

TO ANNA.

White hope, dearest Anna, still whispers of bliss,
Of mutual endearments, and conjugal kisses,
Thy flattering heart, to her promises bounding,
Fruits in the prospects of pleasures surrounding.
Resolve then to keep the sweet promise you've given,
For surely, sweet girl, we've the sanction of heav'n.
This life is so short, and enjoyment so fleeting,
So rapidly fading—so quickly retreating,
It is meet that we seize on the hour that is flying,
Which never returns to the living or dying;
Consent then to bless me, I humbly implore thee,
Dear Anna, believe me—I love—I adore thee!
N. Y. Mirror.

STANZAS.

"The sun of early love may rise
To cheer life's wintry day;
But from the youth's deluded eyes,
That sun shall fade away.
The moon of friendship o'er this night,
May throw her beams serene,
But soon, ah soon! her placid light
Shall leave the sinking scene.
The stars of science may perform
Their visionary dance;
But quickly shall the midnight storm
Of ignorance advance.
The flow'rs of happiness may show
Their blossoms to the gale;
But soon by stormy winds laid low,
They wither on the vale."

THE OCEAN.

Likeness of Heaven!
Agent of Power!
Man is thy victim,
Shipwrecks thy dower!
Species and jewels
From valley and sea,
Armies and banners
Are buried in thee!
What are the riches
Of Mexican mines,
To the wealth that far down
In the deep water shines!
The proud navies that cover
The conquering west—
Thou fling'st them to death
With one heave of thy breast!
From the high hills that view
Thy wreck-making shore,
When the bride of the mariner
Stricks at the roar;
When, like lambs in the tempest,
Or mews in the blasts,
O'er thy ridge-broken billows
The canvass is cast.
How humbling to one
With a heart and a soul
To look on thy greatness
And list to thy roll;
To think how that heart
In cold ashes shall be,
When the voice of eternity
Rises from thee!
Yes: where are the cities
Thebes and of Tyre!
Swept from the nations
Like sparks from the fire;
The glory of Athens,
The splendor of Rome,
Dissolved—and forever
Like dew in thy foam.
But thou art almighty—
Eternal—sublime—
Unweakened—unwasted—
Twin brother of Time!
Fleets, tempests nor nations
Thy glory can bow;
As the stars first beheld thee,
Still chasten art thou!
But hold! when thy surges
No longer shall roll,
And the firmament's length
Is drawn back like a scroll;
Then—then shall the spirit
That sighs by thee now,
Be more mighty—more lasting—
More chaste than thou!

Crispin turned M. D.—In a neighboring country not a hundred yards ago a shoe-maker having become the disciple of Dr. Thompson, procured a book and commenced the practice of medicine. He was shortly after called to visit a patient, and putting on a long face with his book under his arm, he stalked into the room and made the necessary examination of the sick, and then retired to the front gallery of the house to consult his ecce medicum. Having read for some time, he raised his head and inquired of the master of the house if he had a Sorel Horse?—Yes I have a first rate one; he cost me $150.—Well, said the doctor, you must kill him. "I can do that," said the owner, "he cost me too much." Well, have you got a Sorel Sheep? inquired our new physician. "I don't know but I have, I'll have the flock drove up and you can see; but why do you want it? Let me look at your book?" Taking the book from the doctor he read, "make a tea of Horse Sorel or Sheep Sorel," &c. instead of a Sorel Horse or Sorel Sheep, as the doctor understood it! Notwithstanding this mistake, Crispin is practicing with much success, we understand, in the neighborhood of Port Gibson. Natchez Courier.

Blistering without pain. An Irishman whose wife had been suffering under some pectoral complaint, called lately for medical advice on a surgeon in Girvin, who ordered a blister to be put upon her chest. The Hibernian, like many of his countrymen, interpreted the direction he got, quite literally, although certainly not in the right way, for, on going home he searched his whole cabin for a chest: but finding, as he afterwards informed the surgeon, nothing so like one as "a bit of a trunk where Kate keeps her muffs," he actually clapped the blister on the lid of the trunk; and his wife, by good luck, getting immediately better of her complaint, he declared his perfect belief of the efficacy of the application, "that it had cured her complaint."

Awful Catastrophe.—An unusually thrilling occurrence took place in this town on Monday morning last. A man by the name of Archibald Smith threw himself from the third story window of Blair's Hotel to the pavement and (as is supposed from the position in which he was found) was instantly killed. He was discovered about one o'clock in the morning, and as soon as practicable, a coroner's inquest was held over the body. Mr. Blair and several others were subpoenaed as witnesses, and from their evidence we learn that Smith had come to the hotel on the preceding evening, much intoxicated and apparently delirious. He asked for liquor which was refused

He then left the house and returned about 6 o'clock, when he called for a bed, and was placed in a room in the third story, in order to prevent his disturbing other parts of the house. He was heard by persons who slept in the adjoining rooms during the former part of the night, and it is believed that the accident occurred but a short time previous to its discovery—and after hearing the evidence and examining the body the jury returned a verdict that "he was laboring under the influence of mania a potu, that he threw himself from the third story window of Blair's Hotel, and was thereby killed."

Smith we understand was formerly a resident of Philadelphia. He came to this place a few months since, and leased the steam mill and distillery below town. We understand that he was formerly a gentleman of respectable standing. His course, however, during his residence in this vicinity has been characterized by constant dissipation.

It may be gratifying to his friends to learn that every attention was paid to the deceased by Mr. Blair. His remains were taken into the house and on Monday afternoon interred in a respectable manner.

BELLEROPHON, OR HIPPOCENUS. This young prince of Ephyrus, one of the most ancient towns of Greece, in consequence of killing his brother Beller, fled to the court of Proteus, king of Argos. His crime procured him the name of Bellerophon, or murderer of Beller. The young queen accused him falsely to her husband, because he was more virtuous than herself. Proteus, unwilling to violate the laws of hospitality, by punishing Bellerophon, for his supposed offence, sent him away to his father-in-law, Jobates, king of Lycia, and gave him a letter, in which he begged the king to punish with death a man who had insulted his daughter. From that circumstance all letters which are of an unfavourable tendency to the bearer, have been called letters of Bellerophon. Jobates, to satisfy his son-in-law, sent the supposed delinquent to conquer a horrible monster Chimera, in which dangerous attempt he would undoubtedly be slain. But the providence of Minerva supported him; and with the aid of the winged horse Pegasus, he conquered the three-headed monster, and returned victorious. Jobates imposed on him several other difficult tasks all of which he accomplished, and finally, the king convinced of his innocence, gave him his daughter, and he succeeded to the throne. Thus the persecuted outcast became king of Argos. N. Y. Mirror.

"The bearer of the fatal letter, who
The dire, three-headed chimera slew,
He that bestrode the mused winged horse
And taught the untamed steed an ordered course."

HAPPINESS.—Happiness is much more equally divided than some of us imagine: One man shall possess most of the materials and but little of the thing; another may possess much of the things; and but few of the materials. In this particular view of it, happiness has been beautifully compared to the manna in the wilderness: he that gathered much had nothing over, he that gathered little had no lack. Therefore to diminish envy let us not consider what others possess but what they enjoy. Mere riches may be the gift of lucky accident or blind chance, but happiness must be the result of prudent preference and rational design, the highest happiness then can have no other foundation than the deepest wisdom; and the happiest fool is only as happy as he knows how to be.

Under the head of "caution" the Portland Advertiser has the following curious statement:

"There are but few persons who apprehend any danger from the Sun, when its rays enter their houses—but the Sun may set a house on fire. A case almost occurred in this town last week. The Sun's rays fell upon a globe—a fish globe full of water. The globe and the water brought the Sun's rays to a focus upon a pamphlet. The pamphlet was observed to smoke, and four leaves were actually burnt through; and if it had not been observed, would undoubtedly have set the house on fire.—The rays of the Sun when thus brought to a focus, were hot enough to make the side board smoke."

A singular but daring Burglary and Robbery happened on the Friday night of last week, in New Market township, in this county. A stranger whose name we have not learned, and who had very recently come into the neighborhood, rented a cabin on the farm of Mr. Purdy. His family consisted of his wife and child and a widow woman, all of whom moved into the cabin. The husband in a few days after, left home on a trading excursion, leaving the two women and child behind. The widow woman, it seems, had $150 in money, which had been carefully concealed by sewing it in an understrawbed. On the night above mentioned two men presented themselves and asked admission—which was refused. One of the women looked through the window, and saw by the moon light, that one of the men had his face blacked. In an instant afterwards, the door was broken down—one of the women was held—the fire drownd out—and without halting, the bed was ripped open, and money secured. The whole was accomplished in very few minutes, when the robbers made off, without injuring any of the women, and nothing has been heard of them since. Vigilant means should be taken to rid society of these ruffians. Hillsboro Gazette.

Filial duty.—There is no virtue that adds so noble a charm to the finest traits of beauty, as that which exerts itself in watching over the tranquility of an aged parent. There are no tears to give so noble a lustre to the cheek of innocence, as the tears of filial sorrow.

PROPOSALS.

For publishing the "Ohio Farmer and Western Horticulturist," a semi-monthly newspaper, in the town of Batavia, Clermont county, Ohio, by SAMUEL MEDARY.

WHEN I presented the following proposals for publishing the "Ohio Farmer and Western Horticulturist," it was under extreme doubts, as regarded its success; knowing that such works were too commonly confined to the patronage of the select few. Determined, however, to try the experiment at all risks, and several agriculturists having pledged themselves to use their influence in giving it circulation, I commenced issuing a prospectus. I am already satisfied that the proposed publication will meet with an extensive patronage, and the decided approbation of those who are engaged in the various branches of Agriculture, and the Mechanic Arts.

I expect, and am already promised the assistance of several pens, the writers of which possess the necessary requisites, to make any periodical interesting and useful. This work being devoted to the interests of the "Great West," and treating on subjects characteristic of the Mississippi Valley, will be either beneficial or interesting to every portion of the Union. Raising and improving stock—diseases of animals—the vine—culture of silk—orchards—Field and Garden seeds—Improvements in mechanic Arts—Botany—Geology and Mineralogy—and sales of valuable public lands, are all topics, which will be noticed, and investigated, in a manner both amusing and instructive.

In addition, the editor is about commencing an experiment with the grape in this region, in connection with a nursery of fruit and ornamental trees, and he is anxious to obtain all the information upon these subjects, which science and experience have brought to light, and which he will convey to his readers for mutual advantage. He considers his location an advantageous one; although comparatively new, the surrounding country is densely inhabited with a thriving and industrious population, almost exclusively agricultural, sufficiently adjacent the Cincinnati market, (the best west of the Alleghany,) to give a stimulus to improvement in every variety of products; added to which is a soil, highly fertile and productive.

The Bank note list will be as extensive as possible, suited to any portion of the country, with a notice of the counterfeits on each. The review of the markets will be rather a condensed survey of the whole, and the state of trade, than confined to any particular point.

At the end of every volume, an extensive and complete index and title page will be furnished.

Ohio Farmer and Western Horticulturist.

Owing to the solicitations of several friends of Agriculture, I propose to issue a paper from this place under the above title. A work to promote the cause of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts, published in a cheap and compendious form, and taking a general view of the condition and resources of these branches of industry in the West, is considered an object of general utility, and interest, especially at this time. It is true, several works, partaking in a measure, of the same nature, already exist; but by a law of the State Legislature, passed February, 1833, for the encouragement of Agriculture—societies are shooting up in every direction. As these increase, the demand for information will increase in a corresponding ratio. Knowledge begets improvement and industry, and these, wealth; for it is a fact well known to the intelligent observer, that the wealth of the farmer increases in proportion to the improvements made in the stock and culture of his farm.

The labour saving machines, invented by the ingenious mechanic, have done much to facilitate the business of the Agriculturist where introduced; and the improved breed of animals, that fatten upon his well tilled soil, add luxuries to his table and riches to his store.

Subjects which come appropriately under the head of Horticulture, will, as the title of the paper designates, be interspersed through the work.

This paper will endeavor to excite a proper spirit of rivalry and ambition among the Western tillers of the soil; and will contain a regular record of the most interesting proceedings of the numerous Agricultural Societies that may come under the editor's notice. It will also contain, at least quarterly, a general list of solvent Banks in the Union—and review of the markets.

Much might be said on the importance of such a work, but the limits of a prospectus do not admit of it; the foregoing will give a general outline of its object.

THE OHIO FARMER AND WESTERN HORTICULTURIST, will be published semi-monthly on a medium sheet with new type, and in quarto form, suitable for binding at $1 50 per annum in advance, or on the reception of the first No. All notes on solvent Banks, received in payment.

Any person, obtaining five subscribers, shall receive the sixth copy gratis, and in the same proportion for a greater or less number.

The first No. will be issued on the first day of January, 1834.

MASONIC MIRROR AND COLONIZATION ADVOCATE. It is very philosophically observed by Addison, "that our greatest pride arises from doing good to each other," or in other words, being individually serviceable to society.

In offering a new enterprise to the notice of the public, the subscribers are aware of the obstacles to be surmounted; but they deem it a reflection upon the intelligence of a free people, to specify the advantages arising from the existence, in the West, of a well conducted publication on the two leading subjects of the Mirror and Advocate.

THE MIRROR AND ADVOCATE, will advocate the unsullied principles of Free Masonry and Colonization. Literature and the Arts shall find in it, an untiring and zealous friend. Sketches of the eloquence of the bar, of the sacred desk, and of popular assemblies, shall occasionally flash in our pages. To these, our poetical column will and another recommendation.

It is useless to be more explicit, as we presume the want the proposed journal is not only admitted, but generally relying upon their love of justice and of public virtue await their decision.

The Masonic Mirror and Colonization Advocate, is published every other Tuesday. The terms, are $1 25 per annum, payable in advance; $1 50 if not paid until the expiration of six months, or $1 75 if payment be delayed until the end of the year. Agents will be allowed ten per cent on all subscribers they should obtain. Care will be taken to have the work well packed when sent by mail.

A Title Page and Index of contents, will be furnished at the close of each Volume. MCGREGOR & MERIWETHER.
