NAMED AFTER ENGLISH CITIES

Boston and Lynn, Massachusetts, Are Neighbors Here as They Are Across the Water.

The oldest place bearing the name Lynn is Lynn Regis, or King's Lynn to give the English meaning of the Latin word "regis." It is a town of about 20,000 inhabitants still possessing considerable commerce but a place of importance three centuries and more ago, when it was often visited by kings. It is a seaport of Norfolk county, England, situated on the Great Ouse river not far from the Wash which is a great bay indenting the east coast of England. Lynn Regis is near the south side of the Wash and directly across the Wash is the ancient city of Boston.

In early colonial times a settlement sprang up near Boston, Mass., to which was given the Indian name, Saugus. In 1636 a minister named Samuel Whiting came to Saugus, and from that time until his death in 1679 he was the pastor of the congregation. He was born and brought up in Lynn Regis, Norfolk, England, and a year after his arrival at Saugus the name of the settlement was changed to Lynn in honor of the pastor's birthplace. And so Boston in the New World came to have a Lynn as a neighbor, just as ancient Boston in England has Lynn Regis a neighbor across the waters of the Wash.

INTELLIGENCE OF HIGH ORDER

Remarkable Stories of Sagacity Shown by Animals in Connection With the Great War.

The high intelligence of horses was superbly demonstrated during the war, and some day a lover of the horse will collate the many wonderful incidents in which he played a leading part. One of these will be the vagaries of a Canadian general's thoroughbred, which again and again refused to budge to the spur at times when there was apparently no evidence of the slightest danger. Twice he saved his master's life by deliberate acts of insubordination. The latest yarn about a pony that had a race-track reputation is worth repeating in this connection. Every morning its owner brought this pony into the dining room of the house in which the narrator was billeted, and led him round the table. The pony was offered all sorts of dainties, but he would only touch slices of bread and butter, of which he was inordinately fond. It was not a big room, and there was not much space between the wall and the table, so if he had shown any restlessness the table and all that was on it must have been demolished. He, however, behaved always with the manners of a retriever dog, and only the slices of bread and butter had to be replenished.

Helgoland Dismantled.

A dispatch from Berlin to the Associated Press states that the Helgoland defenses are today dismantled. The island and its thousands of tons of masonry and gun emplacements is all that remains of this once most formidable fortress. With the guns dismantled, the destruction of the military harbor works and various fortifications has proceeded. Although this stronghold cost over 175 million dollars, its guns were fired but once throughout the war, when the British warship Shannon was the target. The allies recognized that it would have been impossible to silence its batteries. The artificial harbor works and the ground on which the barracks stand are to be removed and the site returned to the sea.—Scientific American.

NOT SO BAD.

"This is a terrible business." "Oh, I don't know. I've lived with my wife's relatives for the last four years."

Statue to Balboa.

Panama is to have a statue of Balboa, the discoverer of the Pacific ocean. The contract for the work has already been signed at Madrid, and the monument has been entrusted to the sculptor Benlliure. That there is to be no undue haste in the matter is signified by the fact that the contract does not call for the delivery of the monument until two years after the signing of the agreement. The opportunities for a most effective piece of work are many, with the likelihood of the man overlooking the ocean of his discovery. The grandiose setting would seem to call for a grandiose actor to dominate the scene.

Demand for Change.

The total number of coins of American money produced in 1919 was 738,649,000 and their value was $20,777,000. They included 3,679,000 half dollars, 15,104,000 quarters, 54,529,000 dimes, 76,335,000 five-cent pieces and 589,935,000 pennies.

Most Illustrious Corps. The Dorset (England) village of Worth Matravers, which is to be sold by auction, has few claims to fame. The most illustrious corpse in the churchyard seems to be that of one Benjamin Jesty, who died in 1816, and who was the first person who introduced the cow-pox by inoculation, and who from his great strength of mind made the experiment from the cow on his wife and two sons in the year 1774. Most readers will agree with Sir Frederick Treve's comment that "the epitaph says nothing of the greater strength of mind shown by the wife and two sons in submitting themselves to this hazard, nor how it came to pass that the iron-minded Benjamin did not first try the experiment upon himself."

ITS PURPOSE.

While waiting for his train the young man amused himself with the various slot machines. At last he came to one which did not respond to the penny he deposited.

"Look here!" he said to a porter who was standing by. "I've tried my strength on one machine and I've tried my weight on another, but what's this apparatus? I've put in a penny and got nothing."

"Oh," responded the porter, "that's to try your temper."—Boston Transcript.

Esperanto Bible.

Esperantists will learn with interest that the unpublished MS. of the late Dr. L. L. Zamenhof's translation from the Hebrew into Esperanto has been successfully transferred from Warsaw to England, and that it is to be published jointly by the British and Foreign Society and the National Bible Society of Scotland. For some years the new testament has been available, thanks to the labors of the Rev. J. Cyprian Rust (Soham, Cambridge), and the same Esperanto expect is at the head of the revised committee which has undertaken the reading over of the Old Testament.
