

PALLADIUM.

Lawrenceburg, August 3.

We are authorized to say that Capt. Daniel Appleby, of Rising Sun, will be a candidate for Governor at the ensuing annual election.

We have been requested to say that ISAAC CORWELL, esq., declines standing a poll for the office of commissioner.

A post-office has been established in this county on the route to Rushville, and Mr. THOMAS SLACK has been appointed postmaster. The office is called York Ridge.

We are pleased to learn from a communication published by Dr. Drake in the Republican of the 31st ult. that the cholera, which had for the week previously assumed an epidemic form, is abating in Cincinnati. Whether (says the Doctor) it is about to disappear from the city, or will revive, as it has more than once, remains to be seen.

Parley's Magazine. We take pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of the Nos. of this useful little work for children and youth. The seven first Nos. comprise the 1st part, and with the cover that accompanies them, form a very neat book. The price for 26 Nos. or the year, is $1; and we are satisfied no book is better calculated to arrest the attention of children and begot a taste for reading. Specimens of the work may be seen at this office.

On Monday next the election for members of congress, senators, representatives, and various officers, takes place throughout this state. In our next we shall be able to give the result of the vote in this county, and probably guess at that for congress in this district.

Eighteen deaths (says the Argus) by cholera occurred in Frankfort Ky between the 23d and 31st ult. The greater portion were colored persons. The accounts from other parts of that state speak favorably of the return of health and of the near extinction of the pestilence.

The cholera has abated at Salem, in this state. The paper of that place gives a list of 65 persons who had died in town up to the 27th ult. Mr. Allen, senior editor, and lady are named among the dead. The same paper states that 14 deaths by the pestilence had occurred in Paoli, Orange county.

It will be seen by the following note, published in the Statesman, that JOHN M'PIKE, esq., declines standing a poll for representative:

TO THE VOTERS OF DEARBORN COUNTY.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—From the continued indisposition of my family, I find it necessary to decline the honor of continuing a candidate for your suffrages at the ensuing election.

Had I continued a candidate and been elected no man could be more proud of the honor than I would have been: or more studious to render acceptable services.

I shall expect an extension of liberality on this occasion, from my friends and fellow citizens. Your friend,

JOHN M'PIKE.

On the morning of Sunday last, the 14th inst. the body of John Basdon, a man of color, was found in the river three miles below this place, supposed to have been murdered. He was seen late the night previous, rather intoxicated, in the company of a boat's crew who were unloading salt, and as blood was discovered on the barrels and sand at our landing, suspicion attached to them. A number of our citizens accompanying an officer, (who had the warrant of a magistrate to bring them back) started on Sunday night, and returned the day following, with 4 out of 5 of the crew: after a patient investigation, finding no evidence against them, they were immediately discharged.

Marks of violence appeared on the head of the deceased, which led the jury of inquest to believe that he had been struck with a boat-pole, or some dull instrument, knocked senseless, and in that state, was thrown into the river. The deceased was very inoffensive, but intemperate in his habits.

Vincennes Gaz. July 20.

Brotherly Love.—Don Miguel visited his army before Oporto, and at one time, in riding along the lines, was visible to his dear brother, Don Pedro—the two worthies, accounts state, simultaneously cocked their respective telescopes to their eyes, and viewed each other, "like two strange cats in a garret." On Pedro's putting down his glass he remarked to Sir John Milly Doyle, "D—n me if I see any alteration in the scamp;" and we have heard from Head Quarters that, by a "curious coincidence," so closely did their fraternal knowledge and feelings assimilate, that Mig., on finishing his examination of his brother's mug, exclaimed, "He has the same scheming, vagabond countenance he always had."

Nullification, like the idol of the Hindoos, is destroying its own votaries. In South Carolina it is making havoc among its followers, and in our own State, so decided is its condemnation that with one honorable exception, its former adherents are turning their backs upon it; the cock had not crowed before they had denied it thrice. Some have neither the magnanimity to own their preference for the heresy nor the boldness to deny it. These are endeavoring to take refuge in the mists of explanations and evasions—they pretend that nullification does not amount to a forcible resistance to a law of Congress—that it is not a reason, as Gen. Jackson said it was, but like "spermaceti," it is the "sovereignest thing on earth for an inward bruise." They pretend not to explain to us how its wholesome operations are to work a cure, but like the vendors of quack remedies, they assure us in mysterious hints and wise solemnity of phiz, that it is the real No. 6, in politics, and that nothing else can save us. These, like the quacks of the other profession, are falling before the scythe of ridicule and withered by the hot blasts of public scorn. Since the open avowal of this absurdity in North Carolina, there has been no opportunity for the people to manifest their detestation of its nature and contempt for its followers, as no election has taken place where it in any way entered into the question; but the confusion and scampering already apparent in its ranks, show that their hopes have vanquished like a dream. They are in the fix of the Indian and his pony, it was "too tight to carry him, and too heavy to be carried by him."

The last accounts received at Havana from Puerto-Prince, Trinidad, Cuba and Villa Clara, states that those towns were enjoying perfect health.

A grand bull fight was given at Havana on the 24th of June, for the benefit of orphans who lost their parents by the Cholera. Several bulls were turned out for slaughter, and the picadores and matadores are highly applauded for their courage and dexterity.

HYDROPHOBIA.

A very affecting account of the effects of this terrific disease has been communicated to us, which occurred in the family of Mr. Moss, a very respectable farmer, residing near the village, near the river Trent. While Mr. M. and family were sitting at home, a dog, belonging to the house, suddenly flew at his master, and bit him very slightly in the hand. He then attacked a daughter about 12 years old and bit her in several places. A son, a young man of 18 or 20, endeavoring to beat off the mad animal, received a wound upon the hip, and how it was inflicted in the confusion and terror of the moment, whether by himself, with the cudgel he was using, or by the dog, he cannot tell. The daughter, (an interesting young woman,) lingered along for several days in the horrors of insanity, and died. The father is now in such a state of phrenzy, that he is obliged to be chained; and the young man, laboring under the agonizing apprehensions that he is also infected with madness; his mind haunted with the death of his sister, and terrifying situation of his father, is in a condition scarcely less pitiable than that of the unhappy maniac.

The Law of Travelling.—The case of Bolton vs. Colder and Williams, recently decided in the district Court at Harrisburgh, Pa., came up on appeal before the Supreme Court in Bank last month in Lancaster. It will be recollected that this was a case in which the plaintiff had brought his action against the defendants, proprietors of the Harrisburgh and Reading line of stages, for damages, in consequence of injuries sustained by him through the negligence of a stage driver, in defendant's employ, who run foul of the dearborn wagon of the plaintiff while pursuing the same direction, overturning it and breaking the plaintiff's leg. It was in evidence that the plaintiff, who was in front, had deserted the approach of the stage and had borne off to the left side of the road, leaving the driver quite sufficient space to pass, without coming in contact. The stage was at the moment, advancing in the middle of the road, and the driver pursued his course without making any effort (judging from the track in the snow) to avoid the plaintiff's wagon. In consequence the hind wheel of the stage struck the latter, and produced the evil, for which he brought suit against the stage owners. The jury awarded $1,200. And on appeal to the Supreme Court, as above mentioned, the judgment was affirmed—thus settling, at least in Pennsylvania, some points of the law by travelling, which were not before sufficiently plain.

The main points embraced by this decision are, that, in travelling on a public road, one may take which side he pleases, so far as relates to vehicles behind him; the legal requisition to "keep to the right" being intended only to prevent collisions between carriages approaching each other in opposite directions. But a vehicle in front, if not already on one side of the road, must take one side or the other as soon as practicable, if another vehicle approaches from behind, or wishes to pass it.

If the carriage in front be on one side of the road at the time, it should proceed on that side, be it right or left. It is not bound to yield its privileges, for the sake of allowing the swifter vehicle to pass it; nor must it, on the other hand, offer any let or hindrance by changing its course or otherwise, to prevent such passing. All this is reason, which is, or should be the foundation of "the law."

Mrs Anne Royall, as Col. Crockett would say, is a real screamer. There is no subject, religious, moral, or political, that comes amiss to her. Whether she talks of the trial of Avery, the temperance societies, or the post office department, it is all the same to her—she abuses the whole of them with a grace and volubility peculiar to herself. We begin to suspect pretty strongly that she is not as good a Jackson man as she once was.

Cin. Republican.

A most amusing scene was witnessed in Water Street on Saturday morning. A butcher in his cart, and two countrymen in a wagon, met in the upper part, near Washington street, where it is so narrow that one vehicle cannot pass another. The butcher declared that he had never been known to back out of any thing, and he was fully resolved to support that reputation through the remainder of his life. The countrymen were equally determined not to yield the ground, and pulled out each a penny magazine and composedly betook themselves to reading. The butcher barrowed a newspaper, and most solemnly affirmed that his butter might melt and his eggs rot, but as for yielding an inch and giving way to such looking fellows, it was altogether and most entirely out of the question. Meanwhile, a crowd of curious and admiring spectators had gathered around the parties, and cheered merrily every good shot that passed from one to the other; now urging the butcher to make a bold dash and clear the course of his adversaries, and then shaming the two countrymen for being kept at bay, as they were, by a single individual. Thus matters were carried on for nearly an hour. At last, the resolution of the countrymen began to give way, and they showed symptoms of design to make good their retreat. They fired a gun to leeward, backed their wagon into Washington street, and drove off at a rapid rate, the butcher and the boys shouting "victory" most lustily.

Death by Lightning.—We are informed that on Sunday evening, the 12th ult., near the Cowpen Furnace, in Spartanburg district, S. C. a young lady, a daughter of Joseph Camp, Esq. was struck by lightning, and instantly killed. The circumstances, as we are informed, are: On the evening mentioned, the young lady perceiving a storm approaching, opened a door near the chimney, to give some directions to the servants, and while she stood in the door the lightning struck the chimney and descended part way down—scattering it to pieces and then flew off and struck the young lady, and instantly waited her spirit to another world.

Dog Labour.—The Columbia Sentinel says that "Mr. Lucas Knap, of the town of Austerlitz, has a team of dogs with which he is in the habit of riding out daily. The dogs are but fourteen months old; and last December when the roads were bad, they travelled from the residence of Mr. K. (who is a cripple) to Winchester, Conn. a distance of sixty miles, in one day, drawing him in a small wagon which he has for that purpose. He returned by the same novel conveyance in the same space of time." What new mode of conveyance shall we have next?

Raising the Wind.—The other day a butcher stood by his cart selling meat, he saw a man stoop and pick up something under his cart. What have you got there? asked the butcher. The fellow said, it looks like money. On examination it proved to be a ten dollar bill. The butcher said, I suppose it is one I dropped when making change. To which the funder replied, I think I ought to have one half, for had it not been for me you never would have seen it again. The butcher knowing it not to be his bill, thought he could not do less than to comply with the fellow's request, he therefore took a five dollar bill out of his wallet and gave him, taking the ten. Soon after the butcher was purchasing some goods in a store and offered the bill to the storekeeper, who pronounced it counterfeit. The butcher was somewhat surprised and then related the manner of his obtaining the bill. He was soon convinced, however, that the best thing he could do would be to fold up the bill, place it in the back part of the wallet, and look out for the future on similar occasions.

A Bright One.—An Irish woman called at a grocer's the other day, and asked for a quart of vinegar. It was measured off, and put into her gallon jug. She then asked for another quart, to be put into the same vessel. "And why not ask for half a gallon, and done with it?" said the grocer. "Och! bless your little bit of a soul," answered she, "it's for two persons."

Important to Post-Masters.—Every postmaster ought to know that if a newspaper directed to his office is not taken out, and he delays beyond a reasonable time to send information to the Publisher, he is himself made liable for the paper.

A coloured man by the name of Coolly, was committed to the Jail of this county, on Tuesday morning, the 23d instant, charged with the murder of a negro of the name of Paris Moore.—It is said that a quarrel took place between the deceased and the prisoner, and that the prisoner stabbed the deceased in the throat with a shoemaker's knife. As the unfortunate being is in Prison, to await his trial, we forbear detailing the circumstances or making any comments.

Public Notice.

WHEREAS it has been represented to me by writ of election issued by his excellency the governor, that a vacancy has occurred in the office of Senator for Dearborn county, by the resignation of J. T. Pollock, Esq. Notice, therefore, is hereby given that a poll will be opened on the first Monday in August next, at the same times and places, as is prescribed by law for holding general elections in said county, to elect one Senator for the term of one year, to represent this county in the general assembly.—Inspectors, Judges, and Clerks in the several townships will therefore govern themselves accordingly.

MARRIED.—On the 23d ultimo, by John Saltmarsh, Esq., Mr. SAMUEL SCOTT to Mrs. SOPHIA COLE, of Elizabethtown, Ohio.

OBITUARY.

CHARLES BISBEE departed this life, at his residence in Aurora, on the 11th of June last, and his son, ISAIAH BISBEE, died in the same place, on the 28th ult.

The father and son resided together, and both fell victims to the epidemic cholera. They were both natives of Plymouth county, Massachusetts. They afterwards resided several years in the state of Maine, and removed to this state in the year 1818. The father was a veteran of the revolutionary war; was respectfully engaged for several years in that sanguinary conflict which terminated in the independence and freedom of the United States. He was married in early life, but lost his wife in the year 1805. At the time of his death he had seven children living; of whom three sons reside in the city of New York and one daughter in the state of Maine. Isaiah was his only son that removed with him to this state. Two of his daughters are all of the family that now remain in this country to lament his death. One of them is the wife of Col. Jacob Eggleston and the other is the wife of Mr. Henry Walker.

After thus discharging his duty to his country as a faithful soldier, in time of the greatest need, and spending a long life as a valuable citizen, he died at the age of seventy-seven—leaving in the hearts of an extensive circle of acquaintances an impressive memorial of the many amiable qualities that characterized his life.

His son Isaiah, who in so short a period has followed his father to the narrow mansion of the tomb, was a valuable member of society. He was born in the year 1781—was once married, but his wife died in 1807, without leaving him any children, since which time he has continued unmarried. His death took place in the 52d year of his age, by which the community has been deprived of a wealthy, industrious, and excellent citizen.

Thus in the death of the father and the son, the remaining members of the family and society at large have sustained a severe and an afflictive loss, which will be long felt and remembered among the deadly doings of the cholera.
