

WOMEN'S COUNSEL.

Some husbands, who thro' want of wit,
Spor on their own declension,
Think it a scandal to submit
To female reprobation,
But he that leads a single life,
And still pursues his error,
Is happy in a prudent wife,
With patience ought to hear her,
For that 'tis woman's sphere to mind,
Their children, and their houses,
Yet spendthrift sons should think it kind,
With counsel'd by their spouses,
Not that if man should run astray,
A woman must be railing;
For scolding is an odious way,
That seldom is prevailing,
Ill words provoke, and not reclaim,
'Tis good advice in season,
That wins the spendthrift to his dame,
And brings him to his reason.
Men have their failings tho' they're wise,
It is alas! too common;
No husband therefore should despise,
Good counsel from a woman.

Luther's Description of a Christian.

A Christian is a child of God, a brother of Christ, a temple of the Holy Ghost, an heir of the kingdom, a companion of the angels, a lord of the word, and a partaker of the Divine Nature. The Christian's glory is the Christian on earth. He is a worthy child of God endued with Christ's righteousness, walking in holy fear and cheerful obedience before his father, shining as a light in the world, a rose among thorns. He is a wonderfully beautiful creature of the grace of God, over which the holy angels rejoice, and attended and ministered unto by them wherever he goes. He is a wonder to the world, a terror to the devil, an ornament to the church, a delight of heaven. His heart is full of pain, his eyes full of tears for a perishing world, his mouth full of sighs, and his hands full of good works.

Extract from the speech of Mr. Root in the New York Legislature.

"A great noise had been made about foreign garden seeds and none could be genuine, but such as had floated across the Atlantic.—Experience, however, had shown that the valuable seeds, Scotch cabbage, ruta baga and all had been selected and planted here more than a century ago. Foreign grapes too had excited much attention, but it was now clearly evinced that they were not adapted to our climate. A friend of his, at the time that Cobbett's Long Island farming project was all the rage, had kindly sent him a box of Cobbett seeds. Fifteen kinds of grass seeds were included. He made beds for them all in his garden. Two, the St. Foin and lucerne are yet alive, but he had let go the thirteen kinds, finding them altogether inferior to our American grasses. Passing across Staten Island not long ago he there found a luxurious but noxious weed of the same kind with one of those which had been sent as grass seeds, and so carefully boxed in England. Some years ago we were acquainted with the red scarcity root. It is now dignified with the name of mangle wortzel; merino potatoes too and ruta baga, that in former times was the plain Swedish turnip, where are they? Gone, and going the same way. He had cultivated the famous ruta baga. He raised a quantity of it and concluded one day to try and see how his cattle would like a treat from Cobbett's seed box. The cattle were driven up and the ruta baga offered to them. They made some experiments—threw it about them but would not eat it. A wag present said it was because they had not read Cobbett's book."

WRIGHT's FERRIES.

FERRY from both sides of the Ohio river, and Boats in complete order.

The subscriber residing in Clarksville, Ia., informs travellers and the public generally, that he is authorized to Ferry from both sides of the Ohio river: viz from Clarksville, Ia., to Shippingport, Ky. and from thence to Clarksville again. All those who will favor him with a call may depend on the fidelity of the arrangement, and all passengers who may cross at either of his Ferries on the Ohio river will be entitled, at that time, to a passage across Silver-creek, free of charge, at the mouth of which stream he also keeps a Ferry: this arrangement will afford considerable accommodation to the inhabitants who reside on the banks of Silver-creek, as well as to those who may have business in that part of the neighborhood from Kentucky. He also keeps a Ferry across the river from Shippingport to Clarksville and desirous to have passengers who may cross at his Ferry for a ticket, which will entitle them to a passage across Silver-creek. The above Ferries are all supplied with fast Boats sufficient to convey a loaded wagon and six horses. There is a good House of Entertainment lately opened in Shippingport, near Mr. Tarascon's mill, the house messrs. Joyce and Price, at their store, where man and horse can be comfortably entertained. Accommodations may also be had in Clarksville for man and horse and foot travellers. The roads in a few days, will be opened from Clarksville to intersect the Vincennes and the new road to Salem, which I believe will save several miles travelling.
