

SEVEN PERSONS HELD IN 4 HOMICIDES

Jackson angers S. Africans by urging black power

CUT TIES: The Rev. Jesse Jackson, president of the national Organization of People's United to Save Humanity (O.P.U.S.H.), with members of congregation Sunday at Regina Mundi Cathedral in Soweto. Jackson said that he wanted close economic contact between the two countries, but the apartheid system prevented such ties. "America should not jump in bed with someone who violates human rights," he told the congregation. "All people must be free."

SOWETO, South Africa—American civil rights activist Jesse Jackson led thousands of cheering South Africans in black-power chants Sunday and told them he would urge President Carter to oppose U.S. investment in this white minority-dominated land.

A crowd of nearly 4,000 crowded into Regina Mundi Roman Catholic Church in Soweto, a huge black township outside Johannesburg, to hear the Rev. Jackson's words of support for the black cause in South Africa.

When Jackson took the stage, he again and again led the crowd in shouting black-power slogans—"I Am Somebody!"—and was mobbed by blacks who carried him from the church on their shoulders.

Jackson, former adviser to the late Martin Luther King Jr., was on a 12-day tour of South Africa that has stirred hostility among many of the whites there.

When he arrived there, he said that he would tour South Africa "with an open mind" and that he had not decided whether to oppose American investments in the country.

But Sunday, after visiting areas throughout the country, he said, "We shall appeal to President Carter to...not allow the American government to engage in any relationship with this government on SASOL or any other project until there are human rights for our people."

(SASOL refers to South Africa's synthetic fuel program under which a method was developed for producing petroleum from coal. The United States has expressed an interest in buying that technology.)

Jackson has drawn criticism for his remarks that the South African government's policy of racial separation, known as apartheid, was "unoddy" and worse than Hitler.

John Wiley, leader of the tiny conservative South African party, demanded that the government immediately cancel Jackson's visa. He said Jackson "has a long record of association with communist and allied organizations in and out of the U.S."

Foreign Minister Roelof Botha said that Jackson's statements are a result of his own "personal frustration at being unable to do anything positive about the high unemployment among black youths in America."

A right wing group called "South Africa First" telegraphed its denunciation of the "demagogue Jesse Johnson" to the South African Broadcasting Corporation and demanded the resignation of those who had allowed him to air "his odious views."

Rep. Diggs is censured for financial misconduct

Woman married only 2 months among victims

Police homicide investigators have charged a total of seven persons in connection with the murders of 4 people in unrelated incidents. Included among the victims were a woman, alleged slain by her husband of two months, and a 27-year white man who was stabbed to death by two black youths because "honkies ain't got [sic] no business in our neighborhood."

Detectives identified the victims in the rash of homicides as Kathy Lee Jones, 22, who was found shot to death Tuesday night in her first-floor apartment in the 200 block of North Pennsylvania; two brothers, Steven Quick, 20, and Gregory Quick, 24, who both live in the 1900 block of Earhart, who are charged in connection with the shooting death last Saturday of James L. Perkins, who was shot as he sat in a parked car outside the Barrington Lounge, 2400 block of Bethel; James R. Ellery, 45, who died last Thursday of stab wounds inflicted July 21 during an argument with his former girlfriend, and Donald Ward, 27, who was stabbed by two half brothers, according to police simply because he was white.

Mrs. Jones' nude body was alleged to have been discovered on the floor of her apartment by

Maple Heights-Devington Assn. seeks storm sewer petitions

An eastside neighborhood group, with a chief complaint of non-adequate storm sewer-line drainage to homes, will take its concern via a petition to City Hall.

That was agreed last Saturday during a meeting of the Maple Heights-Devington Neighborhood Association at Trinity Lutheran Church.

Organization president Leo Higgins and committee members outlined specific means of requesting sufficient storm-sewer drainage systems in the community. Acquiring signatures from residents was agreed the best method.

The rains lingered three days at least, last week as did complaints from hundreds of eastside residents all city area. It has been responsible for at least 200 homes drenched in many cases, with more than foot-level water, (particularly in basements and lower levels).

The outcry of concern was voiced only two weeks ago, when residents of East West Flamingo Drive invited news representatives to tour their homes after rains of up to 24 hours. Many homes were then found with water back up in basements as high as four feet.

Several residents in the commune of Maple Heights-Devington share common knowledge that Department of Public Works and sanitation division officials have been told of the sewer clogging problems.

However, James Sawyers, head of DOT (Department of Transportation), this week surveyed an area in the 52-5300 block of Culver Street. He was to have explained, the situation has not been neglected by sanitation department officials—they just weren't aware of the problem before.

The responsibility of city governmental department to correct this drainage problems appears unclear. Clogged lines have been said for years to age problems and hazards like high waters in basements, along with debris from underground which enters homes.

In this area, of which some 90 percent of the residents are black, there are some households which are equipped with pumps, however, most have expressed the torrid rains of late have all but erased the power of the pumps to suck the water back through the outside sewer lines.

One family on Flamingo has endured about 10 floods through the past year, they explained. During a 48-hour period last week during the torrential rains which swept through Central Indiana on the tail of Hurricane Claudette-2, feet of water layered the basement in their split-level home.

While the root of the problem seems to be faulty, clogged and useless sewer lines, sub-contractors involved in development of some 500 homes 40-5000 block east, between 42nd and 46th, have figured the back-up flood condition may be a result of poor erection of homes in comparison to street layout.

Mich. Demo intends to seek re-election

Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr. was censured by the House Tuesday for financial misconduct, the first congressman to be so chastised in 58 years.

As his colleagues watched from their seats, the Michigan Democrat walked to the front of the House chamber where Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill pronounced the censure. Diggs showed no emotion throughout the proceedings.

O'Neill ordered Diggs to deliver immediately a promissory note of $40031.66 payable to the U.S. Treasury. That is the amount Diggs agreed to repay for misusing his congressional payroll.

The House speaker also ordered that all of Diggs' employees be required to declare to the House Ethics Committee that their pay was earned in accordance with House rules.

Then the speaker said, "the matter is closed," and the House resumed normal business.

Although censure amounts to little more than a tongue-lashing it is considered by the House to be the strongest punishment short of expulsion.

Unlike the more common reprimand the weakest punishment administered by the House, censure requires the member to be present and to stand in front of the House while his actions are formally condemned.

The House voted 414 to 0 to censure Diggs, with four members voting present. Beside Diggs, those voting present were Reps. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y.; Parren Mitchell, D-Md and Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif.

The censure was based on an admission by Diggs that he violated House rules by using his congressional payroll to help pay personal expenses. Earlier a federal court found the veteran congressman guilty on 29 counts of mail fraud and of making false statements in connection with his use of the congressional payroll.

The House action will have no effect on Diggs' federal conviction, which he is appealing.

Diggs, a former chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus faces a three-year prison sentence should his federal court appeals be rejected.

Asked whether he would resign, as one member suggested, Diggs replied: "I'm still here and I expect to serve out my term." Asked if he intends to seek re-election next year to a 13th term, he said "Oh, yes."

The censure will have no effect on Diggs' right to vote or to serve in Congress. Diggs hold no position of power in the House, having resigned his chairmanship of the House District of Columbia Committee and the chairmanship of the International Affairs subcommittee on Africa.

Apartheid worse than Hitler, Jackson tells South Africans

HAMMANSKRILL, South Africa. "My eyes fill with tears, not blood, but my senses of dignity are outraged by the system here," Rev. Jesse Jackson of Chicago, director of People United to Save Humanity (PUSH), told hundreds of listeners during his recent trip here.

Speaking before the South African Council of Churches, which represents 20 churches with a membership of 14 million, the dynamic civil rights advocate called the system of apartheid worse than Hitler because it is accepted and is doomed because it stands in the way of economic growth.

Drawing shouts of "Tell it like it is, brother," he challenged the churchmen to work for a new social order based on moral foundations. He admonished them to adopt the tactics of the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

"Apartheid challenges God's right to make a black person. The church and other leaders must stand up. We must have economic and political confrontations, but not a bloody confrontation between blacks and white," Rev. Jackson declared.

The black leader stopped short of suggesting strikes of other acts of civil disobedience to challenge apartheid, but he did recommend a national convention at which rights for all South Africans could be discussed.

He strongly asserted "Apartheid is systematic extermination—a legal genocide. Because it is socially acceptable, it is worse than Hitler."

Rev. Jackson's appearance in this nation of 25 million, which upholds separation of races brought protests with a demand by the right wing opposition South African Party that the government immediately cancel his visa.

FBI tried to manipulate vote of NAACP, files indicate

CHICAGO—Copies of FBI documents released Sunday indicate that the Chicago FBI office planned to manipulate a NAACP election in Chicago in 1959.

The documents, presented at a press conference at the Bismarck Hotel by Richard Gutman, a lawyer representing the Alliance to End Repression in a suit against the Chicago Police Department, also indicate that the Federal Bureau of Investigation office here suggested methods for sabotaging a planned 1968 Martin Luther King Benjamin Spock campaign for President.

Gutman obtained the documents under the Freedom of Information Act, which gives the public access to previously secret government documents. The group has obtained previous FBI documents for use in the suit, which seeks to halt government spying on such groups.

The documents describe how the Chicago FBI office, through an infiltrator, learned that the NAACP's so-called "left caucus" planned to run a slate of candidates for delegates to the NAACP national convention.

The FBI sent an anonymous letter and made an anonymous phone call to Theodore A. Jones, then president of the Chicago NAACP, telling him that "two Communists" were on the slate, according to the documents.

The FBI here later reported to its Washington headquarters: "The Chicago division feels it has through counterintelligence, materially aided in the defeat of the 'left caucus.'"

The FBI went on to report that Jones kept the location of the delegate elections secret, and that Jones "packed the meeting with members of the United Steel Workers Union whom Jones had enfranchised for the meeting."

The FBI here concluded in its report that "Chicago feels it has played a definite part in the defeat of a 'left caucus,' an attempt by the CP (Communist Party) to infiltrate a 'right' led organization."

J. Edgar Hoover, then the director of the FBI, later recommended a commendation for the agent who "suggested the anonymous letter," according to the documents.

In 1967, according to the documents, the FBI here suggested a campaign to sabotage the King Spock presidential campaign by recommending the name of a newspaper columnist to write an article attacking the campaign as "communist-backed." Spoke ran for President and King for Vice President on the ticket.

The documents released Sunday also indicate that the FBI here planned to "discredit Students for a Democratic Society (a radical group) in the eyes of the Negro community. And by appropriate sources organize an anti-SDS demonstration by a group of Negroes accusing the SDS of being white-oriented."

Other documents indicate the FBI tried to remove Herbert Mohammad as a possible successor to his father as head of the Nation of Islam, by going through his tax returns for possible irregularities.

Gutman charged that the files are "proof of the Chicago FBI's massive organized campaign of disrupting the exercise of First Amendment rights, of promoting enmity between groups, of disseminating derogatory information and of manipulating the mass media."

The Alliance to End Repression and 32 other groups have presented the FBI files as evidence for a suit filed in November, 1974, which seeks a court declaration that the government spying be halted permanently.

NTSB hearings on DC-10 mishap

CHICAGO—Under a cloud of reports that some DC-10s are having operational problems after returning to the skies, the National Transportation Safety Board began hearings July 30, to try and determine the cause of America's worst air disaster.

All 138 U.S.-registered DC-10s were grounded after the crash of an American Airlines wide-bodied jet May 25, which killed 273 passengers aboard shortly after takeoff from O'Hare International Airport.

KKK demonstrate with weapons

BIRMINGHAM—

A few of the 100 Ku Klux Klansmen (KKK) toted clubs and ax handles, and they were heckled by a crowd of blacks, but police managed to head off serious violence during a Birmingham demonstration.

The only person reported injured during last weekend's hourlong KKK march through town was a white college instructor.

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—

Two Black astronauts and the Congressman from the District of Columbia will be honored here during the 59th Grand Conclave of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, August 5-11, when more than 500 undergraduates and graduate chapter delegates will converge on the Denver Hilton in this mile high city.

The two astronauts, both Omegas, are Major Frederick Drew Gregory, a veteran Air Force pilot and nephew of Dr. Charles R. Drew, bloodbank founder; and Dr. Ronald Erwin McNair, a highly trained civilian physicist.

In addition, Congressman Walter E. Fauntroy of the District of Columbia, who is leading the fight for passage of the D.C. Voting Rights Amendment, will receive "The Outstanding Citizen of the Year Award," the Omegas' highest honor, at the Founders banquet on August 10.

The astronauts, two of three blacks chosen for the Space Shuttle Program at Johnson Space Center in Houston, will be honored for excellence in the field of science and technology. They will receive their citations at the luncheon on August 8.

The Grand Basileus, Dr. Edward J. Brannon, Jr., Miami, Fla., top officer of the 50,000 member fraternity, says the presentations will highlight the week's convention.

Other features, according to Dr. Brannon will be the presentation of plaques to the National Omega Man of the Year and the National Scholar of the Year. Also a panel discussion on the Grand Conclave theme: "Omega Focuses on the Family: The Keystone of our Society."

Leader of the discussion will be Christopher Edley, executive director of the United College Fund and a member of the fraternity. He will talk on "Reinforcing the Support of the Fraternity Towards UNCF Schools."

The Omega Man of the Year is Dr. James A. Priest, a Baltimore physician who was the family doctor and confidant of the last surviving founder, the late Bishop Edgar A. Love. He has distinguished himself by his work with undergraduate members in Maryland.

The National Scholar honor was won by Terry Watson, a Rust College graduate, where fraternity member Dr. William McMillan is president at Holly Springs, MS, school. He had a four year average of 3.97.

The winners of the Outstanding Citizen and Omega Man awards were announced by Achievement Week Chairman William Sutton, Ph. D., who leaves Dillard University on August 1 to become vice-president of Academic Affairs at Chicago State University on The National Scholar was chosen by the Scholarship Commission headed by Dr. George Johnson, vice-president of Jackson State University.

SCLC vows Birmingham boycott until cop fired

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—

Promising that "all hell will break loose" unless the city fires a white policeman who shot a black woman, more than 1,000 demonstrators staged the largest racial protest last week in Birmingham since the early 1960s.

Black leaders in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference called for an economic boycott until the city fires Officer George Sands.

The demonstrators marched peacefully through the city's business district chanting "Vann and Sands got to go." Mayor David Vann walked the last two blocks to City Hall with them.

"There will be no cash registers ringing until the man who shot Bonita Carter is brought to justice," SCLC President Joseph Lowery of Atlanta told the crowd at City Hall. "You are at the crossroads again, Birmingham. If you choose injustice, all hell will break loose. You can choose Vann, the Klan and Sands, but if you do, you'll have hell on your hands."

Lowery and other speakers, including Alabama SCLC president John Nettles of Anniston, called for blacks to boycott city stores and buy only necessities until Sands is fired.

The marchers were protesting Vann's earlier decision not to dismiss Sands, who fired the shots that killed Ms. Carter, 20 on June 22.

Sands says he fired four shots at what he thought was a armed gunman driving away from a convenience store.

Vann moved Sands to a desk job, saying the shooting was within a department firearms policy.

Six blacks on Time list of 'under 45' outstanding leaders

Six blacks were among 50 Americans aged 45 and younger profiled in Time Magazine this week as outstanding leaders in the U.S. The six are: Marion S. Barry, Jr., 43, mayor of Washington, D.C., who according to Time, "holds the highest elected post attained by any of the black civil rights activists of the turbulent '60s. Son of a Mississippi sharecropper, Barry abandoned work on a doctorate in chemistry at the University of Tennessee to join the civil rights movement." He was often jailed for taking part in protests. In Washington, he founded Pride, Inc., a job-training organization for young people, moved into politics, swept into the mayor's office with support of the black and white middle class.

Mary Frances Berry, 41, scholar, lawyer, author, assistant secretary of education, and "a fiery champion of educational opportunity for what she calls the 'underserved.' Formerly a chancellor of the University of Colorado, the highest major university job ever held by a black woman, Berry is a candidate for a top job if Congress creates a Department of Education."

Hudnut says blacks taken for granted

Mayor William H. Hudnut said Tuesday, Indianapolis Blacks are being taken for granted by the Marion County Democrat Organization, and he urged Blacks to broaden their political base.

"Republicans historically have supported policies designed to solve the problems of minorities on a permanent basis," the Mayor said. "The other party has thrown crumbs in the direction of minorities which only ease the pain of poverty for a short while, but don't solve the long term problems."

"President Carter is in the White House today because more than 90 percent of the Blacks who voted in 1976 voted for him. What have they received in return? Higher joblessness, rampant inflation and energy shortages," Hudnut pointed out.

Hudnut said the key to minority advancement in the years ahead is economic prosperity for the entire country.

"Minorities don't need more welfare, they need jobs training and job opportunities," he said. "Lower taxes and smaller government will leave money in the pockets of the taxpayers to spend in productive ways, creating more jobs and reducing the level of inflation," Hudnut added.

The Mayor also said Blacks need to exert the political power they possess.

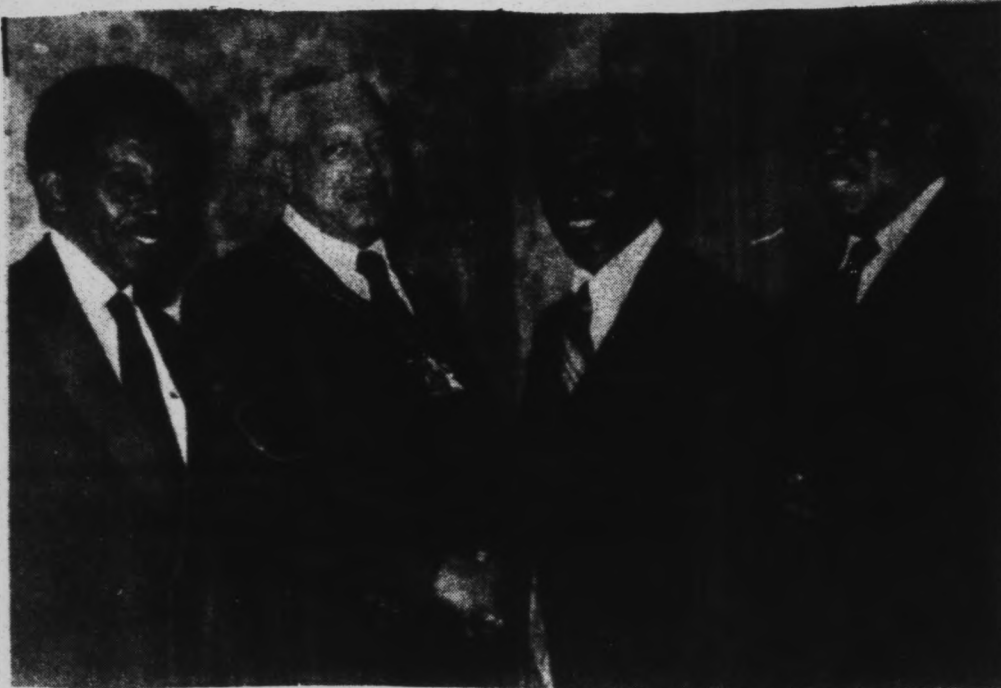

"Only nine million of sixteen million voting age Blacks in the country are even registered to vote," the Mayor said. "In Marion County this year, the largest percentage of voters purged from the voters lists lived in the inner city."

The Mayor also said Traditional minority voting patterns have resulted in the vote being taken for granted.

"The Democrats have come to expect minority voters to overwhelmingly support every election," the Mayor said. "Because they are so sure of that vote, minority concerns and needs have been paid a lot of lip service and nothing more. It is time for a change in that pattern."

The Mayor also listed his own accomplishments in the Black community. He pointed out that he had appointed the first Black Deputy Mayor and Department Director in the City's history; had appointed more Blacks to City boards and commissions than any other Mayor; mandated that all police and fire department recruit classes contain at least 25 percent minority students; supported making the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King a City holiday; issued an Executive Order that 18 percent of all City contract business go to minority concerns; and set up the Mayor's Black History Committee resulting in Indianapolis becoming the first city in the nation to celebrate Black History Month on a City-wide basis.

Gospel Music Workshop, group with broad goals

BY PAT STEWART

Gospel music has traditionally played an important part in black history and has been a predominant factor in the lives of black people.

From childhood to adulthood this interest has perpetuated as groups and individuals utilize their talents by presenting concerts throughout the community and within churches from which gospel music originated.

Talented Indianapolis choirs and soloists have richly shared in the ideological aspects of the development, growth and promotion of gospel singing.

It is no surprise then that some knowledgeable musicians have come together to affiliate themselves with the nationally structured Gospel Music Workshop of America, an association of advocates of gospel music.

The significant workshop, founded in 1967 by noted Rev. James Cleveland, has increased to 20,000 members from a birth of only 400. There are now 187 chapters in 38 states.

Indianapolis' chapter had diligently fulfilled the national purposes, along with some noteworthy ones of its own. The parent body has as its objectives to: perpetuate and enhance one of America's original art forms (gospel music); increase the penetration and acceptance of gospel music; develop and cultivate the art form of gospel music from its basic source — the black church; establish an association which seeks to raise and maintain a high level of quality and proficiency in the presentation of religious music; unite gospel music advocates on the local and national levels; and open new areas, nationally and locally, where talent can perform before an audience.

Throughout the year, the local chapter joins together with gospel choirs, choruses, ensembles, quartets, soloists, instrumentalists and musicians in a voluntary association for education, cooperation and communication of ideas.

When the national Workshop meets Aug. 19-24 in New Orleans, La., perceptions on how to more effectively project these aims will be an agenda topic. This will be a week of academic study, performance and exchange of ideas and ideals relative to all aspects of sacred music.

National Workshop membership is composed of singers, musicians, ministers, composers and lovers of gospel music. These gifted and learned individuals are a major part of the inspiration and entertainment of the citizenry of this nation and people all over the world.

The Indianapolis chapter focuses on serving as a resource from which churches, ministers, choirs, groups and individuals can receive training and inspiration that will enhance their performance of gospel music. It has presented academic workshops and concerts by its mass choir that depict the cultural significance of gospel music and the role it has played in the development of improved relations within the total community.

Accomplishments include: the involvement of youth and young adults in self-development — socially, spiritually, morally, culturally and civically; crime deterring through the channeling of energies toward positive alternatives; increased opportunity for interdenominational and interracial fellowship; and opportunity for Indianapolis talent to be showcased in the national gospel music spotlight.

The national priorities of the Gospel Music Workshop of America are to: provide scholarships in gospel music; build a convention site; hold a yearly confab; and build an accredited college.

The local chapter has some strong additional directions which are to: provide a series of workshops designed to bring about a greater knowledge of the components of religious music; develop talents in the Indianapolis area through the fellowship of monthly meetings; support the city-wide efforts of the ministerial community; provide inspiration and encouragement through religious music to the institutions in its area; and to develop representation from the Indianapolis area in the national convention activities.

Indianapolis' workshop is in the progress of soliciting financial assistance for the August national convention. A goal of $10,000 has been set by the 80-member choir and chapter officials. Through fund-raising efforts and activities and through honorariums from various concert appearances, it has already generated over $2,000.

Those wishing additional information on the Workshop or making a financial donation should contact Al Hobbs, chapter representative, (317) 923-1456; Daryl Rodgers, (317) 924-9860, or Delores Poindexter, (317) 283-4516.

Guide to fresh markets available through state

A comprehensive guide to fresh produce markets throughout the state, is now available.

Published by the Division of Agriculture of the Indiana Department of Commerce in conjunction with the Cooperative Extension Service, the 1979 Directory of Roadside Markets and Pick Farms covers over 300 direct farmer to consumer operations found in Indiana.

Lieutenant Governor Robert D. Orr, who is Indiana's Commissioner of Agriculture, emphasizes the importance of these operations and the impact they can have on the family budget. "In these days of rising food prices, many Hoosiers find they must curtail their enjoyment of fresh produce. What many fail to realize is that much of the produce they buy in large stores, is readily available direct from local farmers in their area. In addition to being fresher, roadside produce is usually less expensive," explained Orr.

Annually, our fertile Hoosier soil produces an abundance of crisp snapbeans, fresh sweet corn, and juicy melons. We want Hoosiers to enjoy these specialties and at the same time help the farmers who have committed themselves to keeping us supplied with high quality produce.

Those interested in obtaining a free copy of the directory should write or call the Division of Agriculture, Indiana Department of Commerce, 336 State House, Indianapolis, IN 46204, 317-633-7146 or contact the Cooperative Extension Service in their county.

Peace Corps, VISTA recruitment drive held here next week

As part of an effort to recruit more than 2,000 new volunteers nationally, a Peace Corps volunteer language teacher will be in town to assist in a major Indianapolis recruitment drive for new Peace Corps and VISTA (Volunteers In Service To America) August 13-15.

Abdou Rahman Sarr, the language teacher from Senegal, West Africa will join former Peace Corps and VISTA volunteers, Harry Irizarry and Clovia Sloan to conduct interviews at the Downtown Howard Johnson's Hotel, 501 West Washington, Monday - Wednesday.

Since 1970, Sarr has worked in various Peace Corps language and cultural training programs in Senegal and sites throughout the U.S.

This summer, however, Sarr is participating in Peace Corps' annual nationwide summer recruitment campaign to interest people in serving two years overseas with the Peace Corps or one year in the U.S. with the VISTA program.

According to its recruitment office in Chicago, the Peace Corps is looking for people with specialized skills as well as people with general, non-technical backgrounds.

Volunteers most frequently needed include agriculturalist, skilled trades people, health professionals and teachers.

VISTA volunteers number more than 4,000 across the U.S. They work through tenants' associations, health service groups and community development organizations.

Volunteers most frequently needed include community organizers, communicators, business people, health specialist, teachers, architects and lawyers.

Today, 18-years after the creation of Peace Corps, more than 82,000 Americans have served as Peace Corps volunteers in a total of 86 Third World nations. Nearly 6,500 volunteers are overseas now, helping the poorest people of 64 developing countries.

Persons interested in Peace Corps or VISTA programs can talk with representatives Monday and Tuesday, August 13 and 14 at the Downtown Howard Johnson's Hotel, 501 W. Washington, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Wednesday, August 15 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon or by calling 635-4443.

Low interest loans are available for rebuilding

For the first time since "Old Model Cities Days" there will be money available and a development plan emphasizing maximum rehabilitation in the Central Northside target area.

Citizen's Neighborhood Coalition, along with the Division of Economic and Housing Development, are bringing to the community opportunities for homeowners' low interest loans and a massive effort to rebuild the neighborhood.

All interested homeowners are urged to attend a meeting at Citizen's Multi-Service Center, 601 East 17th Street, August 1, at 7:30 p.m., to hear the program outlined by Dave Carley, administrator, Division of Economic and Housing Development. Information concerning 312 housing rehabilitation loans at approximately 3 percent interest will be given.

Boundaries for the target area are the 65-70 Highway complex on the south, the alley west of Central on the west, Fall Creek and 28th street on the north, and the Monon railroad tracks on the east. If you live and own property within this area you are eligible to apply.

"Indianapolis has the opportunity to be unique in its handling of an area designated for Historic Preservation. The area represented by Citizen's Neighborhood Coalition can become a model that spans the turn of the century. Where buildings with historic significance are restored, residents whose roots are deep in the community through co-operative efforts of a neighborhood organization and city departments plan for over-all community revitalization with programs designed not only to cater to the more affluent but to persons of low and moderate income as well. The area formerly known as Old Model Cities, 'the hole in the do out' Can and will be reborn into residents and government continue to plan and work together." Says Dorothy L. Burs, director of Citizen's Multi-Service Center, and a strong moving factor in the development of Citizen's Neighborhood Coalition and work with government officials in development of these plans.

New achievement center for the retarded to be built

Ervin J. Picha, acting executive director for the Marion County Association for Retarded Citizens announced today that the Indianapolis City Council has given final zoning approval for the construction of a new Adult Achievement center for retarded citizens at 21st and Wellesly on the east side of the city. Construction is scheduled to begin this fall.

The new facility will replace an old achievement center, called Noble II, near Butler campus. Over the past few years, a long waiting list of retarded adults has accumulated for enrollment into the center. The new center will be able to more nearly meet our community's increasing demand when completed in 1981.

The purpose of the center is to provide retarded adults with an opportunity to develop social skills and occupational abilities. The program provides a service to both retarded citizens with opportunities for productive independent living instead of having to live in costly institutions paid by tax dollars.

The new center will have facilities for more than 200 retarded adults who will attend a daily training program. Plans for the achievement center include: Occupational training rooms with a small green house for occupational training; speech and physical therapy facilities with a swimming pool, since many clients are also physically handicapped; and area for the development of social skills which includes a simulated home environment.

Funding for the project will come through an appropriation from the Indiana State Legislature and from businesses and residents of Marion County through the "Noble Tomorrow" campaign, currently underway.

Andre Lacy, president of Lacy Diversified Industries, is the General Chairman for this campaign.

Council candidate is community stalwart

SUSAN ELAINE DARDEN

Campaign headquarters for Republican City Council candidate (District 11), Susan Elaine Darden opened this week at 4631 E. 46th.

Miss Darden, whose residence and headquarters is located in the heart of the considerably large eastside district she opts to represent, poses a most definite challenge, however, uphill battle against 11th district Democrat incumbent Rozelle Boyd.

Boyd has represented this district of approximately 6,000 current eligible voters through out the 70s. He resides in Bloomington. The Indianapolis Recorder sits in the 11th district.

Miss Darden appears confident she has the ability and understands major issues of concern for voters in the area. The district compacts parts of Emerson Avenue for an east boundary as far as Ralston on the west; 38th Street north and 16th Street south.

"My main objectives as council candidate are to remain accessible to all residents in this district; working for the betterment of property value, reducing crime; increasing employment opportunities and of course, providing feasible facilities for education and recreation for the youth of this area," maintains Miss Darden.

There's not one available recreation center, or swimming pool in this district for youths, yet there is concern for teenage loitering and crime," Miss Darden pointed out.

She further cites ambitions to give voters in this district a sense of honest and sincere attention. "Political education and involvement in the community is essential for it has an effect on everyone's daily life."

she said.

The 27 year old sales representative for Eastman Kodak, and graduate of Indiana State University, also emphasizes the concern voiced by residents of the district for adequate sidewalks; infrequent maintenance and installation of storm sewers and a need to reevaluate common problems experienced by district renters as well as homeowners.

Quite naturally, Miss Darden feels optimistic of a victory for herself and the Republican party in the November election with predictions of a much cleaner community for her constituents, if elected.

Milton Booth, local realtor and president of the Fire Department Merit Board, is Miss Darden's campaign manager. He says she remains answerable to any inquiring voter particularly residents of the 11th district.

More information about Miss Darden's candidacy can be obtained by calling campaign headquarters, 547-1190, or 557-7356.

Saturday, August 4, will mark his 12th year in the pilot's seat.

The songs he has written on Miss Black America's behalf are memorable.

"Dear Miss Black America," "Hey Black Girl," "She's A Positive Thinker," "Come Out Black Girl," Miss Black America I Love You."

Anderson founded the Miss Black America Pageant in 1986 to provide a showcase for black women's strength. At first the title song heard was by Curtis Mayfield since Officials felt it was best to have the work of a "Hot" composer used.

"But, his song wasn't really relevant to what I created," Anderson has said. "It didn't Express what I felt about the Miss Black America Pageant."

Since no one can create a song based on my feelings, I created my own theme song for the pageant, "Miss Black America I Love You."

Though he's been writing songs for as long as he can remember, the man has no formal training. His mother gave him some pointers on the piano and church rearing added gusto.

To create a song for the Miss Black America Pageant, Anderson says he simply relaxes.

First, I think of what I'm trying to project. Then I think of how to say it musically. And then I just relax."

Ease impact of cancer, is one purpose of ACS

An important goal of the fight against cancer is eased the impact of cancer on people. This is why the American Cancer Society conducts services and rehabilitation programs to assist cancer patients and their families.

The programs provide practical help and emotional support to those who are affected by cancer. In keeping with the Society's policies, such help and support are always given with the approval of the physician and without interfering in the physician-patient relationship. ACS volunteers enable divisions and units to offer a wide variety of services, depending on the needs of the patient, available funds and local facilities.

In many communities, the following services are provided without charge by the ACS: (1) Information and counseling concerning ACS services, community health services and resources that may help the patient; (2) Loans of sickroom supplies and special comfort items for the homebound patient, such as hospital beds and wheelchairs; (3) Surgical dressings prepared by volunteers; (4) Transportation to and from doctor's office, clinic or hospital for diagnosis and treatment.

Some divisions and units provide additional services including home-health programs, utilizing visiting nurse associations and homemaker agencies. While the American Cancer Society does not operate hospitals of laboratories, treat cancer patients, or pay doctor's fees, in some localities it does support one or more of the following: (1) cancer detection programs focused on finding early cancer in high-risk groups; (2) aid by social workers with patient's nonmedical problems which interfere with recommended treatment; (3) medications in specified amounts.

Thousands of carefully selected and trained volunteers—who have been treated for cancer—are essential to rehabilitation programs which assist tens of thousands of laryngotomy, mastectomy and ostomy patients resume normal lives, careers and places in their communities. Through cooperation and coordination with other private and governmental agencies, the ACS service and rehabilitation programs for cancer patients are being expanded.

There will be a "Sun Fest" Aug. 4 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Central Library. Films and magic tricks will be shown free in the Cropsey Auditorium.

The films are selected for all ages for your entertainment. Activities include those by Weight Watchers, disco dancers, make-up demonstrators, gymnastic exhibitors, story tellers, folk dancers, musicians, senior citizen craft makers, belly dancers, self defense artists, and puppeteers. Southside Happenings

BY OLGA ROBINSON

Mrs. Amy Pettrie Williams and infant daughter, Eleshia, are visiting with their relatives and friends. Amy at one time (1972) was the homecoming queen of Southport High School which has an enrollment of 4,000. She received 99 1/2 Percent of the votes. At that time there were only four black students attending the school.

"You are what you make yourself," if you go into anything with a defeatist attitude, expect the worse. Self-concept is one of Maslow's greatest attributes.

School will end this weekend. Ask yourself what you have learned after eight weeks of blood, sweat and tears.

Some will come out victorious, while others will return to take the same subjects for the third time. Pupils, it is time to awaken to wonder who you are or where you intend to go academically, on welfare or success.

I am in hopes that soon we will have a competency test at the end of each semester, pass or fail. If other states can use these methods, why not Indiana?

The 4H Fair Aug. 2-12 is at the Marion County Fairgrounds. Come and enjoy yourself. Join in the fun for everyone.

Sherman Avenue South underpass: Now much longer Mr. Mayor do we have to wade and swim through three-and-a-half to four feet of water. Our last heavy rain provided a neat swimming pool for the youngsters, whose parents did not seem to mind what kind of disease they caught.

Minnesota and Golay continue to be in very bad shape. What is the city waiting for? While we are on the subject, a resident at 3421 Asbury is in grave danger of having water two-to-three feet deep in her house. This water runs from the gutters of I-465 behind this address and overflows.

She has called various people. No one is interested if it is not them.

Joyce Clark, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayman Clark and a graduate of Harry

E. Wood High School, has received her B.A. degree in biology at the famed Tuskegee Institute.

Congratulations Joyce. Mrs. Clark and her two daughters attended the graduation July 27.

The Mottl Amendment was voted down by the U.S. House of Representatives Tuesday, July 24. I am now writing you residents of the southeast Indianapolis area urging you to think, think how detrimental this constitutional amendment on busing would have been. It was so lacking in merit. People may differ on the issue as to whether busing achieves desegregation. But, this was the issue proposed by the amendment. The question proposed was about the nature of our Constitution and propriety. The Mottl Amendment posed a far more fundamental question about the nature of the Constitution and the propriety of amending the Constitution on a political issue such as school busing.

Amending the Constitution in the heat of a political battle and for the purpose of settling a social question was simply wrong. It demeaned the Constitution and failed to recognize that the Constitution has survived and prospered for almost 200 years because it established an underlying basis for our method of government and for the protection of the rights of our citizens.

The Mottl Amendment would have eliminated school busing as a means of school desegregation.

The bill would have discharged the Judiciary Committee from the consideration of a constitutional amendment. Thus, the House would have been inviting every organized single-issue group in this country to seek the same device and the same remedy for its position.

One of the major objections to the amendment is that it would circumscribe the existing Constitutionally-protected rights of school children.

Black Americans, since Dave Evans (D Ind.) was the co-sponsor of this vicious bill, the next time election comes around maybe you will think about whom you put into office.

HIZZONER'S PLEASSED: Mayor Hudnut is shown with the clean up crew from Twin Hills Housing Project at 37th and Baltimore during Operation Clean-Up kick-off press conference last Sunday.

Twin Hills getting 'Clean-up' salute

Mayor William H. Hudnut and WTLC Radio Station have announced today that Twin Hills Housing Complex, 3700 North Baltimore, is the recipient of the first "Operation Clean-Up, Phase II" award.

Operation Clean-Up, Phase II is a program designed to encourage inner-city neighborhoods to compete in "sprucing up" their surroundings, and is sponsored by Mayor Hudnut, WTLC, the Indianapolis Clean City Committee, the Department of Parks and Recreation, and the Division of Environmental Control.

WTLC's Jerry "J" Walker will provide entertainment and Callopie Sound, Inc. will furnish the sound equipment at a party Sunday, August 5, from 2 to 6 p.m. at Twin Hills Housing Complex, in honor of this week's winner. Prizes will be furnished by Seven Up Bottling Company of Indiana, Inc., William H. Block Company, Big Fella's Restaurant, Peaches Records and Tapes, Stewart Carey, Inc., and McDonald's Restaurant, at 21 and Meridian.

Inner-city neighborhoods interested in participating in this program can contact WTLC at 923-1456 or the Division of Environmental Control at 634-5868 to submit their entry. A selection committee consisting of Jerry "J" Walker, Marvin Cooper of the Indianapolis Housing Authority, and Larry King of the Division of Environmental Control judge the areas in consideration on the basis of physical improvement and participation of neighborhood residents. This week the Twin Hills Housing Complex has shown the greatest amount of improvement, according to inspection team members.

Mayor Hudnut and Jerry "J" Walker celebrated the kick-off of "Operation Clean-Up, Phase II" at a news conference held Sunday, July 29, at the Twin Hills Complex.

Members of "Operation Clean-Up" established last year are: Ann Midkiff, Indianapolis Clean City Committee; Jerry "J" Walker, WTLC; Charles Williams, Office of the Mayor; Tom Dunn, Larry King, Dwight Pinner, and Linda White of the Division of Environmental Control; Marvin Cooper, Indianapolis Housing Authority; and Levon Sanders and Roz Randolph of the Department of Parks and Recreation Force.

Carter has blacks' support who can figure, says Young

ATLANTA—United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young said this week that President Carter has the support of "blacks who count" and that the black community would have to search "a long time" to find an administration that would serve them better than Mr. Carter's.

Young said blacks should continue to support Mr. Carter because of what he said was a decrease in unemployment among blacks and an increased black influence in the federal government.

The ambassador, one of Carter's earlier nominees, was speaking at an annual gathering convention of the National Dental Association. Most of the association's members are black.

The Indianapolis Zoo is open 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. week days, and 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. The Indianapolis Zoo is one of the few remaining non-tax supported zoos in the United States... and we're open every day! Especially Monday!

Senior citizens discounts at Steak n Shake

...The cost of living continues to rise and no one is more aware of the increase than the senior citizen, who in most cases is living on a fixed income. To help overcome this obstacle, Steak n Shake has now expanded the Senior Citizen Discount Card program to include the entire Steak n Shake chain. For the past two years, the card has been extensively tested in the Florida market and was enthusiastically received by the senior citizens.

The card, which entitles the bearer to a 10% discount on any food/beverage purchase at any Steak n Shake restaurant, may be obtained by any person over the age of 60 by simply filling out the application and returning it to the restaurant manager. The manager then approves the application, signs the card and returns it the applicant.

Another black on council?

With a Democratic City Council seat up for grabs, two of the city's better known blacks have emerged as possible contenders. Mentioned so far have been Pat Brown, a School 61 instructor and Indianapolis Education Association president, and Rev. Landrum Shields Witherspoon Presbyterian Church pastor.

A few years ago, Shields distinguished himself by becoming the first black Indianapolis School Board president.

The possibility of either taking a council seat hinges on the fact Jeffrey Simon, an at large councilman, is resigning. Forthcoming appointment must be made by the Marion County Democratic Central Committee.

Bidders shall tender their proposal on Indiana General Form No. 96 (Revised 1964), including Non-Collusion Affidavit and include Indiana General Form 96A (Revised 1949), "Standard Questionnaire and Financial Statement for Bidders". Copies of Form 96 and 96A are available from the Indiana State Board of Accounts, State Office Building, Indianapolis, Indiana, and at various office supply firms throughout the state.

Bid security in the form of a certified check or acceptable bid bond made payable to the order of the Housing Authority of the City of Indianapolis, Indiana, shall accompany each bid. The bid security shall be in the amount of ten (10) percent of the total bid. Should a successful bid be withdrawn within ten (10) days after the closing time for the receipt of bids, the Housing Authority of the City of Indianapolis may declare the bid deposit forfeited.

Each successful bidder shall furnish an acceptable performance bond, made payable to the Housing Authority of the City of Indianapolis, Indiana, which covers the faithful performance of the contract and the payment of all obligations arising thereunder. The amount of the performance bond shall be one hundred (100) percent of the total contract amount. Said bond shall remain in full force and effect for twelve (12) months from the date of acceptance of the work. Bidders may obtain two (2) sets of the Construction Documents from the Office of The Architects, Gibson-Blackburn Partnership, 1800 North Meridian Building, Suite 508, Indianapolis, Indiana, 46202 by depositing $40.00 for each set of documents, plus a separate check for $5.00 for shipping and handling. No partial sets will be issued. Deposit amounts together with shipping and handling charges should be made by check payable to Gibson-Blackburn Partnership. Deposits are fully refundable to each bidder who submits a bonafide bid and returns the documents, in good condition, to the Architects within Fifteen (15) days after the receipt of bids.

Non-Bidders, Bidders requiring more than two (2) sets and sub-contractors, may purchase a full set of documents for $40.00 plus $5.00 for shipping and handling. Attention of Bidders is particularly called to the requirements as to conditions of employment to be observed and minimum wage rates to be paid under the contract. Wage rates on this project shall be not less than the prevailing wage rates as determined pursuant to Chapter 319 of the 1935 Acts of the General Assembly of Indiana and by the United States Department of Labor. Attention is further called to the fact that the contractors must take affirmative action to ensure that applicants are employed, and that employees are treated during employment without regard to their race, color, religion, sex or national origin.

The affirmative action program must include specific goals and employment and training of lower income residents of the project area. The Housing Authority of the City of Indianapolis, Indiana, reserves the right to accept or reject any and all bids or to waive any informalities.

All bids received may be held for a period not to exceed sixty (60) days. All alternate bids may be held for a period of ninety (90) days.

NOTHING HID St. Mark 4:21-23
127. If Israel (Jehohakims seed - Jer. 1:1-3) know they are not Jews, yet along with all their gentile allies keep this turbulent feeling existing between themselves and the black Jews of Jacob who understand this TRUTH, what is their point?
A. Many intellectual gentiles keep Jehohakims seed in front as "Jews" because the unintellectual Christian nations are taught that Christ had "fair skin", rather than tell them the TRUTH in this late date, let them go to Hades believing the "big lie". Therefore, gentiles yet portray Jesus with "fair skin". Israel knew Jehohakims seed is off the throne of David forever and this confusion now existing shall come to its end. GOD changed the name from the House of David to the House of JACOB (2 Sam. 12:1-10, St. Luke 1:31-33)

Notwithstanding, Miller was music director for both, the Shrine Lodge marching and concert bands. Suit, bad disc deal burst Manchild bubble

Manchild was once on top of the world, at least in Indianapolis.

The band had two albums out—one of which put a single, "Especially For You," on the national charts—and it was honored and respected from all sides for the national attention it brought the city.

Probably its sweetest moment in Indianapolis came about a year ago last July when it was greeted by 17,000 screaming fans as the opening act of a Black Expo Shower of Stars. It was then that the bubble these seven local guys had been blowing up for about six years began to burst.

United Artists Records, which distributed the Chi-Sound label, on which Manchild's records were released, was sold a week after the band's second and best album, "Feel the Phuff," was shipped to independent warehouses. While UA's reins were being handed to new drivers, "Feel the Phuff" and all other newly-released UA product sat, going to waste. It wasn't known who would distribute the records.

Manchild, meanwhile, was negotiating with Chi-Sound, which had just inked a distribution deal with 20th Century, on how the label would handle "Phuff." Chi Sound reportedly agreed the album would be repackaged in a new sleeve and be re-released, with the single the label had intended to go with at first, the popular "Don't Get Me Rowdy," following on its heels. However, the label stressed, 20th's budget would not allow Manchild the tour support funds most up-and-coming bands get to support their first few albums. The artist makes no money on the road until it becomes self-supporting through royalties and tour intake, but the extra exposure can work wonders for a new act. Lack of it can kill you. Many later agreed that 20th was hurting because it had lost its longtime bread-and-butter man, Barry White, to a more lucrative and worthwhile deal at CBS.

So, with the album still sitting in those independent warehouses and the few radio station copies that got out getting nice airwave response, the band packed its bags and headed for another label.

The band got bigwigs from Capitol Records to fly into Indianapolis for the Expo concert and, from reports, the label expressed a little interest in adding it to its budding soul roster, which is highlighted by Natalie Cole and Peabo Bryson.

That's when more dark clouds moved in. Frequent disputes with the band's management, the locally operated Sid Johnson Management, Inc., allegedly cropped up and there's an unwritten rule that goes to the effect that a label doesn't want to be bothered with taking on a new act which is having run-ins with management, as managers must authorize all contracts the band agrees to. Capitol bowed out.

However, the band continued working on what would have been its third album, "Manchild Comin' Out To Get Ya," and played a few local and regional club and concert dates to help keep its act polished.

Manchild then allegedly sought the services of another local management firm, while still under contract to Johnson, and played more dates. Johnson then hit the band with a $60,000 breach of contract suit, for which a hearing date is pending.

Highly inactive the last two months, the band is far this summer from the local household word it was last summer.

Manchild was once on top of the world, at least in Indianapolis. —L.F.

Con Funk Shun 'hits' fans where they live

By LYNN FORD
Performing World Editor

Visions of fame began in 1977 for CON FUNK SHUN.

That was the year the band got gold records for the single "Ffun" and album "Secrets."

From there, the hits kept on coming. Last year's "Love-shine" album went platinum and the singles, "Shake and Dance With Me" and "So Easy," were dance floor smashers. The mild Con Funk Shun fever which swept soul music last summer notched the lively Vallejo, Calif. band a few opening dates with the almighty COMMODORES.

Now the band has its second platinum album, "Candy," another dance hit, "Chase Me," and its first headline tour.

Con Funk Shun, which will be the only pure funk band at Thursday's so-called funk festival at the Expo Center, appears to be at least two albums away from soul music's big league. The band hasn't had another crossover powerhouse like "Ffun," but it has enough drawing power to headline in 7-10,000-seat halls and, if its material and sales remain consistent, there's room for it at the top.

"Once we get there," lead singer-guitarist and co-founder MICHAEL COOPER said before the band opened here last summer for the Commodores, "we plan to stay there."

He agreed that most bands are guaranteed three to five years on top because of the public's ever-changing musical and personality tastes, but Cooper outlined a formula Con Funk Shun has for maintaining its growth and sustaining its potential fame. It's called hitting the people where they live, and changing with the times.

"We aim our music anywhere from two-years-old to 50," said Cooper, who writes most of the seven-man band's hit uptempo material. "That way, there's something for everybody."

"I use a formula just of what's happening now and what I think will be happening in the near future," he continued, relaxing in his Downtown motel room. "It's just a formula of knowledge I've gained over the years, like beats, like I do play drums, I play bass, I play guitar, I play a little keyboard and I know what horn lines should sound like, so I've gotten a feel for the current thing in my head and what the people want to hear. Disco is in now, so you must remember to always keep the beat up, keep it fast, keep it funky."

"BRICK is a good example of some of the things you don't do that make a tune really funky."

They're using the music a lot now instead of adding a whole bunch of horns and stuff like that. They'll let eight-to-16 bars go by before they even start singing. It's repetitious, but that's what the people like. They like to hold on to the music and snap their fingers constantly."

But just because Cooper and the band's other primary writer, second lead singer FELTON PILATE, who writes most of the ballads, are in touch with what the public wants to fill its ears with, it doesn't mean the band's music is immune to improvement.

"We need criticism," said Cooper, who admits to sometimes mixing his voice on the band's records beneath the horns because, in his opinion, he's not the world's greatest singer, "just give me what you really feel. Don't tell me something you think I might want to hear."

"Over a period of a month or two, talking to about 50 or 60 people and having 80 to 90 percent tell you your album's great, and another 15 percent say, 'Well, I liked this, but I didn't like that,' you tend to come to yourself and say, 'Well, I'd better keep on doin' this,' or 'I need to work on my ballads more.' It helps keep you from becoming stale."

CLOSING SOUNDS: Commodores are sounding more sophisticated than ever on the "Midnight Magic" LP which shipped last week. However the band has stuck to a by-now tired lyric formula which all but duplicates the songs that got the band over the hump in 1977. "Easy," "Zoom" and "Brick House." "Sail On," first single from the new LP, while quite attractive with its overall

Historic breakthroughs reported at OAU summit

By LARRY STILL

MONROVIA, Liberia—

Two highly significant actions were taken at the final session of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) summit—a declaration for the establishment of an African Economic Community and the adoption of a strong resolution on human rights.

The impetus for all free and independent African nations to promote social and economic development cooperatively came from new OAU Chairman, William R. Tolbert, Jr., President of Liberia.

Tolbert issued what was called "The Monrovia Declaration," calling for the development of an African Economic Community, similar to the European Economic Community of Western Nations. The declaration urged the elimination of restrictive border customs between African nations and the promotion of increased economic cooperation and political unity.

The OAU summit passed another resolution calling for greater Afro-Arab economic cooperation. The resolution urged wealthy Arab countries to define a practical and clear policy on the transfer of their financial resources in the form of Arab investment in Africa.

In light of increasing reports of alleged executions and atrocities in certain OAU countries, the passage of a resolution to promote and protect human rights was described by OAU Secretary General Edem Kodjo as a "historic breakthrough."

The resolution, proposed by Senegal, called upon the Secretary General of the OAU to convene as soon as possible a restricted meeting of highly qualified experts to prepare a preliminary draft of the African Charter of Human Rights.

It also called on the Secretary General of the OAU to bring to the attention of member countries, certain international conventions being proposed to strengthen the African fight to end apartheid, racial discrimination, trade imbalance and mercenarism.

The resolution as proposed and presented in draft form at the summit session, identified duties and responsibilities "necessary to provide protection of human rights for citizens in various African countries."

In his statement at the closing ceremonies, President Tolbert, emphasized the sanctity of human rights will be considered by the OAU Committee appointed to review the complete OAU charter.

"We have solemnly adopted principles of human rights in every global forum, except our own," he told his fellow African leaders. "It is time," the new chairman added, "for us to write an African Charter of Human Rights, whose effectiveness we would guarantee at all costs."

Speaking at a press conference at the conclusion of the summit, OAU Secretary-General Kodjo said, "The OAU summit ended with historic breakthroughs in dynamic decisions on issues that never received prompt attention in the past. For the first time, the OAU took a clear stand on economic cooperation, liberation movements, the implementation of human rights and the mediation and conciliation of crisis between African states."

He asserted that the summit arrived at decisions which, if implemented, would bring far-reaching developments to the African peoples.

The Secretary General commended the African heads of state and their foreign ministers for decisions which demonstrated OAU's capability and strategy to bind solid and sound solutions to African affairs and problems.

Samuel D. Harris one of SIU's top contributors

CARBONDALE, Ill.

If they ever make a list of people who contributed a lot to Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, Samuel D. Harris' name ought to be near the top.

Some people contribute money. Harris sent his children.

Harris was 81 years old when he died July 6 at his home in rural America, Ill., a few miles from Mounds in deep Southern Illinois. The elderly black man never set foot inside a classroom at the Carbondale campus, but before he died the retired farmer and laborer saw nine of his 12 children get college educations; six went to college in SIUC.

The first of Harris' children to go to college at SIUC was his second daughter, Lillian Harris Davis. She enrolled at the University in 1940 and was graduated in 1944 with a bachelor's degree in government. She teaches school in Detroit.

Four other daughters and one son followed. A granddaughter, Kim Harris of Centralia, will become the latest member of the Harris clan to be part of SIUC's student body when she enrolls for classes this August.

One other daughter, Joyce Harris Hayes of Carbondale (912 N. Marion) will begin writing her Ph.D. dissertation this fall at SIUC. She also received bachelor's (1973) and master's (1976) degrees from the University.

Harris quit school in the 11th grade to help his father run the family farm. Mrs. Hayes said that his failure to finish his education made him insist that his children get as much education as they could.

"He sort of required it," she said. "We had to finish high school. If we wanted to go to college he'd help us."

It wasn't easy. At one time Harris had four children in class at SIUC, but he helped them as much as he could.

"I know it was hard on him," Mrs. Hayes said. "But we all had scholarships and student work jobs and we made it."

Harris grew vegetables, wheat, corn and soybeans on his farm near America. He sold the produce from a horse-drawn wagon on the main street in Mounds.

"Come Saturday mornings, he'd hitch up the horses and head for town," said son-in-law Richard Hayes, SIUC associate affirmative action officer. "He'd spend all day selling from that wagon."

Hayes said his father-in-law believed in delivering all the value he could when he sold his vegetables.

"I'll tell you the kind of man he was," he said. "When he sold you a quart of beans, those beans had already been washed and snapped."

A deeply religious man, Harris taught Sunday school for 54 years at St. Paul's AME Church in Mounds. Mrs. Hayes said he was reading his bible when he died.

NCNW prexy attends Int'l. woman's confab in Israel

JERUSALEM—

Dorothy Height, president of the National Council of Negro Women, was among several hundred top women leaders from all over the world who gathered in Israel recently for a four-day conference on women's achievements as leaders and what they can do to help solve their countries' problems.

Height, making her second visit to Israel, addressed the Conference on its final day. She reported to the delegates on the status and struggle of Black women in the United States.

Height saw particular significance in the fact that the Conference was being held in Jerusalem, the capital city of Israel. "First of all, women have a particular role to play in the struggle for peace and to be here in the early days of peace with Egypt is very significant," she said. "For many of us of different religions from so many different countries have gathered here."

The Black woman leader was emotional in her reaction to "Yad Vashem," the memorial to the six million Jews who died in the Holocaust of the Second World War. "When we see and remember the Holocaust, it reminds us of the destructiveness of racial discrimination," Miss Height declared, adding:

"We cannot work only to eliminate discrimination against women, but against race as well. Otherwise we won't reap any of the benefits. A woman's movement that gives attention to both racism and sexism can be a great power for change."

Organizers here commented about the no-nonsense atmosphere of the workshops and the absence of the tensions which marked the 1975 Conference held in Mexico to mark the UN International Women's Year, which degenerated into a political free-for-all. In fact, the Conference ended with the passing of two resolutions demanding equal rights and representation for women and a call that future conferences on women steer clear of political issues.

A passionate call for the end of apartheid was sounded at the final session by Sheena Duncan, president of the "Black

THE THREE births of Rosa Becerril-Martinez's children have all occurred under unusual circumstances. The latest, Ermelinda, was born on a jumbo jet in flight July 17 near Miami, Fla.

Mother sets record on unusual child births?

MIAMI, Fla.—It might well be good to investigate the Guinness World Book to find out whether Rosa Becerril-Martinez set some type of record or not.

Oddly enough, Mrs. Becerril-Martinez is the mother of three children—none born under normal circumstances, such as a hospital.

The most recent addition, Ermelinda, decided to arrive July 17 on an Eastern Airlines flight from San Juan to Chicago.

Mrs. Becerril-Martinez's daughter, Rosa Delia, now 2½, arrived aboard a train somewhere in New Jersey while her mother, who lives in Puerto Rico, was en route to Brooklyn.

Ruth Damaris, now 16 months, chose to arrive in an airport terminal on St. Croix, in the Virgin Islands, while her dad was on a trip.

A spokesman for Eastern, Dalton James, noted that the jumbo jet was 10 minutes from a scheduled stop here when Ermelinda decided the time was right. She was delivered by an ad hoc team at the rear of the plane headed by Dr. Rudolfo Covinaski, an Argentinian, who was on the way to Miami. Assisting him were two Eastern flight attendants. According to James, all went as well as could be expected. He noted no panicking among the 283 passengers aboard.

After resting a few days at a Miami medical center, Mrs. Becerril-Martinez and daughter finally arrived at O'Hare Airport late Friday.

The young mother, she's 19, had nothing but praises for the doctor, whom she noted "did not bill her," and the flight attendants whom she said were "better than nurses."

Before leaving the airport, she was asked where she expects the next child to be born, and she declared: "I will have the next one on a boat or a bicycle."

Number of single-person household on the increase

More than one-fifth of all American households last year consisted of persons living alone, according to a report released today by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

Although 62 percent of these single-person households were maintained by women, the proportion maintained by men has grown more rapidly since 1970 than that for women. The largest overall increases during this decade have been for young adult men (under 25) living alone.

The increase in single-person households has come during a period of postponement of first marriages and may reflect an increasing desire among young adults to seek advanced education and careers before marriage, the report indicates. Most of the growth in single-person households has been among persons under 35 who were either divorced or never married.

The postponement of marriage by young adults continues to increase, the survey reports. Among women 20-24 nearly half had never married. This is an increase of two-thirds in the proportion single since 1960. Delay of first marriages also continues among women 25 to 29. Another indication of delayed marriage is seen in the one-year increase since 1970 in the median age at first marriage: 24.2 years for men and 21.8 years for women.

Sash" organization and a well-known Black activist in South Africa.

At a gala dinner in the Knesset, Israel's parliament, the attention of delegates was also drawn to the plight of Ida Nudel, Soviet Jewish activist held prisoner in a Siberian prison camp where all other prisoners are men. After Israeli songwriter Naomi Shemer recited a poem she had written to the Jewish woman prisoner, Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan took the floor.

"As we know from our experiences building the Jewish state," Dayan said, "those with dreams are rich. We count much more on our future than what we are doing now. Ida Nudel has such dreams of coming to Israel."

The report also notes that in 1978 there were 8 million families maintained by women who were not living with a husband, a 44 percent gain over the 5.6 million such families in 1970. During the 8 year period, black families maintained by a woman increased by 65 percent to 2.2 million families. The number of white families maintained by a woman rose 36 percent, to 5.7 million.

A table showing the marital status of females maintaining families in March 1978 follows. Marital Status of Women Maintaining Families With No Husband Present, by Race:

March 1978
Marital Status (number in thousands) single, white-598; black 619; Change Since 1970: white 55.3 percent and black 183.9 percent.
Married, spouse absent, white-1,055; black 660; Change Since 1970: white 36.0 percent and black 23.4 percent.
Widowed, white 1,848; black 474; Change Since 1970: white 6.0 percent and black 17.0 percent.
Divorced, white 2,181; black 478; Change Since 1970: white 106.1 percent and black 149.0 percent.

Coupled with this increase in women-led families is the finding that children are living increasingly in one-parent families. It has been estimated that nearly one-half of all children born today will spend a meaningful portion of their lives before age 18 in single-parent families.

Last year, nearly 11 million children were living with their mothers only, compared to about one million living with their fathers only. Contrary to some speculation, the proportion of children living with fathers only has increased no more than the proportion living with mothers only.

Highlights in the new report include data showing that (1) the estimated level of divorce is rising, particularly among young adults; (2) the number of unmarried couples households has increased 117 percent since 1970, to 1.1 million.

The data presented in this report are from the March 1978 Current Population Survey (CPS). As in all sample surveys, the data are subject to sampling variability and errors of response, including under-

HEW head won't be pushed into making appointments

PATRICIA R. HARRIS

WASHINGTON, D.C.—One of the highest ranking blacks and females in the Carter Administration, Patricia Roberts Harris, was reassuring the Senate Labor Committee that she does not expect to have nominees for high positions in her new department "jammed down her throat" by the White House Staff, while the powerful Senate Finance Committee was debating her approval as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare late Friday.

Mrs. Harris lent assurance that the problem of White reporting and nonreporting. A detailed explanation appears in the report.

Copies of the report, Marital Status and Living Arrangements: March 1978, Series P 20, No. 338 are available for $2.40 each from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, or from Commerce District Offices in major U.S. cities.

Lauch Henry helped find the missing ingredient to educate minority engineers. Money

Lauchland Henry is a black American Scientist and an engineer. He is a scientist, concerned about the lack of money to educate minority engineers. And he has expressed a desire to help the growing need for engineers. These under-represented minorities constitute a rich untapped resource to help fill the growing need for engineers, a need that is expected to continue through the mid-1980's.

IBM's social leave program enabled Dr. Henry to take a year's leave to help fund. And IBM continued to pay him his full salary.

The National Fund for Minority Engineering Students is a very worthwhile program. We think so. Lauchland Henry thinks so. But most important of all, lots of minority engineering students enrolled at colleges and universities all over the country think so.

Weber decision heralds new era in affirmative action; black official

CHICAGO—With the Weber decision a motivating force, affirmative action efforts must be pursued more aggressively, said Weldon J. Rougeau, director of the U.S. Labor Department's Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs (OFCCP).

Addressing the National Urban League here, Rougeau called for a "renewed spirit" in the battle against existing job discrimination.

While the outcome of the Weber case is clearly a victory for affirmative action, Rougeau said, "that judicial victory alone will not bring about an immediate end to discrimination in the workforce."

He went on to relate his agency's own equal employment opportunity efforts to the landmark case, decided by the U.S. Supreme Court on June 27.

In that ruling, the Court upheld voluntary affirmative action efforts such as those taken by the United Steelworkers of America and Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. at the firm's Granberry, La.

Brian Weber, a white technician there, had challenged Kaiser's craft training program in what became a precedent-setting "reverse discrimination" case.

"We welcome the Court's decision," said Rougeau, "not only as a buttress to OFCCP's efforts, but more importantly as an impetus for federal contractors to freely take their own voluntary action."

OFCCP, a part of the Labor Department's Employment Standards Administration, protects the job rights of women, minorities, handicapped persons and veterans on federal contract work. Part of a contractor's obligation includes taking affirmative action.

Weber decision also provides an opportunity to clear up myths about affirmative action that have led to some challenges, both legal and political.

cal," Rougeau noted. He urged employers not to abandon their EEO obligation in light of new national concerns.

"We must not lose ground because dark economic or energy clouds are gathering," the director warned. "We cannot fall back in retreat."

Rougeau called for a more cohesive approach to affirmative action from government agencies, employers, unions and special interest groups.

"There are many more Gramm-Leach-Bliley hearings needed," he pointed out. "The situation at the Kaiser plant is by no means an isolated incident."

Rougeau highlighted OFCCP's own strengthened efforts in the last three years—especially since its major reorganization in 1978.

He noted that the agency's enforcement record is at its highest point since 1976 under President Lyndon Johnson's Executive Order 11246.

According to Rougeau, forty-one firms have been cited for EEO violations since 1976, and eight have actually been dropped from the government's roster of eligible contractors.

We expect to continue this aggressiveness into the 1980's," the director asserted. "Those who can't or won't meet their affirmative action obligation will face a much tougher OFCCP."

As examples, he pointed to the agency's strong focus in ferreting out discrimination in such growth industries as banking, insurance and coal mining.

Rougeau noted that a major Chicago bank, Harris Trust Co., will face trial next month in response to federal allegations of class bias against women and minorities.

He cited this case as an example of OFCCP's new thrust against "systemic" discrimination, adding that more than 100 other such cases are now under active investigation.

"Meanwhile we are waiting for the Weber decision to penetrate the various strata of the marketplace," Rougeau said, "and when it does, our hope is that discrimination will cease to be a recurring theme."

"Power concedes nothing without a demand — it never did and it never will. Find out just what people will submit to, and you've found out the exact amount of injustice and wrong which will Give minorities the business!!!

With the recent decision by the Supreme Court to decide the challenge to set-asides of government contracts for minority business, Fullilove v. Kresps, much attention has been focused on the role of minority enterprise.

A recent study by the U.S. Commerce Department shows that government policies designed to give minorities a stake in the economy have failed—minority set-asides and all.

The study was conducted by a Chicago-based business consulting concern, James Lowry and Associates, which worked in conjunction with Assistant Secretary of Commerce, Jerry Jasnowski, and his staff.

Though the report does not pursue this point, numerous economists have pointed to the fact that Black business is basically small, non-monopoly business in an economy increasingly dominated by monopolies. As such, they suffer the maladies of all small business, exacerbated by racial discrimination.

The case of Black businessman Louis Bethune is a case in point. This Birmingham entrepreneur has a contract with the Tennessee Valley Authority to provide $45 million worth of coal to the huge electrical power facility. His company, Fair Park East, got the contract through competitive bidding and not via set-aside. They submitted a low bid of $30 per ton.

The contract was the largest TVA had ever awarded to a minority contractor. Bethune claims that the adverse publicity generated by area newspapers, which claimed that he received the contract solely because of his color, caused his suppliers to refuse to honor their contract with him. He obtained an alternate source, but TVA refuses to accept this despite Bethune's claim that they have done so for white brokers. Bethune is reluctant to file suit against TVA because their "pockets are too deep," but adds, "we may have to." He is suing his supplier.

All-States Transcontinental Van Lines, a household-goods moving business based in St. Louis presents another familiar picture. They have applied to the Inter-State Commerce Commission (ICC) for a license as a national mover. The ICC requires an applicant to bear the costs of a series of hearings at which opponents may come forth to speak against him. Only 19 of the major carriers are licensed to operate nationally. These licenses are difficult to win and expensive to buy from a carrier willing to sell; the cost is $15 million.

Timothy Person, Black president of All-States—a family-owned business—has complained bitterly about the obstacles to "free competition" put up by the ICC blocking those wishing to win a slice of the market from Allied Van Lines—the giant of the industry. Indeed, this concern has protested vocally Person's attempt to win a license. To this point, Mr. Person has spent over $300,000 to win a license that would spell the difference between being a perpetual "small-fry" or a competitive company. Just recently it was learned that the ICC turned down his application.

Black labor has supported the efforts of minority businesses for set-asides, recognizing that often they can get employment only from Black business. This is especially true in the construction industry. Still, statistics show that minorities receive a surprisingly low amount of government contracts. For example, Congressional Black Caucus member William Clay (D-Mo.) revealed recently that over the past three years, minority business has received only 3 percent of the contracts from the U.S. Postal Service.

According to Rep. Clay, "not one architectural or engineering contract was awarded to a minority firm in the cities of Chicago, Houston, nor St. Louis." The situation was little better in Washington, Los Angeles and other major cities.

A look at jobs in federally aided highway projects presents a similar picture. The Federal Highway Administration reports that only 8 percent of the officials and manager and only 6 percent of the on-the-job supervisors were minorities. Of the 15,086 skilled jobs, minorities held only 700. Study after study has shown that such figures improve when minority contracts are involved.

The situation in the state of New York from whence Fullilove emanated, is not better. The NAACP sponsored a minority business seminar in Albany recently that was addressed by Gov. Hugh Carey. It emerged there that of a reputed $500 million in annual procurements, minorities are awarded a measly $3 million state-wide. Carey spoke of improving this dismal picture but did not offer any specific goals or timetables. In response, Benjamin Hooks of the NAACP, announced that an Office of Minority Business Development was being established in the national office with committees in each of their 1700 branches.

Minority business development represents more a dream deferred than a living reality. It remains to be seen whether this situation will dramatically change. There is no doubt that Fullilove v. Kresps will tell the tale to a large extent.

Writer says blacks must solve their own problems

To The Editor:

I am a 27-year-old black male who graduated from high school and attended college right here in Indianapolis.

The integration problem really is our problem. White people don't know what to do with us and also probably don't want to be bothered with us. What we black people must realize if we are to have our dilemma solved is that they must be solved for us by us. White people are either unable or unwilling to help us.

It is not even the nature of white people, as a whole, to want to solve our problems. They, as a collective group, have so many problems facing themselves that they basically don't care about black people's problems and could care less if we ever receive assistance. This may sound cold and harsh, but let's face it, it's reality. Oftentimes reality is cold and harsh.

Speaking for me personally, integration simply means white ideas will control black people. This is merely contemporary, involuntary servitude or 20th Century slavery.

Integration simply perpetuates the attitude of black inferiority and white superiority. We blacks as a collective entity will never gain respect from whites or any other nationality as long as we are continuously running to whites to solve our problems. Self-love, self-respect and self-defense should be our primary objectives.

Anything that black people want can be achieved without white people running it because whites themselves are fast approaching a time when they are unable to solve their own problems. This is what so-called black leaders must realize.

Therefore, I have never and will never be in favor of integration. Separate, but equal is fine with me. This is not to say I'm a segregationist in black face.

Segregation is forced; separation is chosen. This is definitely a basic distinctive difference. Never in the history of this country have we ever been integrated to our advantage, and we probably never will.

This is almost 1980, gentlemen, a new day, and we must be about the business of bringing this new day about.

If blacks had picked up on the separation attitude years ago, we wouldn't be faced with this predicament now. Here we are in 1979 still begging to be near and with our former white slave-masters, when it's obvious they have no more use for us. All the cotton has been picked; all the water has been drawn from the wells; and computerization and automation are taking over jobs.

So gentlemen, our problem is where do we go from here? We as black people must develop an undying love for ourselves and kind. Like Malcolm X said: "Every white person who is friendly is not your friend."

'IT IS UP TO US, BLACKS WHO CARE ABOUT THE BLACK FUTURE, TO IMPOSE ORDER WHERE NONE EXISTS TODAY, AND WE HAVE TO DO IT. OUR LIVES HAVE ALWAYS BEEN MORE WORTHLESS THAN WHITE ONES IN THE EYES OF OUR COUNTRY, AND OUR COUNTRY DOES NOT REALLY CARE ABOUT THE CHAOS IN OUR NEIGHBORHOODS AS LONG AS THAT ANARCHY DOES NOT SPILL OVER THE LINES OF DEMARCATION.

WE HAVE TO DO IT BECAUSE WE CANNOT ASK OUR OLD PEOPLE TO SPEND THE REST OF THEIR LIVES PASSING THROUGH A GALINTLET OF MUGGERS."

Carter links energy and Idealism

President Carter came down from the Camp David Mountain to speak directly to the American people in a way that few Presidents have ever done. He did more than just talk about energy; he preached a sermon: one the American people needed to hear.

For it isn't often a President steps back from immediate concerns to address the nation about things like morality, confidence in the future, and other intangibles.

And it isn't often a President condemns the self-indulgence and distorted values we see about us. The scorn with which the President spoke of the way many people confuse their personal identity with owning things was genuine. America has always been a materialistic society, but it is only in recent years that the equally strong strain of idealism has faltered.

There are two constant themes in the President's Sunday night speech and in his public talks shortly afterwards. One was the call to rekindle America's spirit and traditional values. The other was energy.

The two were linked because energy appears to be the issue of most immediate concern to most people, and because you can't preach a moral awakening in a vacuum. There's got to be an issue around in which the nation can be rallied.

The President chose energy as that issue. Most people would agree with that choice.

But I have my doubts.

Energy is not a moral issue. The price of a gallon of gas or the numbers of barrels of imported oil are not the stuff of which moral crusades are made.

Tapping the latent moral fervor of our nation and rekindling belief in American ideals needs a worthier subject. It needs a vision more inspiring than shortening the wait at gas stations.

Such a fitting vision is the vision of racial equality.

Racial equality and the battle to eradicate poverty and disadvantage is an issue that can rally the nation, especially if it is presented in the context of traditional American idealism and our dedication to human rights.

It's a vision that can't be lost in a maze of contradictory strategies for achieving energy independence. And it's a vision that would bring out the best in the American people and shake them loose from the selfish lethargy that undermines the moral fiber of the nation.

That vision could be backed with a positive agenda for the 1980's — an agenda that includes full employment, health and housing goals, a youth development policy and other national efforts to upgrade the quality of life for all.

In the process, such an agenda would overcome racial disparities and bring parity to the black and brown people who are disproportionately poor.

And it would revive confidence in America's traditional values of justice, brotherhood and equality.

That said, the president's energy program represents a strong new exercise of leadership. He has put together a clear package designed to deal not only with temporary energy problems such as we are now experiencing, but with the long-run problems.

Unless such strong action is taken we face the terrifying picture of our entire economy grinding to a halt sometime down the road. There's just so much oil in the ground, and it will run out. A crash program to develop solar energy and synthetic fuels is necessary.

It is encouraging that the President is going to the people to help solve this serious problem. He's breaking out of Washington cocoon that envelops Presidents and cuts them off from people's concerns.

The domestic summit at Camp David and the reaching out to the American people signal a new phase in the Carter Presidency. It is to be hoped this bold new look will be a lasting leadership thrust that transforms a cautious Administration to one that brings positive changes to our domestic policies.

Citizens Speak Out!!!

This week: Busing

EDITOR'S NOTE: Readers will be periodically asked to submit opinions on current issues chosen by The Recorder for publication in the Citizens Speak Out!!! series. See page one for details on how to voice your views on the series' topic. Federal Judge S. Hugh Dillin's recent busing decision, which will affect more than 6,100 black pupils this fall.

Too far

To The Editor:

These are my questions and list of disadvantages concerning the busing plan:

1. Do the Perry Township schools intend to give free lunches to children who would otherwise be able to walk home for lunch? Most parents cannot afford weekly lunches.

2. A great disadvantage of busing is if a child were to be in walking distance from their school and he were 10-15 minutes late, he could still attend school without missing a whole day. But if a child misses the bus by two or three minutes, he would have to remain home and I'm sure second buses would not make an extra trip for late children.

3. I also feel it is a very emotional thing for a child who has felt secure in his or her own familiar surroundings to, all of a sudden, be in a different place with unfamiliar faces.

4. If a child is ill and needs to go home, do the schools plan on giving the child transportation? As most parents may not own cars, or have access to them, the child would be stranded. A parent might also have other children at home and be unable to catch a bus.

5. It seems the teachers are always on the parents to support their child, to show interest in their work and to attend P.T.A. meetings. Most parents could if their child's school were in walking distance. However, the fact that gas prices are so high, and, once again, that some parents don't have cars, that would be impossible.

Illness

I have a seven-year-old boy who has asthma. He has been hospitalized once and his attacks are pretty bad. He takes his medicine when he's supposed to, but sometimes attacks flare up suddenly. He is one of the black students who will be bused this fall. When he has had attacks before I was able to leave my job and rush to school and pick him up to go home or to the hospital. I wonder what will happen now that he will be going to school so far away from home?

The black vote: 1980

What is the NAACP's assessment of President Carter? Given the extent of black discontent over the continuing erosion of their recent gains and what blacks perceive as Mr. Carter's inadequate support for social programs and commitment to their interests, the question of whether blacks will back the President next year was repeatedly asked during the recent week-long NAACP convention in Louisville, Kentucky.

The NAACP, of course, does not endorse any particular candidate. It is non-partisan. But those who know the NAACP's history will also realize that the organization is, nevertheless, strongly political. Since its founding 70 years ago, the NAACP has worked to overturn the many barriers to blacks at the polls and to mobilize the great voting and influential strength of America's minorities, disadvantaged, supporters and allies.

In the past 30 years, especially, the NAACP has played a crucial role in mobilizing black voting strength through the local network of branches. It developed the most effective voter registration program in the South; through its Washington bureau, it led in developing and executing the strategy that resulted in passage of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

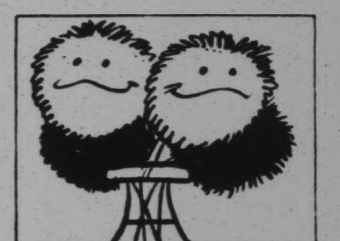

Black Americans now view the coming months as crucial. President Carter in his Cheney College commencement speech chided blacks for not fully utilizing their voting power to achieve their goals. Vice President Mondale also called on blacks to vote more in his speech at the NAACP convention.

No one who is aware of the extent to which black voters do not register or vote can truly take offense at this concern. Black Americans, however, aware that fully 93 percent of their vote in 1976 went to President Carter, have expressed disappointment that the President has sought to broaden his political base too often at their expense.

The question about the anticipated level of black support for Mr. Carter in 1976 can therefore be expected to increase. The problem is, however, that at present blacks see no suitable alternative among the announced Republican candidates, except with interests antithetical to blacks. We shall hopefully await the entry of others in the field.

So, as of now, the only possibility of a choice for them would be if Massachusetts Senator Ted Kennedy challenged the President in the primaries next year. The Kennedy mystique is still very strong among blacks. And even though he helped contribute last year to the defeat of Edward Brooke, the only black in the Senate, it appears that many blacks would swing over to the Massachusetts senator, if not out of commitment, at least in anger and frustration.

Mr. Kennedy, however, has said that he will support Mr. Carter in his reelection bid. We hope he does. Because the prospect of repeating the 1968 debacle which saw Richard Nixon, the GOP Presidential candidate, defeating civil rights stalwart Hubert Humphrey, is too painful to encourage.

Carnations will last longer if you add a bit of boric acid to the water in the vase.

Nutmeg was once thought to remove freckles.

Jacobs responds to critics of his anti-busing stand

To The Editor:

For the past ten years both in the former and the present 11th District, I have stated clearly and publicly, during each election campaign for and during each term in Congress, that I did not favor so-called racial balance busing. My vote on the Constitutional Amendment was consistent with those campaign pledges.

I believe that racial balance busing is counterproductive and that the vastly more effective tool for correcting past racial segregation in the schools is remedial education in neighborhood schools, especially including effective preschool programs for the educationally disadvantaged. And the record will show that I have consistently cast the 11th District vote for such remedial education and for such preschool programs.

It seems to me that long-distance busing is too little and too late and compared with what preschool programs and reduction of student-teacher ratios in poor neighborhood schools can do to develop the skills necessary for significant employment. Such employment would produce the income which itself brings about desegregation in housing patterns. That kind of desegregation is permanent, while the busing desegregation lasts for several hours of black student inconvenience each school day without significant or lasting scholastic improvement.

The special education programs for educationally disadvantaged children in poor neighborhoods probably are no cheaper than busing, but they are far more effective toward the goal of equality of opportunity and desegregation.

In view of my past and current voting record in the Congress on civil rights questions generally, it seems no more fair to suggest that racism plays a part in my judgment about busing than it was to suggest a few years ago that sympathy for communism played a part in my judgment that our involvement in the Vietnam War was a counterproductive mistake.

I am grateful for the fairness of The Recorder in printing my reply to the front page story of July 27th.

Sincerely,
ANDY JACOBS, JR.

Letter to Jacobs reflects shock

Dear Congressman Jacobs:

In 1947 when I watched you in your floundering and budding days, I had no idea that in 1979 rotten, social and racial roots would spring from the seeds of your earlier development.

I was shocked, amazed, chagrined and disappointed when I observed from the House Record and from your weak compromising justification on Tuesday's T.V. news as to your sell-out vote on that nefarious and racially oriented House Bill proposed amendment to the Constitution to prohibit school busing for integration.

In view of my respect for the courageous, dedicated principles of your father for equal justice and human rights, I had high hopes and great dreams for you as a courageous, uncompromising public figure and statesman.

As I reflect with nostalgia over my more than a half-century fight for justice and equality for all peoples regardless of their racial or religious minority status, I feel that my efforts as a whole have been in vain; and I am engulfed with the social cloud and aroma of defeat and failure and with the fact that my sons are now faced with the same insidious social order with its dual standards of moral, political and materialistic duplicitous status quo order of today as has existed over the years.

With deep concern and may God forgive you, I am

Sincerely yours,
Henry J. Richardson, Jr.

P.S. After we gave you our vote, we are hurt and ashamed of you. Why would you use your official status to create and add more confusion to the already mixed up and confused social cancerous racial roots?

Lonely inmate seeks pen pals to write him

To The Editor:

My name is Wayne Johnson, and I'm a young man who has been incarcerated for the past three years. Being so, I have been shut off from the outside world.

I don't receive any mail or communications whatsoever. At this stage, I find myself a very lonely person. There is in all of us a deep stewing desire to be heard and understood, but if we are not, any sort of communication becomes a very nervous and uncomfortable thing.

Being what so many people call a convict or criminal, I'm not. I just made a mistake in life, but everyone makes mistakes. "Don't they?"

I'm always trying to better myself in any way I can, but I find it hard at times because of the lack of having someone to correspond with. In here, it is of great importance.

Hopefully, one of your readers might have a little spare time and will be interested in writing to me.

I'm 24-years-old, black hair, brown eyes, weight 170 pounds and stands 6'1". My hobbies are all sports, music, traveling & meeting new people and making new friends. I'm a very nice young man once you get to know me.

So if anyone is interested in becoming a pen pal please write: Wayne Johnson, #151-166, P.O. Box 69, London, Ohio, 43140. Remember that the only way to cure loneliness is to give of yourself.

Business In Black

By CHARLES E. BELLE

Black jobs sacrificed

In the last two decades inflation in the United States has been fought with abrupt cuts in money and debt growth that reduced real economic activity, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis in its annual report.

Furthermore, "inflation slowed in response to these policies, but because unemployment rose substantially these policies were soon abandoned." President James Earl Carter's administration continues to cause higher Black American unemployment in his pursuit to put a stop to inflation — until white employment rises. Unemployment among Black Americans increased by 67,000 persons in April but decreased among whites by 34,000.

Indigestion is the likely response for Black American readers of economic forecasts of the future. The unemployment rate for blacks in May was 11.6 percent with a 36.9 percent for black teenagers to let the Bureau of Labor Statistics do the talking.

To tell the truth, that was the good news. Stephen Brooks senior economist with Data Resources, Inc., a Washington, D.C., forecasting firm, sees a 13.3 percent unemployment figure for all non-whites, almost a 20 percent increase, which means an even higher unemployment figure for young black adults, in a "very mild recession."

Stephen thinks the economy will start running down around September. Since Jeffrey Green of prestigious Wharton Econometric Forecasting in Philadelphia feels national unemployment will be even higher than Brooks', we can believe Stephen's estimates are conservative.

Budget Cuts

President James Earl Carter could apparently care less about the prospects of higher unemployment of Black Americans if we believe his budget director. The director is determined to deliver to Congress a cutting budget that would require a tight lid on spending and little or no growth in social welfare programs. The plan is to provide the President with a surplus while blacks are still hungry for jobs.

Just because the present administration helped induce this projected "mild recession" is no guarantee it will either be mild or only a recession. Right at this moment a lot of motion is going on in the same White House to design a plan to help the country out of a deep decline if too many whites join blacks in the unemployment lines.

Tiger cage fans eye return to 'glory days'

By BEN DULIN

Fans and alumni of the once rich-traditioned Crispus Attucks High School basketball "glory days" have simply stated of late, "We'd like to see those days return!"

There are some who plan to build a forum for monitoring prospective talent which could thrust Attucks back into the winning lime-light enjoyed at least 20 years ago.

Alumni and gobs of fans who remember the 1950-60 era of supremacy the then all black school enjoyed in basketball competition vow to work in a variety of communicable ways prior to the 1979-80 season to confirm the notion that a lack of talent is responsible for the Tigers' downfall amongst state and even city cage power!

The idea which evolved from a few alumni, would steer comparable talent like yesterday back to Tiger-land. And as many cage experts from this area realize, there is plenty of young basketball talent in this city. It's just not at Attucks these days.

Attributed to the progressive downfall, the school on the city's westside underwent its integration change in the early 70's. But even before, Tiger land had been for the most part completely shut-out from the savor of victory as first experienced in 1955, when coach Ray Crowe led his Green and Gold clad Tigers in Indianapolis' first state title after a wait of more than 40 years during previous tournaments.

The triumphant feat of the '55 championship extended into the next season, when a player destined for world renown stardom named Oscar Robertson, would establish records still standing, while spearheading a Tiger outfit to its second title in a row in 1956 as the first team in Indiana history to do so undefeated.

At that point, another record was embarking on what appeared untouched milestones for Ray Crowe's Tigers. Heading into the 1956-57 season, Crowe stood as a coach with a remarkable 154-14 record. His Attucks team had ended the '56 season with an incredible win streak which tapered at 45 games.

And although it was halted on the Tigers' first outing in the '56-57 season, Attucks would remain a feared rival among only a few city powerhouses at best, and a mass of tough northern area teams.

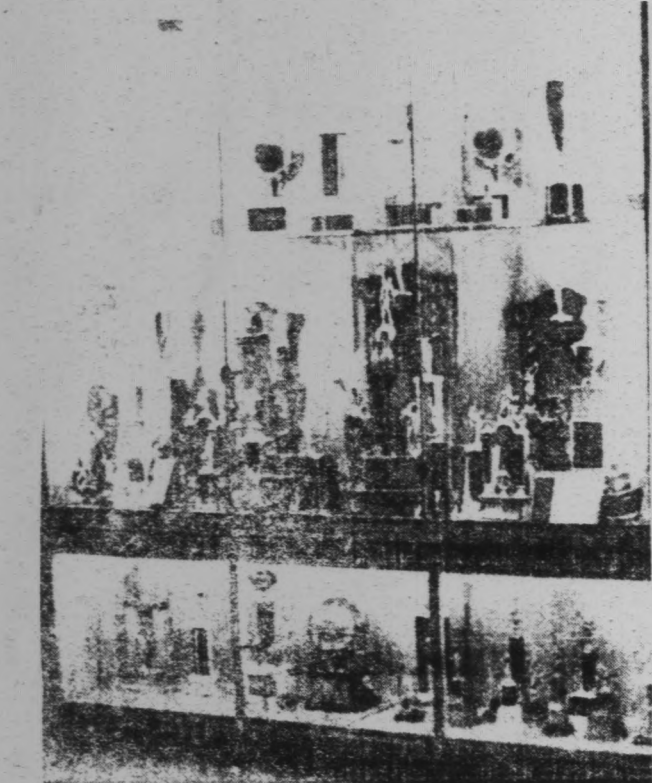

Then under the late Bill Garrett in 1959, the Tigers were to bring Indianapolis its third state title meaning that heading into the 60s (the era in our nation's history most often associated with instability), Indianapolis had yet to experience a state champ in 49 years of tournament play other than the Flyin' Tigers.

Oddly enough, that's just about when "glory" evaporated from the Tiger dynasty. Yes, there were the few Tigers of the 60s who managed to hold their own managed to make the Tigers seem somewhat competitive. Players like Joe Leavell, Lindell Reid, Steve Tucker, Ed (Junior) Bailey, Bob Whitley and Issac Robinson, to name a few.

But their talents when coming along in the 60s were hardly enough to mesh through the ire of emerging city blockbusters like Washington (only other Indianapolis school to ever win state titles, 1965 and 1969), Shortridge, Tech, and a few Catholic powerhouses from season to season like Cathedral and Chatard.

VARIOUS TROPHIES and plaques take one back to the days the school was a household name in Indianapolis because of its high athletic achievements.

Suppose this newspaper were doing the recruiting? Anyone who sees budding or quality high school basketball talent [much of which is in Marion County], which might help push Crispus Attucks back into championship caliber is urged to notify The Recorder Sports Department. Fight days over, Ali to remain star

Ben Dulin is on vacation this week. His column was written by Lynn Ford.

Those who watched last weekend's television tribute to retired World Boxing Association heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali might have drawn the same conclusion: His ring days might have ended, but Ali will remain a humorous, intellectual and charismatic personality.

The constant jaw-jacking which earned him such titles as "The Mouth" and "The Louisville Lip" helped earn the now-37-year-old Ali a gold mine as a fighter, and it promises to turn him into even more of a commercial item as time passes. He already has starred in his own bio film, "The Greatest", a television movie, "Freedom Road," various commercial endorsements and his own television special.

Ali was worse than even the worst television variety host, but his own natural flair for showmanship made him acceptable and entertaining, simply because he was who he was.

This writer can't help but remember June 30, 1977. This writer somehow ended up in Hyatt Regency Indianapolis, where it was later learned the champ was resting there halfway through a trip from Louisville to Chicago.

He was his usual self when he appeared from out of nowhere. He play boxed and sneered at the men, charmed the ladies, and recited original poetry with a piercing, star quality that bowled the small, lucky gathering completely over. Ali did an entire show in a little over 10 minutes.

And if the surprise of Ali's hotel appearance wasn't enough, some rumored that he walked in a popular fast food restaurant the night before, leaving each customer somewhat off-balance.

That's the kind of effect Ali has on people. That's why he probably won't want for anything else. He'll always be a star...L.F.

Cage, diamond tournaments at Anderson

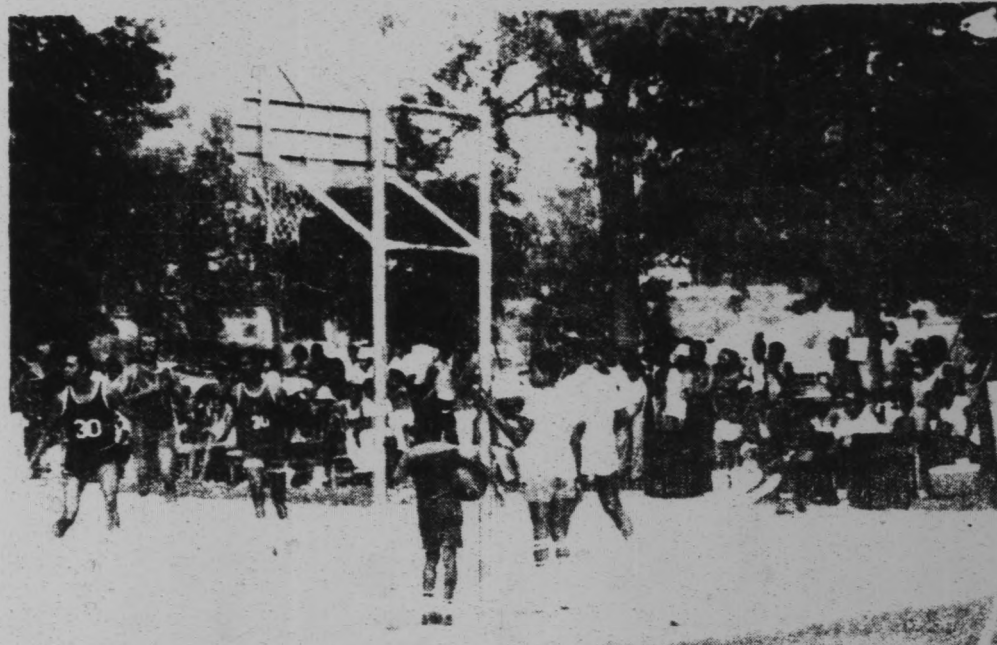

The Wilson Boys' Club of Anderson (Ind.) has set August 17-19 as the dates for its third annual Dust Bowl basketball tournament. The tourney is single elimination and carries a $40 entry fee, due by August 10. The field will be limited to 12 teams. A "slam-dunk" contest is slated between halves.

August 17-19 are also the dates for the fifth annual J.D.S. Anderson Women's Slow-Pitch softball tourney. Entry fees are expected by August 3rd—$75. It is a double elimination event.

August 10-12, the inaugural Jr. Dust Bowl double elimination tourney will be held at the Wilson Boys' Club. Entry fees are $65, deadline, August 8. Players must be 15 years of age and under during tourney dates.

The fifth annual Anderson "fast-pitch" softball tourney in June was a smashing success, directors reported. Thousands of area fans were on hand to see Midwest talent. When it was over, Stop Inn of Cincinnati and the Barons of Chicago Heights were fighting for the title. Stop Inn won in 1977 and the Barons finished runner-up last year.

Because the event is growing in popularity, Anderson will host the first post-season tournament, August 24-26. Entry fees for the three-day competition are $75, due by August 17. For information about any of the scheduled tournaments contact Willy Turner in Anderson, 642-5888 or 649-2405.

'Big O' cites NBA for racism

SAN DIEGO—

Television ratings in the National Basketball Association are suffering because of racist decisions by management and CBS, former all-pro from Indianapolis Crispus Attucks High School, Oscar Robertson told reporters while in San Diego for a youth basketball program last week.

"The owners say there are too many blacks playing the game, and... (that) interest in the league is down, and they say that is the reason."

"Well, I think it's because they've done a bad job of promoting the league," said Robertson. He believes the league could have done the job itself "if they had simply let the players go into the community. But they feel the black image is bad for the league."

"And yet, what's the most successful organization in sports history? I'll tell you. The Harlem Globetrotters and they're all black," Robertson was quoted as saying.

The former University of Cincinnati scoring great, who continued a brilliant hardwood career as a professional with the Cincinnati Royals and Milwaukee Bucks, said CBS has to share the blame. "First of all, CBS has not done a good job of promoting the games, and also they (the owners) don't want blacks as broadcasters."

"They've got (Rick) Barry, (Rod) Hundley, (Brent) Musberger, who are all white, but how many blacks are there? I was on for a while, but I had that lawsuit (contesting the NBA's college draft and option clause as violating anti-trust laws) against the owners, so they said they didn't want me."

Moreover, Robertson said the NBA isn't as good as it used to be, "and I think it's because coaching at the high school level isn't what it used to be. "When I was in high school, we spent hours on defense, and that's where today's players are having their troubles." Robertson also rapped the NBA's recent adoption for a one-year experience of the three-point play as "horrendous another example of people who don't play the game messing with the rules."

Rudolph recants talk of pay-for-play amateurs

COLORADO SPRINGS, CO.—

Former Olympic sprinter Wilma Rudolph told the Associated Press that the reason so many top amateur track and field athletes didn't participate in the National Sports Festival is because "there is just not enough money to go around."

The first woman to win three Olympic track and field gold medals, and now a member of the Department of Labor's national sports training program, Wilma indicated that the United States Olympic Committee was making some financial concessions.

She later was said to have recanted about the USOC making payments to athletes, but perhaps, significantly, she said to through a statement issued by the USOC.

A number of athletes didn't show up or perform for a variety of publicly announced reasons, but Ms. Rudolph said, those were concoctions.

"There is no way to pay the kids here now to participate in the Festival," the AP quoted her. "The USOC does not have enough money to pay them all. I can't sit here and tell you that the athletes don't get money under the table. It wouldn't be honest. It would bother my conscience if I lied to you."

An unidentified athlete said the same thing is true of the Amateur Athletic Union, which tried to line up athletes for the Spartakiade Games in Russia.

"Yes, definitely, a lot of the guys didn't come here or go to Spartakiade because they didn't get their money," he said. "We know there's a lot of money to be distributed, but some people are keeping it."

Matthew Saad nears first title defense

World Boxing Council (WBC) light heavyweight champion Matthew Saad Muhammad puts his title on the line for the first time August 18 in Monte Carlo (Monaco).

His opponent for the scheduled 15-rounder will be former champion John Conteh. Muhammad changed his name from Matthew Franklin shortly after winning the crown by a TKO from Marvin Johnson here in Market Square Arena last April.

Johnson is tentatively slated to meet (WBA) World Boxing Association champ Victor Galindez in Argentina September 15. The bout was postponed from an original August date, reportedly because Galindez has been as much as 25 pounds over the maximum 175 pound limit of the division.

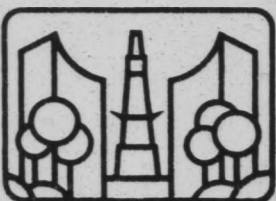

The one thing none of us should have to live with.

You're looking at litter in Indianapolis. It's something we close our eyes to because it's everywhere—our road-sides, neighborhoods, downtown and in our suburbs.

Too bad that we've accepted litter. Because it shows we either don't think it's ugly enough to prevent... or we don't think we're worth a clean environment. Or both.

Everyone deserves to live in a clean city. Don't allow yourself or anyone else to spoil it with litter. Litter is trash. And none of us should have to live with trash.

Let's clean up our act, Indianapolis.

who played during the 60s, only Whitley personally experienced the feeling of advancing in what many consider one of the most difficult to win state high school tournaments in the country. The Tigers made it to the final-eight in 1970 (Whitley's senior year), bowing out to Muncie Central — now a record seven-time state champ.

Ironically, the Tigers have not made a Final Four trip since their unprecedented third crown for Indianapolis in 1959.

That's exactly what bothers ex-players, students and dire fans, who all recall those stormy Tiger hey days, the bon fires and unity, which would exemplify the pride their three crowns seemingly bestowed on this city.

The alumni craves the chance for present coach Larry Humes to have the talent to work with compared to the likes of an Oscar Robertson. Granted, that will be hard to find.

But actually, the dynasty began a little before Oscar's time. It started with players like Willie Gardner (considered by some the best to ever wear a Tiger uniform). There was also Hallie Bryant, Bennie Cook, Bob Jewell, John Davis, and Oscar's brother, Bailey.

Back in 1951, this Attucks team trekked through the sectional in a way that baffled the most astute hardwood observer. They were still eliminated in the State Finals by an Evansville Reitz team.

In 1952, the Tigers compiled a near flawless 19-1 record, losing, however, to Tech at the wrong time in the sectionals. In 1953, Bailey Robertson and Bryant's senior seasons, it was Crowe's first time to lose as a head coach more than two games in a season.

And when Attuck ran into the losing end of a game with Shelbyville, (46-44), newspaper articles immediately appeared about the eminent downfall of Attucks. Little did writers realize that in lieu of Bailey Robertson, Bryant and Cleveland Harper, waiting in the shadows would emerge the skillful talents of Sheddric Mitchell, Winford O'Neal and Oscar Robertson.

At the same time (and in seasons shortly after) there would further be star-laden players like Willie Merriweather, Laverne Benson, Norman Crowe, Bill Hampton, Bill Scott, Bill Brown, Al Maxey, Jerry Hazlewood, Larry McIntyre and Edgar Searcy.

Are the "glory days" gone forever, in which the above names helped place Attucks amongst Hoosier Hysteria's most coveted memorabilia? Perhaps, it is that the "glory days" have taken a lingering two-decade vacation.

For those who'll never forget those "glory days," the curiosity of the present shape of Attucks hardwood fortunes remains a task of rejuvenation. Who knows, there just may be a return to those Tiger "glory days."

"Coca-Cola is providing the money (at the Festival). And the AAU got about $100,000 to send our athletes to Spartakiade. Where did that money go? Certainly not to the guys who were supposed to get it."

Coca-Cola denied taking part in any "unethical payments," and Jimmy Carnes, head of the U.S. track and field team at Spartakiade, said that, "there is no such thing as a payoff for Spartakiade."

Sports Center firmed for week of U.S. Clay Open

The danger of losing the tennis fans who purchased Rost's role for the U.S. Open membership in a Champions Clay Court Championships is Club.

In speaking about the features of the new complex, Malless adds: "We don't have any poles to obstruct fans. We've included an electric score board in the main stadium, have four courts available for practice throughout the tournament, lounges for the players and plenty of parking."

"There isn't another facility like it in the country and it's certainly one of the best tennis facilities in the world," said Stan Malless, a past president of the U.S. Tennis Association and currently a vice-president of the International Tennis Association.

His comments were made during review ceremonies for the $8 million facility. The main stadium will seat 10,000 and there will be seating amongst four other courts where tournament activities will run August 6-12.

Heading the list of entries for the 1979 Clay Courts in the men's competition are two top-ranked U.S. players, defending the champ Jimmy Connors and John McEnroe. Both are expected to receive challenges from players like Arthur Ashe, a former Clay champion, and 1975 Wimbledon champ: Manuel Orantes; Marty Riessen and Jose Huguera, amongst others.

As for the women's $100,000 event, competition will get stiffer this year with the entry of the No. 1 ranked player in the world in Chris Evert Lloyd. She won the event four straight years, however is returning in 1979 after a three-year absence because of participation in World Team Tennis.

The return of Evert-Lloyd is sure to be tested by ranked women players like Evonne Cawley Goolagong, Kerry Melville Reid and former Indiana Loves Player Dianne Frohltz.

Tournament director Malless, and other tourney officials expressed that tickets for this year's events are going well-attended to the new site for the prestigious classic.

"We have to pay the city at least $50,000 for rental of the facility. I'm hoping our ticket sales will be high enough that we can pay more, Malless said.

Funds for the new complex came from businesses, $4 million in city bonds and through

(Magic) shows stuff in first pro outing

LOS ANGELES--

Earvin (Magic) Johnson made his public professional basketball debut last weekend, scoring 24 points to lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 107-96 victory over the Detroit Pistons in a summer rookie league game at California State-Los Angeles.

Johnson's presence accounted for the largest summer crowd-3,600 in the league's nine-year history and more than 1,000 eager fans were turned away from the small gymnasium.

Playing about 29 minutes, the 6-8 Johnson, the Lakers' No. 1 draft choice this year from Michigan State, scored 15 points in the second half. He was nine for 16 from the floor.

HAROLD ROBINSON

Memorial services were conducted July 28 for Harold Robinson, 75, in the Kirk Funeral Home. Burial was in Floral Park Cemetery. He died at home, 1021 N. Sheffield, July 24, following an extended illness. Robinson was a native of Edwardsville, Ill. He was a retired employee of Electric Castings, where he worked 13 years. He later worked at Christamore House five years.

Survivors: Wife, Marguerite; sons, Theodore and Mark; mother, Mrs. Allie Stanley; brothers, Sol Robinson of Gary, Wayne Robinson of Indianapolis; sisters, Ms. Ruth Dale and Emma Washington, both of Gary and Thyra Fennell of Union City, California; foster brothers, Isaac and Jessie Isaacs, both of Gary.

six of eight from the foul line and recorded eight assists and four steals.

The crowd, which has averaged about 700 a game, greeted Johnson with a standing ovation. Lakers General Manager Bill Sharman and Portland Trail Blazers assistant coach Jack McKinney, expected to have been named by this week Lakers' head coach, looked on in delight.

The Pistons were led by rookie Earl Evans of Nevada-Las Vegas, who had 24 points, followed by Terry Tyler with 20.

"In the first half, I was pressing. In the second half I felt at ease," Johnson said. "I had heard so much about the crowd reaction in Los Angeles, but this was just beautiful, beautiful!"

platter, "Do It Good," a thumping pulsating dance tune. The song written by one of the artists Janice Johnson, was inspired by an television interviewer who asked, "how can you ever follow 'Boogie Oogie Oogie?'" Janice humbly replied, "I don't know, but whatever we do, we're going to 'do it good.'"

The album is a well-balanced fusion of up-tempo and infectious rhythms intermingled with melodic mid-tempo jazz flavored tunes, and soft lilting ballads. Guitarists Janice Johnson, and Hazel Payne, are electric in their guitar solos and scintillating on the dual lead vocal harmonies. Donald Johnson, provides potent and driving rhythmic pulse on drums and percussion. Perry Kibble, shows dexterity and finesse on keyboards both also display their talents as "back-up vocalists." String arrangements by Wade Marcus, are delectable and subtle, but provide continuity and fullness throughout the set....Do you dig!...Later, until next week for the new musical happenings. her husband, Henry, 32, who told police he found his wife's body when he came home from work at around 9 p.m. Tuesday. Neighbors, however, told investigating officers that Jones arrived at home on a motorcycle and, after talking with someone on the street for a few minutes, went inside the apartment. "He was inside for about five minutes when we heard what we thought was a shot," one neighbor told the homicide investigators. And about five minutes after the shot was heard, police were told, Jones, who had been married to his wife since May 31st, ran out of the apartment yelling for neighbors to call the police because "I just found my wife dead."

A .38-caliber revolver, which police said belongs to Jones, who works as a security guard was found near the body.

Two half-brothers, James M. Seals, 19, and Lee Woodard, 21, have been charged with murder in connection with the stabbing death of Ward, 8258 Patton Drive, who was visiting a black friend, Leonard Lenore, 27, at Lenore's home at 2251 Wheeler.

Police said that Ward, who worked with Lenore, at a small industrial plant, had just "stopped by to visit his friend" when he was accosted by the two half-brothers who told him that "honkies ain't got no business in our neighborhood" and then jumped on him. The victim was stabbed in the stomach and severely beaten by the two youths. The attack occurred July 14 and Ward died last Sunday at Wishard

Memorial Hospital. Police said that Seals and Woodard are cousins of Lenore. The murder charges are pending in Criminal Court Room 2.

Both Seals and Woodard are being held without bond in the Marion County Jail.

James R. Ellery, 45, 301 W. Vermont, died last Thursday in Wishard Memorial Hospital of stab wounds police investigators say were inflicted July 21 during an argument involving the victim, Lesa M. Walton, 45, who was described as the Ellery's ex-girlfriend, and Arthur E. Porter, 54, 951 Paca, who was identified as Ms. Walton's current boyfriend.

Ms. Walton is accused of stabbing Ellery in the heart with a butcher knife following an argument that developed while the trio was drinking together at the Paca Street address.

Police said that Ellery was stabbed by Ms. Walton as he attempted to flee down the street after the alleged slayer brandished the knife. Detectives said that Porter was charged with murder in the case because he reportedly urged Ms. Walton to "stab him, Lesa, while at the same time striking the victim a number of times as he was attempting to flee."

In the last homicide, the Quick brothers, surrendered to police Tuesday in connection with the fatal shooting last Saturday of Pounds.

Officers said that the shooting was an outgrowth of a "kind of family feud that had existed for some time between the Quick family and another

"The party broke up because of the fight," Det. R.C. Greene of the police homicide division told The Recorder, "but the Quick brothers are believed to have followed Keith Helms, 20, of the 2200 block of South Perkins to the lounge where the shooting occurred. (The Helms and Quicks have been involved in the feud; the officers said) and one of the quick brothers fired several shots at Helms inside the store. Helms was grazed on the leg by at least one of the shots, police reported.

Helms, according to police, reportedly ran from the store toward his automobile which was parked outside the store. The authorities said that Pounds was shot, probably accidentally by the Quick brothers as Helms fled, to the vehicle.

views on prime time." The government has ignored the pleas to revoke Jackson's visa. A spokesman for the South African broadcasting corporation said that it was a bold step by the (radio program) to invite him to part.

Jackson defended his stand against apartheid and said, "I'm not going to take any of it back."

Sunday's crowd in Soweto started singing long before any of the speakers arrived. Jackson, with his years of experience in leading civil rights rallies, brought the crowd to order for his speech. He referred to the Soweto riots of 1976, saying the "world cried when the dogs bit you" but appeared careful to avoid saying anything that might provoke any kind of civil disobedience.

Maple Heights—Devonington Neighborhood Association members are incensed by what they call Department of Public Works Negligence.

In response, they're circulating August 18, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. a petition demanding corrective action.

Association president Leo Higgins says the petition drive will seek to accumulate names to show residents consider Department or Public Works efforts nile.
