

MISCELLANY.

From the Kentucky Gazette.

SWEET KITTY OF THE HILL.

Near a well known neighboring stream, There lives a maid enchanting;
The cause of many a lover's dream,
And project for supplanting.
Admiring friends and numerous beaux, Her ears with praises fill;
This name for her, admirers chose,
Sweet Kitty of the Hill.

The daughter of a patriot bold, Such was her noble sire;
Her beauty's such that none behold Who do not her admire.
Her virtues and her noble heart With admiration fill;
Her beaux feel love's delightful smart For Kitty of the Hill.

When Kitty smiles her lovers fond Hope's cheering influence feel,
But if she frown they soon despond How altered is the scene!
The North wind cold or winter's snow Her lovers cannot chill So soon as frowns upon the brow Of Kitty of the Hill.

Her taste refined, her talents rare,
Her like men seldom see,
The loveliest of the lovely fair, Long may she happy be.
And happier than all men beside,
He who, by Heaven's will,
Shall please and make his happy bride Sweet Kitty of the Hill.

LOTHARIO.

From the Old Colony Memorial.

THE OLD CORDWAINER.

In the days of my boyhood, I recollect well,
And others no doubt this old story can tell, Our tradesmen were honest and ne'er thought of cheating,

And what is still strange, they would all go to meeting!

There was Shoemaker Lot,
I remember the spot,
And the bench where he sat,
With the strap o'er his knee;
He was honest and fair,
And exact to a hair,
And a faithful old cordwainer he.

One moonshiny night ('hangs giving was coming) I mounted in haste uncle Jeremy's mare, "Off Dubbin," said I, "let your trotters be drumming"

Towards uncle Lot's," & she soon had me there,

O, good uncle Lot,
I remember the spot,
And the bench where he sat,
With the strap o'er his knee;
Our shoes were all ready For me and for Neddy,
And Sally and Betty,
And Dolly and Hetty,
And a faithful old cordwainer he!

Then there was the stitching so strong & so nice, Why the threads held the leather as firm as a vice.
There was none of your pegging, and none of your nailing,

And there was no fretting, & scolding, & railing,
When Shoemaker Lot

He worked on the spot,
Which I've not forgot,
With the strap o'er his knee,
How strong he would sew them!
I wish he'd now show them, What a faithful old cordwainer he.

But alas! now a days how changed is this matter!

For one scarce has a coat, or a shoe, or a garter.
That lasts more than three weeks before 'tis worn out!

And honesty seems to be begging about;

O, that some uncle Lot Would again take the spot,
And the bench where he sat,
With the strap o'er his knee,
And work at the trade,
And have shoes faithful made,
No cheat and no cozen,
No rips by the dozen,

What a useful cordwainer he'd be!

JOEL.

"I'll list for a soldier," says Robin to Sue,
"To avoid your eternal disputes;"

"Aye, aye," cries the tergiversant, "do, Robin, do, I'll raise, the meanwhile, fresh recruits!"

Gentle manners, virtuous lives Make easy husbands happy wives;
These are the only means we know,
To make a little heaven below.

PER CONTRARY.

Angry manners, vicious lives,
Make wretched husbands dreadful wives,
And hence such evils take their birth,
As make a little hell on earth.

FROM THE EMPORIUM.

Heavy Hearts and Light Hearts.

WHAT IS THE USE OF IT?—Trouble, trouble, trouble, what a world of it we have—"man is born to trouble"—and "all is vanity and vexation of spirit"— thus and thus it is written. There are the troubles of infancy, of youth, of manhood, of old age? The troubles of poverty, and the troubles of riches! The trouble of living and the trouble of dying! Who has not his troubles; who claims exemption from them? Who sees the end of them?—And yet, after all, what's the use of it? This fretting and repeating; this sorrowing and sighing; this moping and mourning; making misery more miserable.—In the name of common sense, I say, what's the use of it?

Does it soothe pain; soften affliction; or ward off misfortune? Will it call back deceased friends, or prevent others from dying, or deliver us from poverty, or make us healthy, or moderate in one particular our condition? Then do say, for the very sake of sadness, what's the use of it?

Suppose the times are tight and pinching; that trade is dull; that you cannot make money enough to live as you would wish, and are obliged to labour harder even for the little you obtain than is agreeable; do you grieve about it?— are you sad & disheartened? do you abandon hope, and wish yourself dead?— Pshaw! what's the use of it? you will always get along, if you are industrious & frugal; and the most fortunate do no more.
Besides a light heart will not break your fortune, nor a heavy one make it, so you may as well have the one as the other.

Is it your misfortune to have one of those pests of society, a slanderous neighbor, who speaks ill of you, and delights to do you every secret backhanded injury he can; who never fails secretly to traduce your character, misrepresent your conduct and motives, and ever tries to excite prejudice against you? And does this discompose and trouble you? what's the use of it?— Keep the windward of the fellow, let your actions give the lie to his accusations, and you need not employ words for the purpose. Wait the issue and you will see the maxim verified in his case, "that he who spitteth against the wind, spitteth in his own face." And here too it may be remembered that a heavy heart is no answer to an accusation, though it be a false one, and that a light heart is not the heart that pleads guilty before men; you had better therefore, have the last than the first on all accounts.

Are men dishonest? will a long face and a sad heart reform them? are you sometimes deceived, wronged, cheated? will being discouraged mend the matter, or melancholy make you sharper in future dealings? not a whit. Losses are lessons; all men buy their experience at the same market, though all may not pay the same price for the commodity.
The only way is to make much of what comes dear: and you can do this with a light heart better than a heavy one. A heavy heart! what's the use of it?

But it may be things don't go on right at home; that you have a scolding wife, cross children, & with all an extravagant family—that there's bad management in the wigwam. Well this is very sad; but will fretting make it better? will a sad heart make the sunshine in a cloudy house? No then what's the use of it? You are not the first in the world who might sing.

"First when Maggy was my care, Heaven, I thought, was in her air—Now we're married—spier nae mair."
And every hen pecked husband may as well add the conclusion—
"Whistle o'er the lave o't."

I see no profit in being miserable in this case; a light heart is still better than a heavy heart.

Perhaps all this while some love sick body has been running over line after line, to see if I had ought to say why he should not be unhappy. An unkind mistress; a hard heart; an indefatigable rival; coquetry; ah, here is Pandora's box!—Thou hast gotten thyself into a pretty pickle—but,

"Pray if looking well can't move her, Will looking ill prevail?"

What think you of that, now—I know it is useless to tell a meditating, moon-loving, melancholy lover, that there are whole flocks of pretty girls in the world, that if unsuccessful this time, he may easily fall in love again and again; or that his mistress is not altogether the paragon of perfection; these are all cold water compliments, and are marvellously insipid to such a taste as his. He must e'en go his way sorrowing; marriage only will make him wise.

I have done. Those who are merry will be merry still; and those who are unhappy will remain so after all; yet it is a good and a pleasant thing, occasionally to have a talk with the world about its follies.

Believe me, Mess. Editors, one of the LIGHT HEARTED.

OLD JACOBS.

"THANKS to my lucky stars!" exclaimed old Jacobs, standing near a lofty mountain, and looking with infinite complacency at the property which he had purchased at the Tontine Coffee House.
"Thanks to my lucky stars! I am worth one hundred thousand dollars!"

"I am worth at least one hundred thousand dollars!" said he, "fairly scraped together! I think I will buy a ship for Jack; Tom shall be a counsellor; Patty, yes, Patty shall marry the English Ambassador."

"I am worth one hundred thousand dollars! I was just sixty-five last Christmas. I am hale and strong. Go to; I'll withdraw from the bustle of the world, and the busy hum of the Exchange, I'll retire and enjoy myself."

"Good!" continued old Jacobs, man-fully striving up the mountain's side, "Good! I am worth at least one hundred thousand dollars! Aye, here I'll build me a warm mansion—there I'll plant my orchard—on this side, I will have my summer-house—round yonder angle, we'll run up the stable—and here I will dig the ice-house. What! must I have all those unsightly wooden houses blocking my view? No matter, I can purchase them of my brother merchant, Mr.

Hicks; and then, every one of them shall come down."

"Consider, sir, for a moment," observed old Jacobs' land agent, "consider; what will those poor people do, if you pull down their huts?"—"Do—do let them do as they can; 'tis no concern of mine. And, hark ye, Mr. Agent; do you see that mill, which makes such a noisy clack? do you see, I say, how its wheel obstructs the stream which waters my grounds? Come, no words! that shall come down too."

So sagely determined old Jacobs; and he went home pleased with the project of his brain. He supped heartily—he took his hot punch—cracked his jokes—smoked four cigars—and went to bed.

A fit of apoplexy came on suddenly at night, and—old Jacobs never more awoke!

The "unsightly wooden houses" therefore still stand; and their inhabitants continue their avocations.—Put, old Jacobs, who was worth "at least one hundred thousand dollars," moulders in the city church-yard; and his name is fore-gotten upon the Exchange. AENEAS.

Extraordinary Notice.

The following notice appeared lately on the door of a Roman Catholic Chapel, in the West of Ireland:

Put away from Patrick McDallah!!!

Whereas my wife Mrs. Bridget Mc-Dallah, is again walked away with herself, and left me with her four small children and her poor old blind mother, and nobody else to look after house and home, and I hear has taken up with Tim Galgan the lame Fiddler, the same that was put in the Stocks last Easter for stealing Barney Doodey's Game-cock.—This is to give notice that I will not pay for Bite or Sup on her or his account to man or mortal, and that she had better never shew the marks of her Ten Toss, near my House again.

PATRICK McDALLAH.

said to have been found written over the Ten Commandments, in a Welch Church, and a century elapsed before the true meaning was discovered.

A divine willing to play more with words, than to be serious in the expounding of his text, spake thus in some part of his sermon: "This Dyal shewes that we must die all; yet notwithstanding, all houses are turned into cates; our paradise, is a pair of dice; our marriage into a merry age; our matrimony, into a matter of money; our divines, into dry vines.
It was not so in the days of Noah, Ah no!"

A relative of Mr. Malaprop, well known for marring the words of her native language, complained, that in consequence of a disorder in her stomach, which she called a cataplasm (a spasm), her physician had put her into a regimen (a regimen), and ordered her to drink water. "Surely, madam," said a wag, "your regimen is the Cold Stream."

In the rebellion in 1745, some disaffected rogues cut off the tails of the horses belonging to a regiment stationed in the King's Mews. When the de-falcation was discovered, the colonel in great vexation exclaimed, "What must we do?" "Do!" said a wag, "why you must sell the horses, by wholesale." "Why so?" said the colonel. "Because," said he, "it is very plain you cannot re-tail them."

REMOVAL.

THE subscriber who is in possession of the medicine for the cure of scirrhus tumors, and cancerous affections, has left Law-renceburgh, and moved to Cleves, near the North Bend, Hamilton county, Ohio; where he may be found at any time, by those who wish to experience the good effects of his medicine for destroying the above disorder.

Last Call!

THE subscriber has been compelled from urgent necessity, to file his notes and accounts at the office of D. Hagerman, Esq. for immediate collection. He would again respectfully solicit his former customers to call and settle their respective accounts, before they may be visited by the proper officer to compel attendance, in which case cost will certainly accrue.
The sound of his hammer and anvil has been heard by night as well as by day, and unpleasant as it may be to others in a like situation, his property and tools have been lived upon according to law. But in order to extricate himself from a sacrifice, he has determined to give no longer indulgence; therefore I warn you to beware.

He still continues the Blacksmithing business at his old stand, on Walnut street, near the Methodist Church, where all orders in his line, will be thankfully received and punctually attended to.

Information is Wanted

OF a person named John Forrester, a native of the city of New York, who when last heard from, in March, 1818, was employed in Brock-county, Virginia, about seven miles from Steupenville, making flasks for a furnace—had been to Sandusky plains, Ohio, and had also been previously engaged in boating. He then a guided his intention of going in May or June to Louisville, and from thence to Lawrenceburgh, Indiana. Was about thirty five years of age to appearance, about 5 feet seven inches in height, rather stout built. Any information of his place of residence, if living, or of his death, if dead, so that the same may be proven, or of his wife or children, if he has left any, will be considered a favor. A line addressed to Messrs. Anderson

La Mott's Cough Drops.

IMPORTANT MEDICINE FOR

COUGHS AND CONSUMPTIONS.

THIS Elixir is not offered to the public as infallible, and a rival to all others, but as possessing virtues peculiarly adapted to the present prevailing disorders of the breast & lungs, leading to consumption. A timely use of these Drops may be considered a certain cure in most cases of Common Colds, Coughs, Influenza, Whooping-Cough, Pain in the Side, Difficulty of Breathing, Want of Sleep arising from debility; and in Spasmodic Asthma it is singularly efficacious. A particular attention to the directions accompanying each bottle is necessary.

The following certificates from respectable gentlemen, physicians and surgeons, are subjoined, to show that this composition is one which enlightened men are disposed to regard as efficacious and worthy of public patronage.

Having examined the composition of Mr.
Crosby's improvement upon La Mott's Cough Drops, we have no hesitation in recommending them to the public, as being well adapted to those cases of disease for which he recommends it.

Doct's JONATHAN DORR, dated Albany, December 4th, 1824; JAMES POST of White-creek, February 14th, 1825; WATSON SUMNER and JOHN WEBB, M. D. of Cambridge, Feb.
20th, 1825; SOLOMON DEAN, of Jackson, January 10th, 1825.

Mr. A. Crosby—I am pleased with this apportunity of relating a few facts, which may serve in commendation of your excellent Cough Drops. For ten years I was afflicted with a pulmonary complaint; my cough was severe, my appetite weak, and my strength failing. I used many popular medicines, but only found temporary relief until by a continued use of your valuable drops I have been blessed with such perfect health as to render further means unnecessary. Rev. FINEZER HARRIS.
