THE EFFICIENCY MAN.

"Six months to feed already—oh, John, how can you take care of another one?"

"The more the merrier, dear mother mine," cried bluff, hearty John Harlan. "Now, don't you go bringing any worry or gloom into this happy, happy house. Lucia wants you, as she always does when the stock comes around. Her spirits are up to the top notch and you want to keep them so."

"I declare, John, you and Lucia take things the coolest I ever knew! You're working in a dismal office from morning until night, and surely Lucia has to maneuver to keep things going. I don't see how you do it."

"Just by thinking of our little brood of four and being thankful that we've got them," responded the stalwart son heartily.

Old Mrs. Harlan forgot her forebodings when she got inside the small, but neatly kept cottage. Four jolly, loving little ones clustered about her with caresses and kisses, and Lucia, all welcoming smiles, acted as though the dearest wish of her heart was fulfilled in gaining the company of her busy, useful mother-in-law.

"It's pretty near heaven here," said the latter, quivering with genuine emotion. "Lucia, you have been a great blessing to John and I don't wonder he worships the very ground you walk on."

"Does he, mother?" spoke Lucia, beaming with delight. "Oh, how glad and proud that makes me! I never saw such a man! You couldn't get him to pass an hour away from home evenings if you offered him a fortune. It has been one joy after another ever since we married."

John Harlan left home next morning whistling like a lark. He entered the establishment of Robert Will where he had been entry clerk for ten years, humming a lively tune. Slim Davies, likewise a veteran in the service, pointed to the door of the private office in a meaning way. "Going to be a change here," he observed.

"What do you mean, Slim?" inquired John.

"Efficiency expert in there. You see, since Dorsett and Wadham left us and set up for themselves, Mr. Will seems to think that he has got to urge things on and keep pace with competition and progress."

"Any danger of getting young and better help?" inquired John.

"It can't be done. I heard Mr. Will himself say that yesterday. No, I think it means a better show for us."

The anticipated "better show" materialized that afternoon. All day long the expert, a brisk, keen-eyed young man, went over the books, the work rooms, the offices, the stock. About three o'clock Mr. Will called John and Davies into his office.

"We're going to speed up," he said. "The expert here has gone over the entire business and has suggested a new system and many innovations. He has advised that I promote you two to the positions Dorsett and Wadham held. Then for the general help he suggests that we advance the pay according to seniority."

"And I have also advised that married men be given the preference here," broke in the expert. "Further, I believe it a good point to advance each employee one hundred dollars a year for each child he has."

This nearly took John's breath away. Why, that meant four hundred dollars, enough to pay off all he owed on his little home.

"I follow the theory," proceeded the expert, "that the more domestic responsibilities a man has, the closer he will stick to a good job. For every future child that comes along, I advise a bonus of two hundred dollars."

"Wanted, Mr. Harlan, at the telephone here," interrupted the stenographer, and John took up the receiver on Mr. Will's desk.

There was a lapse in the conference pending his return. Then his cheery face became all glowing sunshine.

"I've got some very good news," he reported, putting down the receiver. "You know we were expecting a little stranger, Mr. Will. Well, my dear old mother telephones me it's all over and everybody well and happy."

John was showered with congratulations. He was one great smiling exemplar of the most fervent joy. "That is No. 5, I believe, Harlan," spoke Mr. Will interrogatively.

"Yes, sir," acknowledged John proudly.

"And incidentally another two hundred dollars," remarked the expert. Again the stenographer interrupted as once more the telephone rang.

"For you again, Mr. Harlan," she said. "Same party, I think."

Wider grew the smile on John's happy, honest face as he took in a new remarkable message. Then in his quaint humorous way he turned to Mr. Will.

"Two hundred dollars for every new child, I think you said?" he asked.

"That's the new system," smiled back his employer.

"You look a happy one," submitted the efficiency expert.

"Boy or girl, Harlan?" asked Mr. Will.

"Both!" cried John, aglow with delight. "Four hundred dollars' worth—they're twins!"

WALKS ACROSS STATE

SISTER THINKS CZAR ALIVE

Grand Duchess Olga Goes to Denmark to Take Up Residence — Found in Rags.

Constantinople, Turkey. — Grand Duchess Olga Alexander, sister of former Emperor Nicholas of Russia, has gone to Denmark, where she will reside permanently. She firmly believes her brother and his family are alive.

The grand duchess, who was formerly the wife of Duke Peter of Oldenburg, obtained a divorce and during the war served as a Russian nurse. While engaged in this work she met Colonel Kohnko, whom she married.

She came here from Novorossiysk on a refugee steamer with her husband and two young sons, and won admiration by her democratic attitude. She refused to accept any special privileges and at the disinfection station at the refugee camp in the Prinkips islands she sat on her luggage, holding her two children, waiting her turn. She could have claimed exemption from this troublesome process, which has been rendered necessary by the spread of typhus, but she refused to do so.

The grand duchess recently was found by Red Cross workers clothed in rags and living in a box car.

FRANCE HAS LONG-RANGE GUN

Shoots 100 to 120 Miles—Americans Ask to See Tests of the Weapon.

Paris, Delamare Maze, a French inventor, has sold to the French government the patent of a new long range gun which after thorough tests has shown it has a range of from 100 to 120 miles.

The shell leaves the muzzle of this gun at a speed of approximately 4,178 feet per second.

Premier Lloyd George announced in the British parliament recently that England had been negotiating with France to secure the right to use the plans for the new gun, and the Belgian government is now manufacturing a similar cannon at Liege. American military attaches in Europe have written to the government, asking that American representatives may be present at tests of the weapon.

WORKS NEW CHECK SWINDLE

Obliging Los Angeles Garage Owner Cashes $50 Paper for "Stalled" Motorist.

Los Angeles, Cal.—What was declared to be a new twist to an old game was reported to the sheriff's office by the owner of the Moorpark garage. A man, carrying a black grip and an overcoat, appeared at the garage and said his automobile had broken down three miles south of the garage. He asked that the garage owner tow in the car. Just before the latter was about to leave for that purpose the stranger asked him to cash a check so certain purchases could be made at a near-by town. No wrecked car was found and when the garage man returned the stranger was gone. The check, for $50, was on the National Bank of Commerce, Kansas City.

Makes Monkeys of Them.

Eddyville, Ky.—The sale of miniature monkeys carved from peach stones has netted Sam Patrick, Simpson county convict, more than $500 in three years. He has invested $450 in war savings stamps.

Judge's Sons Adopt "Moonshine" Methods

San Rafael, Cal.—Little pitchers have big ears, as is well known. And Justice of the Peace H. de la Montanya knows that his sons, Lloyd and Herbert, 14 and 12 years old, are such good listeners that they almost learned enough the other night to kill them.

The judge and his wife and sons were at the home of a neighbor not long ago and the neighbor explained all about distilling whisky. Several minutes later the judge and his wife returned from a picture show to discover a strange odor coming from their kitchen.

They found their sons lying semi-conscious on the floor and a sickening odor filling the room.

On the stove was a concoction with a rubber hose attached. In the kettle was a concoction of corn and molasses. The boys were trying to make "moonshine."

Dr. R. G. Duffley, who attended the lads, said they would soon recover.

NEW FLU SCOURGE IS FOUND

Children of Vienna Are Left Stupefied and Emaciated After Epidemic.

Washington.—A new form of encephalitis lethargica, caused by the germ of influenza and attacking the brain of its victim, is exacting almost unhindered toll among the children of Vienna, according to reports from the Red Cross missions at Vienna to national headquarters here. The disease, which has thus far defied the power of medical science, leaves its victim stupefied and terribly emaciated. One child aged seven years, according to the Red Cross reports, weighed only 29 pounds when it died a victim of the disease.

Fighting against the almost insurmountable obstacle of lack of medicine, supplies and food, American Red Cross physicians have sought to stop the spread of the disease. Hospitals are overcrowded, for a long period of convalescence is required for those who recover.

The extraordinarily cold weather of the Austrian winter contributed largely to the prevalence of the epidemic among children. Without food and clothing, and in a generally weakened physical condition, they quickly succumb to the disease.

WAILING PLACE OF JEWS

The famous "wailing place of the Jews" in Jerusalem is here seen under strange conditions. For many centuries the Jews have been accustomed on Friday afternoons and festival days to bewail the desolation of the temple, but on the Friday on which the picture was taken the Jews were kept within doors by a great blizzard. This British soldier was the only visitor to the historic spot.

CHILD TAKES FATHER'S NAME

Legitimate Heir Even if Born Out of Wedlock, North Dakota Court Rules.

Fargo, N. D.—A case under North Dakota's law, enacted to establish the legitimacy of children born out of wedlock, has been completed at Fargo, N. D., and a child so born has received his father's name and been declared his legitimate heir.

Under this law, which is said to be the first of its kind in the country, a child born out of wedlock is declared to be the child of its natural parents, as such is entitled to support, shelter and education equally with other children born in legal marriage and is entitled to share in any estate jointly with all other legal heirs.

First Letter in Years.

Huntington, Ind.—The first letters in seven years from her sister and parents overseas brought news to Mrs. Max Zion Monday that they had escaped the ravages of war and revolution in Russia and were now safe in Poland. The sister is Miss Cecelia Schechter. Several other relatives of the Schechters live in this city, and have been waiting for word for many months. The last letter previously to the war arrived early in 1913.

JOHN ISENBARGER A TRUE DEMOCRAT

STANDS ON PLATFORM THAT APPEALS TO ALL CLASSES OF PEOPLE

GOOD BUSINESS MAN

Experienced in Public Life and Has Always Stood for Community Betterment.

JOHN ISENBARGER

CANDIDATE FOR DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION FOR GOVERNOR OF INDIANA

Who Is John Isenbarger?

Prominent business man of North Manchester.

Trustee of Purdue university. Member Indiana State Board of Agriculture. Former president of board and oldest member in point of service, having served on it for fourteen years.

President Indiana Fair Managers' Association. Democratic chairman of 11th Congressional District. Member legislature in 1913.

Twice the party nominee for state treasurer.

HE STANDS FOR:

HOME RULE
GOOD SCHOOLS
GOOD ROADS
ABOLISHMENT OF TAX BOARD
BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

John Isenbarger, of North Manchester, banker, real estate dealer, business man and farmer, is a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of Indiana. He has been an active party worker for twenty years, giving of his time, money and talents to promote the cause of democracy in the Hoosier state.

Isenbarger was born on a farm in the southern part of Kosciusko county, near Silver Lake forty-five years ago. He remained on the farm until he reached young manhood, when he moved to North Manchester and entered the real estate business.

He organized the Indiana State bank at North Manchester and assisted in starting the Lawrence National some years later. He is a capable, thorough business man of sound judgment, high integrity, unquestioned honesty and lofty ideals—a man to be trusted in any capacity. He has a strong sense of responsibility and appreciates the obligation which every office-holder owes the people he represents.

Fourteen years ago Isenbarger was named a member of the Indiana State Board of Agriculture and, in continuous service, he has the longest record of any on the board. He was president of the organization during months of its most important accomplishment, directing the affairs of the great Hoosier fair at Indianapolis in a manner that readily stamped him as an executive of unusual ability.

As a trustee of Indiana's great industrial and agricultural institution—Purdue University—Isenbarger established a reputation as a worker for the cause of education and is one of Purdue's most prominent leaders today. He strongly favors an adequate scale of remuneration for teachers from the first grade to the last year of the university post graduate school.

As president of the Indiana Fair Managers' Association and as head of the Wabash county fair, Isenbarger has long been a leader in bettering agricultural conditions through a wholesome stimulation of competition in fair entries.

Isenbarger has long been a party worker. He was county chairman of Wabash county and is now chairman of the Eleventh district committee. He was the party's nominee for state treasurer and was defeated each time by a narrow margin—once by a recount which gave his opponent an advantage of but 270 votes. He is an untiring worker for the good of the democratic party, is a loyal Hoosier and enthusiastic for every movement which is for the good of Indiana and the people of this great state.
