THE DAILY NEWS.

MONDAY, JULY 1, 1878.

The Indianapolis News has the largest circulation of any daily paper in Indiana.

County expenses must be reduced.

"STILL-HUNTS" will be the order in politics until the heated term is over.

WHAT with the various interpretations there doesn't seem to be much left of the president's civil service order.

Mrs. JENKIN'S opinion of herself is that she is a general genius. The country would "admire" to know that she is the only one of her kind.

In another column we publish a fine description of the appearance and approaches to the buildings of the Paris exposition, which will repay careful reading.

"Platforms," says the New York World, "are made by parties to conceal so much of the party doctrine as it is not deemed prudent to express." This is only a half truth. Platforms are also "springed to catch wood-cocks." The people are expected to believe them until the day of election and forget them afterward.—[Philadelphia Record.]

This is the head and front of President Hayes's offending. He didn't forget.

SHERMAN, in answer to the Potter committee which denied his request for the summoning of a hundred witnesses to prove an unfair election in Feliciana parish, says "whether he wrote the Anderson letter or not, the real thing the committee wants to know, is whether there was actual fraud and violence in these two parishes to justify the returning board in what they did." We think not as to Sherman. They want to know whether or not he wrote that letter.

PACKARD says: "I was inaugurated governor January 8." This was the spectacle telegraphed at the time and printed in the News:

About 600 people witnessed Packard's inauguration. The majority were colored people. The building was barricaded and garrisoned by about 200 policemen, who admitted those who had passes. Not over 200 persons were in the street.

That is a fine spectacle for the "freely elected" governor of a state. A man who professed to be the choice of the people! No wonder he wanted the support of a regular army. By way of contrast the following description was given at the same time:

About eighteen thousand people witnessed Nicholls's inauguration. The greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

PACKARD, in telling the Potter committee how "he was elected if Hayes was," naively says: "I believe if I had been allowed troops I could have maintained my position." The spectacle of this impudent upstart talking in that fashion of the office of chief executive of a state which is supposed to rest on the free will and consent of the people as expressed by a majority of the voters, is enough to make the name of "free government" a laughing stock. The idea of a man gravely stating that if he had the support of troops—outside troops, not state militia—he could be the governor of a state! He could be the king of Poland or the conqueror of the world in the same way. A few troops to uphold his courts and a few midnight orders from drunken judges, such as he procured from Durell, would have made Packard perpetual for the matter of that.

"Light Horse Harry" of the unarmed 100,000 is not amenable to Howitt's instructions and spitefully retorts that he is an impudent upstart and charlatan in that he deceived the democrats in congress into the belief that Tilden favored the electoral commission scheme and so induced them to support it. Watterson unwittingly or not seems to be the catespaw of Tilden in this. The latter was in bad odor with his party for what it believed to be his pusillanimous action during the time of the presidency decision and he now uses Watterson's pluck to try and prove that he was as brave as the rest of them. Hitherto he has won the laurel of praise tendered him by Charles Francis Adams for his great moderation and self denial in submitting his claim to adjudication. Now it seems, per Watterson, that he never intended to so submit. The country is to understand then that so far as in him lay he would have appealed to the verdict of the Linden. The last state of the man is worse than the first.

J. MILTON TURNER, formerly United States minister to Liberia, tells a New York paper a story about that country which will fill with dismay and perhaps indignation the projectors of the exodus scheme, which looked to the colonization of the black population of this country as "Africa's sunny fountains," or golden sand. He says immigrants are not welcomed at Liberia; that the climate during a large part of the year is unhealthy; that the national debt is a heavy burden on an impoverished people and that immigrants who have not money suffer terribly. He admires a fertile soil and crops under improved culture, which will make large industries, notably, coffee growing. But this requires capital of from $35,000 to $50,000, and immigrants generally don't carry that amount about their clothes. He is strongly opposed to the exodus movement, which regards Liberia as the black man's paradise, and says it is nothing in comparison with the opportunities offered here, and is of the impression that the entire negro race in the United States had better remain in his support.—[Cincinnati Commercial.]

We publish this morning from exchanges a few points showing the seriousness of the third term movement—how regular arrangements are made to provide for outbursts of Grant enthusiasm—how the republican country press takes up the wondrous tale, and the democratic organs recite the song of praise of the man on horseback. All this would seem to show that there was enough in the third term to warrant a call for a new attention to the Civil Controversy.

Mr. STORRS is a lawyer who was very powerful in the defense in whisky cases. Wherever there was crooked whisky there the Grant enthusiasts bubbles forth. The theory presented by Storrs is, that the people of the United States need a savior of society. That is the very abandonment in contempt of republicanism.—[Cincinnati Commercial.]

We doubt very much the policy of publishing the proof that Daniel W. Voorhees was a rebel sympathizer during the war and a whisky-grabber since. These facts, so well known and generally admitted, only seem to render him more popular with the democracy and unite them more earnestly in his support.—[Richmond Palladium.]

The Republicans may carry the next house up to the roof, but they will not be able to keep the democrats—not because the country is afraid of rebellion or revolution, if the democrats win, as it seems at present more likely than not that they will.—[Springfield Republican.]

Purer politics when women participate! Mrs. Jenkins's opinion on that point would be valuable.—[Boston Herald.]

Christian and Christians.

Who has not read—what man that loved Good English, pious speech and valiant deed—The rare old book in which John Bunyan proved His poet's heart alive beneath the crest?

Who has not in his fancy traveled long With Christian that ancient pilgrimage, Shared all his fears, and lifted up the song After the battle, when the hosts were gone?

Or with brave Christian followed on The path he had trod, and seen the land Before the Heavenly City, almost won. Shone like a dream beyond the River's shore?

Well, 'tis a goodly tale, we think, and close The book we have from childhood read, and say, "The age of miracles is past! Who knows The joys saints, the pilgrims of to-day?"

"No light," we say, "like that which was of old!" Yet still serenely shone the midnight stars, And there are wonders left us to behold. If we but think to look between the bars.

Even now, before our eyes, his large heart warm With the fine heat that shames the golden blood, Stands in the sun, and shows the man he was. That is what old Bunyan's hero stood.

Long since this happy pilgrim, staff in hand, Set out, yet not alone—for his side Went Christians also toward the Land. A near whose boundaries now abode,

Each day less distant from the City's Gate, Through shade and sunshine hand in hand they pressed;

Now combatting the foes that lay in wait, And now in pleasant meadows lulled to rest.

Early the Palace Beautiful they found, Where the sun shone, and every fair abounding; The lovely Valley little had they known.

Their gentler hearts devoid of scorn and pride.

The darker Valley of the Shadow of Death They passed, but with them one they knew was near.

Staid by whose rod and staff the Psalmist saith The tolling pilgrim shall no evil fear.

And many seasons afterward they dwelt In Vanity's great city. There apart From all these base and mean they humbly knelt With prayer upon their lips and pure of heart.

He, too, has sought with plants—that those that lurk By day and night he did his Master's work.

Hoping a house not made with hands to win,

And Christian from the outset took Sweet Mercy for a guide and bosom friend,

And sought with her the poor in every nook, Giving as much to them as to the Lord doth lend.

Together thus they climbed above the pass Where from the hill detectable 'tis given To gaze at moments through the shepherd's glass, And catch a far off, rapturous glimpse of heaven!

Sorrows they knew; but what delight was there Led oftentimes where still waters flow, Or in green pastures guided unaware To trees of life that hang their fruitage low!

Now, ere the pilgrimage is ended quite, Who would not be glad to rest them down In Elysium, in a country of delights? And rest a season they wear the crown.

Here, after half a century, they breathe A breath from Eden Paradise; and here renew Their wedding vows, while unseen watchers wreath For each a chaplet, sprayed with golden dew.

Blessing and beat, amidst their household group, Christian and Christians here await Their summons, knowing that the shining trumpet Will beat to each a token, soon or late.

And we who gather near—ourselves too blind To see undiz the light of heaven's grace— Their well-loved visages behold, and find A bright reflected glory in each face.

THE JOURNAL thinks it intends to keep Voorhees's anti-war record before the people. Voorhees was in favor of letting the South go in peace; the Journal was in favor of letting the South go in peace. The Journal repented its error, so did Voorhees. If now Voorhees should join the republican party he and the Journal would be co-equal, par nobile fratum, and we should hear nothing more of his anti-war record. If the Journal expects to beat Voorhees on the "Southern sympathy" question, it is badly mistaken. The fierce memories that sprang from the war must soften some time. They blazed into being in the campaign of 1876, but that was simply the flame that signaled final destruction; as when a structure is burned out, and falls into a heap that for a moment sends up a spurt of fire. The war is not to be a well-spring of bitterness forever. There must be other reasons advanced, and they are legion, why Voorhees should not be re-elected to the Senate. In this the Journal might follow the advice of Sidney Smith to a noble but profane friend, who generally wasted time and weakened debate by his expletives: "My Lord, let us consider everybody and every thing to be damned and proceed to business." Let the Journal consider Voorhees's war record as black as the plague of Egyptian darkness, and then proceed to business.

About five o'clock last evening fire was discovered issuing from the northwest dial of the clock in the cupola of Dr. J. H. McLean's building, corner of Market and Fourth streets, St. Louis, Mo., and in a few moments the cupola and upper part of the dome was in flames. The fire department was promptly on hand, and the fire was extinguished before the dome was destroyed. The clock in which the fire was first seen was about 175 feet above the ground, and how the fire caught is a great mystery. The loss is claimed to be about $15,000, fully insured.

At Deadwood, D. T., Saturday evening, George F. Ingram & Co.'s saw mill and shingle machine, with 125,000 feet of lumber, were destroyed by fire. Loss, $5,000. No insurance.

Persons leaving town for the season, and Summer travellers, can have The Daily News mailed to them, postpaid for fifty cents per month, the address being changed as often as desired.

Milk is sold at three cents a quart, but ice cream is still held at ten cents a dish.

The said a German republican newspaper is among the early probabilities in this city.

A reception will be given Senator Donald, at the rooms of the Washington club to-night.

The council and board of aldermen will meet to-night and pass the state house sever ordinance.

Sixty-three applicants for teachers' licenses were examined by County Superintendent Harlan Saturday.

The contract for furnishing coal to the Indiana hospital for the ensuing year has been awarded to Messrs. Justin & Kuhn.

The state bill posters' association will meet in this city the 9th inst., a day prior to the meeting of the national association.

Moritz Kaufman was bounced from the West Market Saturday night by Market Master Lee for exposing spoiled meat for sale.

This evening the Choral Union will hold its last meeting, previous to taking the usual summer vacation, in room 14 Bates block.

The delegation of fishers from the Western Union telegraph office caught a 10 pound pike and a seven pound dog-fish in the Kanakae.

Tom Hanway, of the county treasurer's office, caught a coon in his house a night or two since. He is looking next for a wild cat or "painter."

To-night the school commissioners will elect a superintendent of the public schools and a city librarian. There are several applicants for each position.

Dr. J. A. Krumrine has been elected to the Irvington school board. J. T. Burton has been chosen principal of the schools for the next year, and Miss Ella Laughlin, assistant.

The trial of Fred Hoffman, the Harrington cattle thief, who killed Jesse Noble, will begin next Friday in the criminal court. A special venire of thirty jurors has been ordered.

Three-cent-a-glass beer shops are on the increase. They have to be kept up their business. With milk at three cents a quart even the demand for beer at the old price is apt to fall off.

Mrs. W. Y. Wiley and son, accompanied by Miss Mary Harlan, will soon sail for Europe. Mrs. Wiley and son expect to remain abroad two years. Miss Harlan will return in a few months.

Persons who live in the vicinity of Vernon street and the canal are beginning to murmur. The old bridge has been torn away nine weeks, and it begins to look as if it would never be replaced.

For the week ending at noon of last Saturday 10,879 cars were handled at this point. Of these 8,127 were loaded, 4,346 being received and 3,783 forwarded. Owing to harvesting local trade fell off largely during the week.

The Choral Union and the Harmonic society have failed to consolidate. The two medical colleges are also still apart, Butler university, the potash that was to have made the medical oil and water mixture, not being sufficiently alkaline for the purpose.

Another Louisville newspaper collector has disappeared from this city. William Stouts, of the Omnibus, 4 German Sunday publication. He left here June 4, with considerable money, for Madison, but has failed to put in an appearance there or anywhere else so far as known.

NEW STATE HOUSE.
PROPOSALS

FOR BUILDING THE NEW

State House for Indiana

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF STATE HOUSE COMMISSIONERS, INDIANAPOLIS, IND., JUNE 25, 1878.

The Board of State House Commissioners will receive sealed proposals from 2 o'clock p. m. to 3 o'clock p. m.,

On the 15th day of August, 1878,

For supplying all the materials and erecting the new State House at Indianapolis, Indiana.

Propositions must be made for the entire work complete, or for any classified portion. Printed schedules, classifying the work and giving in detail all the items in such class, will be furnished to the commissioners, with each proposal. Each item in the schedule when bidding for the entire work, and upon each item in the class when bidding for that part.

All proposals are referred to the act of the legislature for erecting a new state house, and particularly to section five (5) of that law, copies of which can be had from the commissioners, and which can be made a part of the contract for the construction of the building.

All propositions must be accompanied by a bond, in the sum of five (5) per cent. of the total amount of the work, to be withheld until the completion of the building, and to be given to the commissioners, with each proposal.

BOARD RATES: The Proprietor of Orkney Springs, fully appreciating business depressions, offers the following reduced rates of board, graduated according to the number of persons in each room.

Board per day for one week and less than two, $1.50, $2 and $3. Board per week for two weeks and less than four, $2.50 and $3. Board per month for one month and less than two, $30, $35, $40 and $45. Ministers, physicians and members of the press will be entitled to twenty-five per cent. discount on all rates.

Children under twelve years and servants half-price.

Families and parties numbering seven, or more, who desire to remain the entire season, can make application for a reduction.

The season will open SATURDAY, the 15th of June, and close on the 15th of October.

For descriptive pamphlets or other information, address A. W. JONES, Proprietor, or communicate with The News office.

The proprietor reserves the right to reject any and all propositions.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, at such times as the contractor may require, not more than one-half of the amount of the approximate estimates of materials received and work done, to be made by the supervising architect; ten per cent. of such estimate to be withheld until the completion of the building, and to be given to the commissioners, with each proposal.

The Board will not be responsible for the payment of any estimate unless funds have been received from the commissioners for that purpose.

The prices affixed to the work or materials in approximate estimates will bear an equitable relative proportion to the cost of the whole job when reduced to a basis of 100 per cent.

The board will designate the quarries from which the stone must be taken, but no stone will be accepted of inferior quality in any respect to that supplied by the office of the board from such quarry.

Switches from the union track will be provided by which cars can be brought along the line to which the contractor's cars are required to pay one dollar per car for all cars so delivered.

Bidders will not be permitted to examine the estimates of the supervising architect, or the amount of work.

Payments will, however, only be made on the actual amount of materials received and work done, and any deficiency in the amount of work or in the quality of the materials supplied by the contractors must be supplied at his own expense.

Plans and specifications can be seen after July 18, 1878, at the office of Edwin May, supervising architect, 100 W. Market, or at the office of James D. Williams, President of the Board.

The architect and commissioners will be pleased to receive any information relating to the building to bidders at any time.

Proposals must be informed "Proposals for new State-house," and the name of the State-house Commissioners, Indianapolis, Indiana.

Bidders are invited to be present at the opening of the bids at the office of the commissioners, which will take place promptly at 3 o'clock p. m., on the 15th of August, 1878.

By order of the Board of State-house Commissioners.

JAMES D. WILLIAMS, President of the Board.

JOHN M. GODOWN, Secretary.

Ernest Morris will leave for New York to-night, from which place he will sail to Brazil in a few days.

Severin & Ostermeyer's wholesale grocery was entered last night by two boys, who stole a quantity of gunpowder.

The Sunday school and parish picnic of St. Paul's cathedral will be held at Golden Hill on the canal to-morrow.

The state treasurer is busy paying off judges, prosecuting attorneys and other functionaries, this being the close of the third quarter of the fiscal year.

The Fourth will be a busy day for the Jeff road. A picnic at Greenwood, one at the southern park, and the big race at Louisville will make travel rather lively.

A dispatch was received Saturday night by L. D. Moody, insurance agent, announcing the death of his son, aged 15, at Nashville, Tennessee, from a railroad accident.

Mr. Expert Gelwick braced himself upon some of Commissioner Remy's bread and milk Saturday afternoon, and came down to the auditor's office long enough to draw his pay from the country.

The Sherman estate, corner of West and Illinois streets, was recently torn away. Saturday a dead horse was found in the old well at that place. The owner can find his master at the Sellers' farm.

Dr. J. H. Bayless, Mr. L. W. Munhall and Dr. L. D. Waterman, all the third about two months ago, Bayless and Munhall will attend the world's Sunday school congress at Geneva during their trip.

Sheriff S. R. Miller, of Elkhart county, arrested here Saturday, and was taken to the hospital, whom he was taken to the hospital, for the inmate. She slipped away from him, and her husband on South Illinois street this morning, and her wild actions occasioned considerable notice on that thoroughfare. She was recaptured.

The Indianapolis and St. Louis road has issued a circular regarding 1,000-mile tickets. The present form of special mileage tickets will continue on sale, their use confined to the one person named in the ticket, and costing to $25. A similar ticket, but transparence, will cost $30. When in the hands of commerce travelers 200 pounds of baggage will be allowed thereon, locally.

Nicola Sasse, costermonger, corner of Washington and Pennsylvania streets, was in trouble this morning. Last night his fruit and candy stand was burglarized of several dollars worth of candy, bananas, etc. He anathematized his spoilers in choice Italian, adding in "Inglese." "I be-e-e-e he is two small boys what work in one office. I like him fund last night, I kill him altogether."

A justice of the peace living in the northern part of the county was bragging this morning about his skill in bunting wheat, and that he had won $5 on a bet from a countryman unacquainted with his expertise, on last Saturday. "You see, hein' a squire, I didn't bet myself" he said, "but gave it to a boy to put up for me. We just have got to keep the ermine clean, we just have."

The Bee Line company is threatened with a suit for damages by the death of Thomas Foley, January 29th last. He got on the freight train at the depot and jumped off at Michigan street, receiving injuries from which he died. The company, though it is not responsible for his death, offered to pay the funeral expenses, and the officers think it is very hard to have to defend a suit for damages on top of that.

THE MAYOR'S DOCKET.
A Big Lot of Cases for a Hot Day—A Dallas, Texas, Robber Arrested.

Major Caven had a big docket to attend to this morning, the offenses charged running almost the entire gamut of crime. The arrests speak well for the industry of the police force this hot weather.

John Dernerty, arrested Saturday afternoon for peddling without a license. He was a small boy and on agreeing to take out a license was allowed to go.

Officers arrested William Pansel, a lamplighter, at about daylight, yesterday morning, while attempting to procure material for a Sunday dinner at the expense of a neighbor. He had chased some chickens out of a yard into the street and was trying to catch them when Baker caught him and gave him a dinner at the expense of the city. As he didn't get the chickens, he was evicted for profanity.

Saturday night, Murphy and Clarke arrested Louis Esman, son of the proprietor of the Illinois street house, on a charge of robbing a carl on May 14th, 1878, when he was staying at the house some weeks ago. His case was continued until next Friday.

Alexander Cashmere, whose arrest on a charge of suspectio was noted Saturday, is thought to be the man wanted in Dallas, Texas, for a robbery involving $4,500. He answers to the description sent out by the Texas authorities, and he will be held until they are heard from. Letters found on his person prove him to have been in that state. His clothing is marked "F. A." and the description card gives his name as Alexander Fisher.

Charles Porterfield was mixed up in a cutting at the Atlantic garden some weeks ago, in which George J. McMinny, one of the participants, was badly cut. Dr. Kitzmiller and Williamson arrested him last night. This morning he was placed on trial, and defended by Commissioner Remy's lawyer, on the ground of insanity. Insanity was alleged because he jumped out of the window when the officers went after him. Porterfield is also charged with associating with prostitutes, one of whom, Lou Adams, was arrested with him. The case was continued this afternoon.

Dismissal of Postal Clerks.
The sentinel this morning contains an item saying that some 25 postal clerks and route agents leading into this city have been discharged from the service, without reason, so far as can be learned, and that they include every appointee of Congressmen Hanna, T. C. and the latest is this: Every six months this class of employes are called in to make examinations to test their efficiency in the discharge of their duties, and as a result of last week's examination some six or eight have been dropped. The examination covers two branches, what are known as the "scheme" and the "state." In the latter the agent must know how to distribute mail matter to 1,738 points, and tell the junctions and best time and route for reaching intermediate stations. In the "scheme" he must answer the same question with respect to about 1,000 points all over the country. He will readily be seen that no fool can hold the place, and that it requires constant study to keep up with the changes of time on the railroads. A clerk who has been running on one of the roads here for eight years failed to pass last week, and will have to leave the service.

Sudden Death.
Coroner Wishard was this morning notified of the sudden and mysterious death of Philip Meikel, an employee at Eagle machine works, residing on East McCarty street. Dr. W. H. Brown was called in the morning, and found Meikel in a dying condition, suffering from the effects of a poison which the doctor thought was opium, and shortly before night died. Mrs. Meikel says her husband was suffering from headache apparently, and a man named Gill came and injected something into his arm, producing the above result. The coroner is investigating the matter this afternoon.

Earliest Inquiries.

THE CENTENNIAL AND EXCELSIOR BOOF PAINT.
The above named article, the surprising quality of which have been heretofore noticed by The News, is meeting with an overwhelming approval so far, and fast as it is tried and known. E. Warman has used it in re-covering his livery stable roof, which is made as good as new without other repairs, and Dr. Butterfield has also used it with great satisfaction in re-painting the roof of his residence. The following statement of this new discovery in roof paint will better understand what is known that it is absolutely guaranteed for 10 years by reputable parties. Smeltzer & Devenish are the sole agents, corner basement of Journal building.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Hurrah for the Fourth! We are very well prepared for the celebration: Fireworks, firecrackers, torpedoes, firecracker pistols, torpedo pistols, paper cap pistols, black cartridges, pistols, pop pistols, paper cap, black cartridges, paper cap, black cartridges, toy canons, drums, paper balloons, paper lanterns, hunting and muslin flags, fans, out of doors, and a variety of every description for young and old.

She slipped away from him, and her husband on South Illinois street this morning, and her wild actions occasioned considerable notice on that thoroughfare. She was recaptured.

The Indianapolis and St. Louis road has issued a circular regarding 1,000-mile tickets. The present form of special mileage tickets will continue on sale, their use confined to the one person named in the ticket, and costing to $25. A similar ticket, but transparence, will cost $30. When in the hands of commerce travelers 200 pounds of baggage will be allowed thereon, locally.

Nicola Sasse, costermonger, corner of Washington and Pennsylvania streets, was in trouble this morning. Last night his fruit and candy stand was burglarized of several dollars worth of candy, bananas, etc. He anathematized his spoilers in choice Italian, adding in "Inglese." "I be-e-e-e he is two small boys what work in one office. I like him fund last night, I kill him altogether."

A justice of the peace living in the northern part of the county was bragging this morning about his skill in bunting wheat, and that he had won $5 on a bet from a countryman unacquainted with his expertise, on last Saturday. "You see, hein' a squire, I didn't bet myself" he said, "but gave it to a boy to put up for me. We just have got to keep the ermine clean, we just have."

The Bee Line company is threatened with a suit for damages by the death of Thomas Foley, January 29th last. He got on the freight train at the depot and jumped off at Michigan street, receiving injuries from which he died. The company, though it is not responsible for his death, offered to pay the funeral expenses, and the officers think it is very hard to have to defend a suit for damages on top of that.

Officer William Caven had a big docket to attend to this morning, the offenses charged running almost the entire gamut of crime. The arrests speak well for the industry of the police force this hot weather.

John Dernerty, arrested Saturday afternoon for peddling without a license. He was a small boy and on agreeing to take out a license was allowed to go.

Officers arrested William Pansel, a lamplighter, at about daylight, yesterday morning, while attempting to procure material for a Sunday dinner at the expense of a neighbor. He had chased some chickens out of a yard into the street and was trying to catch them when Baker caught him and gave him a dinner at the expense of the city. As he didn't get the chickens, he was evicted for profanity.

Saturday night, Murphy and Clarke arrested Louis Esman, son of the proprietor of the Illinois street house, on a charge of robbing a carl on May 14th, 1878, when he was staying at the house some weeks ago. His case was continued until next Friday.

Alexander Cashmere, whose arrest on a charge of suspectio was noted Saturday, is thought to be the man wanted in Dallas, Texas, for a robbery involving $4,500. He answers to the description sent out by the Texas authorities, and he will be held until they are heard from. Letters found on his person prove him to have been in that state. His clothing is marked "F. A." and the description card gives his name as Alexander Fisher.

Charles Porterfield was mixed up in a cutting at the Atlantic garden some weeks ago, in which George J. McMinny, one of the participants, was badly cut. Dr. Kitzmiller and Williamson arrested him last night. This morning he was placed on trial, and defended by Commissioner Remy's lawyer, on the ground of insanity. Insanity was alleged because he jumped out of the window when the officers went after him. Porterfield is also charged with associating with prostitutes, one of whom, Lou Adams, was arrested with him. The case was continued this afternoon.

Dismissal of Postal Clerks.
The sentinel this morning contains an item saying that some 25 postal clerks and route agents leading into this city have been discharged from the service, without reason, so far as can be learned, and that they include every appointee of Congressmen Hanna, T. C. and the latest is this: Every six months this class of employes are called in to make examinations to test their efficiency in the discharge of their duties, and as a result of last week's examination some six or eight have been dropped. The examination covers two branches, what are known as the "scheme" and the "state." In the latter the agent must know how to distribute mail matter to 1,738 points, and tell the junctions and best time and route for reaching intermediate stations. In the "scheme" he must answer the same question with respect to about 1,000 points all over the country. He will readily be seen that no fool can hold the place, and that it requires constant study to keep up with the changes of time on the railroads. A clerk who has been running on one of the roads here for eight years failed to pass last week, and will have to leave the service.

Sudden Death.
Coroner Wishard was this morning notified of the sudden and mysterious death of Philip Meikel, an employee at Eagle machine works, residing on East McCarty street. Dr. W. H. Brown was called in the morning, and found Meikel in a dying condition, suffering from the effects of a poison which the doctor thought was opium, and shortly before night died. Mrs. Meikel says her husband was suffering from headache apparently, and a man named Gill came and injected something into his arm, producing the above result. The coroner is investigating the matter this afternoon.

Earliest Inquiries.
To the Editor of The Indianapolis News:
Worse and more obtuse what has the color of power done that they have all given the Grand bounce off the public work are they not going to eat right this fall

THE CENTENNIAL AND EXCELSIOR BOOF PAINT.
The above named article, the surprising quality of which have been heretofore noticed by The News, is meeting with an overwhelming approval so far, and fast as it is tried and known. E. Warman has used it in re-covering his livery stable roof, which is made as good as new without other repairs, and Dr. Butterfield has also used it with great satisfaction in re-painting the roof of his residence. The following statement of this new discovery in roof paint will better understand what is known that it is absolutely guaranteed for 10 years by reputable parties. Smeltzer & Devenish are the sole agents, corner basement of Journal building.
