an arrest, and left the liquor in charge of a colored man while the smugglers were being arrested. When they returned the colored man and the liquor had disappeared.

"Florida didn't vote to make this nation dry," said one city official when asked about the situation.

So all the smugglers have to face is an ardent staff of government officers. These revenue officers have more than 500 miles of coast to cover and it is said that almost every one of the thousands of islands in the West Indies group is a cache for liquor. From the Ten Thousand Islands on the west coast of Florida to the Andros islands of Cuba there are little pieces of land that are used as headquarters by the smugglers.

In Columbus' Footsteps.

On Benini says, in Nassau, in the Bahama islands, even on San Salvador, where Columbus first landed, there is whisky. It is purchased from the states, shipped out, and then smuggled back.

Last week in Nassau seven ships came to port with cargoes of whisky, bonded whisky from Kentucky and Peoria. The cargoes are removed and the whisky disappears. Any vessel that can travel through the gulf stream is used by the smugglers.

Sometimes the liquor is brought close to the three-mile limit and then anchored to a buoy to be picked up by fishermen later.

Outside Miami there is a series of buoys marking the channel. A party of revenue officers went out to change the markers. Deep in the water attached to the buoy, they discovered a case of whisky.

In Benini a sporting club has been organized. It is called the Benini Rod and Gun club by some, but more often referred to as the "Forty Rod and Gun club." It takes forty minutes to reach Benini from Miami. Small steamers are chartered daily for the trip. It was in Benini that Ponce de Leon "discovered" his fountain of youth. The fountain is still flowing.

Whisky can be purchased in Nassau for 11 shillings a quart. In Miami a quart of the stuff can be purchased for $10. The country clubs, the cafes, the hotels, all sell it.

LIGHTHOUSE NEAR END

Famous Landmark of Atlantic Coast in Danger.

Although Henlopen light, one of the famous landmarks of the Atlantic coast, has been badly undermined by the battering of the heavy seas and storm, it was said by shipping men at Wilmington, Del., to be in no immediate danger after a recent storm.

It was believed the light would again weather the storm in safety. A report that the structure was leaning could not be verified, as the telephone wire there was out of commission. Harry Palmer, chief keeper, and three assistants refused to leave the lighthouse.

For years the water has been creeping up on the light until it is only 150 feet from the base of the structure at low tide. The foundation of sand and loam is being eaten away by each succeeding storm.

Talk of moving it back has been heard from time to time, but it is always declared the cost was prohibitive. The lighthouse was built by the English in 1764.

PLANT TREES ON SOIL WHERE YANKEES DIED

French Reforesting Devastated Districts With Seed From United States.

On the battlefields where American soldiers gave their lives when the call from humanity came, France is planting trees sent by the American Forestry association.

Expressing the gratitude of the minister of agriculture of France, Ambassador Jusserand reported to the American Forestry association the first steps taken to care for the seeds which the association shipped to France from Boston January 15 to help in reforesting the battle areas. Upon arriving at Havre the seeds were sent to the central warehouse of the forest school at Nogent sur Vernisson, Loiret. In his report to the American Forestry association, Ambassador Jusserand said:

"Most of the seeds of Douglas fir will be sent to the departments of the Aisne, Oise, Ardennes and Somme, for the reforestation of the regions devastated by war. The seeds of the leafy trees, such as oak, ash and poplar, will be sown this spring in the nurseries of the same school and that at Nancy. The minister adds an expression of his desire that his feelings of deep gratitude and those of the administration of waters and forests be conveyed to the American Forestry association."

"Thus in the years to come," said Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Forestry association, "America will have the finest of all memorials on the battlefields where her sons answered the call of humanity—the living, growing trees of America."

LOSES HIS $15,000 FLAT

Business at Last Claims Building in Financial District.

The New York curb market is only a blur of red caps and black to the feeble eyes of the old man who sits all day at the window behind the old-fashioned Nottingham lace curtains at 62 Broad street.

Hiram Hildebrandt is ninety-two years old, and long has ceased to take any interest in the turmoil of the great financial world that seethes at his feet. Business, which by some mischance had spared the little building all these years, now has claimed it for her own, and the Hildebrandts must move.

For all these residential advantages (to say nothing of the financial possibilities of the location) the Hildebrandts have been paying the astonishing sum of $10 a month. They have six large rooms and a glass covered court that makes an excellent clothes yard.

Hiram Hildebrandt rented the flat fifty years ago from Mayor Gunther. When the property passed into the hands of the Stevens estate Mr. Hildebrandt was retained as janitor, and so the rent never was raised.

The Hildebrandts were paying for 3,000 square feet, or what would command a rental of $15,000. Instead they paid $10.

L. L. Winkelman, a broker, recently became the owner of the $10 flat. When altered the property will be worth about $400,000.

PETAIN IS DEMOCRATIC

Refuses to Use Government Auto When Off Duty.

Marshal Petain is noted for his democratic habits and a story is just being told of him which illustrates this point, while it brings into relief the way motor transportation was used by many American officers in France, says the Stars and Stripes.

The marshal was met in the Metro recently by Senator Strauss of the Seine, who asked the marshal if his motor was broken down that he was riding in the Metro.

"My car," the marshal replied, "is intended for government service. When I go out on my own account I take a public conveyance in order to save gasoline and tires."

CAN'T SPEAK ENGLISH

Three Normal American Boys Never Taught to Talk.

Invent Queer Gibberish When Neglected by Hard-Working Parents.

Pomona, Cal.—How easily the chain of civilization is broken and how definitely its very maintenance depends upon every parent's training of the child, is dramatically illustrated here in the case of the three Keown boys.

Harold, Udel and Roy Keown, ten, nine and eight years old, are healthy, physically normal American youngsters, living in a bustling town, who have never learned to talk, simply because their parents neglected to teach them how.

The astonishing case was placed before the Welfare League of Pomona a few days ago by a teacher who, when the boys appeared at school, discovered that while apparently otherwise normal, they seemed bereft of speech.

The gibberish of the three Keown boys, who never learned to talk intelligibly, has a curious similarity to the Hawaiian dialect. The following words comprise most of their vocabulary:

"Baa"—hunger, "Waa"—thirst, "Dug"—sleep, "B-r-r"—dog, "Meuh"—cat, "Oh'h'h"—spanking, "Ooop"—tree, "Sw'sh"—water, "Unckuck"—chicken, "Bap"—shoes, "Deedee"—pants, "Tah"—shirt, "Choo"—train or trolley cars. A whistle designated a bird. What they lacked in words they made up in signs.

An examination by specialists showed no defects.

The boys' father and his wife have worked early and late for years, having a hard time making a living for their brood. In addition to Roy, Udel and Harold there are five other children. The harassed parents, too busy to give them much attention, simply turned the younger ones over to the older.

The boys have now been placed in three separate homes, where they are associating with other lads and where they are rapidly learning to speak.

BRITISH SELL SHOES IN U.S.

Combine, Aided by Exchange Rate, Sends Over $3,750,000 Worth.

New York.—British shoe manufacturers are about to invade the American market, Walter Crick, representative of a combine of 45 leading English makers of footwear, said at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mr. Crick brought with him to the country $3,750,000 worth of shoes in hopes to dispose of to American dealers.

"The present rate of exchange usually favors American buyers in England at this time, bringing our goods down to a quick-selling level," Mr. Crick said.

"In the shoe stocks which I will offer here there are nearly 500,000 pairs of workmen's shoes which should retail for about $5.50, while the better grade of calfskin will bring $12 to $14."
