

PALLADIUM.

Saturday Morning, July 19.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The undivided one half interest in this establishment, having been purchased by F. M. Cole, the publication of the Palladium will be continued by and under the firm of D. V. CULLEY & F. M. COLE. The general principles on which the paper has been conducted, (as already intimated,) will not be changed. Those who have patronized it in times past, and approved of its management, we indulge a belief, will have no cause to regret the new arrangement. Every exertion will be made to keep pace with the improvement of the times, and no labor or expense spared to render the Palladium useful and interesting to every reader, whatever his taste or occupation may be.

D. V. CULLEY,
F. M. COLE.

TO THE READER.

You are already apprised that the undersigned has purchased an interest in this establishment, which commences with this number. Were so responsible a station, as conductor of a public journal, assigned him alone, at this distracted period of the public mind, it would be with feelings of some apprehension as to his ability to discharge its duties, with credit to himself and justice to his patrons, he would enter upon them.

The largely increased and increasing subscription to this paper, he considers ample proof of the general approval of the course pursued in its management, while under the supervision of the senior Editor, and he cherishes a hope that no act of the junior, may merit other than the continued extension of its circulation.

The present state of political parties may be considered in some degree alarming. But, in a free government like ours, a difference of opinion, as to public men and measures, is to be expected, and to a certain extent, absolutely necessary, that the claims of persons to public confidence, and those in high stations, may be fully canvassed, and the utility of the measures proposed or acted upon, properly understood. But in the exercise of this prerogative, moderation, judgment, and an eye single to the interest of the whole country, regardless of every private, personal, or sectional consideration, should always be a paramount object. Political strife and animosity, he fears, have arrived to too great a height, for the prosperity of the country or the proper protection of its institutions. The advancement to power and government favors, appears to be too much the ruling principle on all sides.

The press, he thinks, has done much to bring about this greatly to be lamented state of affairs. He conceives it to be the duty of every Editor of a public paper, to sacredly guard the public peace and tranquility, and in place of adding fuel to the flames of exasperated party feelings, to endeavor by every means in his power to soften and quell them. He should give publicity to nothing, calculated to excite and foment the public mind, without first ascertaining its authenticity, and even then in its most favorable light. But he is sorry to have reason to think, this is not the case at present. The press, to some extent, has lent its influence to ambitious men, and in the furtherance of their views and designs, is too ready to give currency to exaggerated reports, and even the most unblushing falsehoods, if they appear calculated to have a bearing upon the opposite party. The freedom and purity of the press are inseparably connected with the perpetuity of our government, and with the prostitution of the one, is the extermination of the other. It is then much to be regretted, that this is the light in which the press, the grand pillar of a republican government, is viewed by the public eye. Excessive eulogy and extravagant praise of public men, or their superior claims to public favor, not only causes a relaxation of duty on the part of public servants, but has a direct tendency to create strife and inveterate hatred in community; and will, if persisted in, terminate as destructive to moral, social, and political happiness, as the life destroying Simoom.

The Palladium, then, as the most efficient means, on its part, of promoting and preserving the best interests of the country, will pursue the same moderate, firm, and independent course in support of men and measures, which has ever characterized it, and its aim will ever be, to "give praise where praise is due."

With these few hasty and undigested remarks, the undersigned will close—hoping the future conduct of the paper may prove acceptable to all, and public expectation of its utility and usefulness, be doubly realized.

V. M. COLE.

We are sorry to learn that the President has considered it his duty to retain, and perhaps to withhold his assent from, the bill passed at the late session, appropriating $20,000 for the improvement of the Wabash river. We are not fully advised of his objections to the bill, but learn incidentally that they are grounded on a belief that the appropriation would not have a national application, and contravene the principles laid down in the Maysville road veto message. Without now stopping to inquire into the principles of that message, (which we believe were generally approved,) we would take this occasion to say, that we consider the Wabash as standing on widely different ground from that occupied by the Maysville road. That improvement was under the control of a company—it terminated at an inland town, where it had no general connection with any great thoroughfare. The Wabash river is a public high-way, unrestricted, and common to every citizen who may choose to navigate it. It traverses a large extent of country, affording the only outlet or channel of trade to the most fertile portions of this State and Illinois; and will in a short time, constitute the connecting link in the grand chain of water communication from east to west. In short, the Wabash has, in our view, all the distinguishing marks of nationality, save perhaps a port of entry or a custom house, which Congress could easily give, and will no doubt, if it be considered necessary, place her on a proper footing, to secure the favors now withheld from her. We earnestly hope and believe the President will mature this subject well, and in the issue do justice to our State and its citizens, a large portion of whom feel the most lively interest in the improvement of the Wabash river.

Bowel Complaint. A correspondent of the Cincinnati Republican recommends an infusion of White oak bark, as an almost certain cure for this dangerous and troublesome complaint. The infusion to be prepared by putting a piece of the bark, about the size of a man's hand, into a quart of cold water, and letting it remain until it has changed the color to that of Madeira wine, when it may be used. From a tea to a table spoonful of the preparation may be taken every half hour, until the disease is arrested. If necessary to sweeten it, use loaf sugar.

The Crops. The farmers around in this section of country have nearly got through cutting their wheat, rye, and oats harvest, and we are pleased to be able to state that the yield is a fair one, though not quite so great, on an average, as last year. The wheat in some places, comes off light, while in others it is extremely heavy—so with the rye. The oats, generally, we believe, turn off well. The grass crop is unusually heavy, and favorable weather for curing is only wanted, to enable the husband man to lay by a plentiful supply for his own use, and a large amount to sell. The corn looks extremely well, and bids fair to gladden the heart of the cultivator with a much better crop than last season.

The Cincinnati Republican, of the 16th instant, quotes flour in that city at $4 12 1/2 per bbl. and whiskey at 20 1/2 cents per gallon.

We learn from the Globe that the President of the United States left Washington city on the 6th inst. for the Hermitage.

The session of Congress closed on the 30th ult. and we presume the members have generally, ere this, reached their homes. Messrs. Lane and Knard, of this State, reached this place on Saturday last.

Marketing. We hope our country friends will do something to relieve the pressure in our market. Butter, eggs, potatoes, chickens, flour, corn meal, &c. are scarce, and bear a good price.

The Ohio river is in good stage for navigation, though not quite as high as it was a week since.

A SINGULAR AFFAIR. In the afternoon of the 4th inst. a very genteel looking person, about "three sheets in the wind," calling himself McLean, landed at this place. He stated that he was a pilot on the boat, and had been set ashore in consequence of some "scrape" between himself and the Captain. He had in his possession an elegant gold watch, said to be worth $150, which he pawned to a gentleman in this vicinity for $70. In the course of the night, another person who said his name was Spafford, arrived in pursuit of McLean, and stated that the watch had been stolen from him while asleep on the boat. About daylight, McLean having ascertained that he was pursued, attempted to get on board a steamboat that was passing at the time, and falling in this, he made an attempt to swim the river, but was persuaded to come ashore.

In the morning the parties appeared before Justice BENNETT. Spafford told McLean to plead not guilty, which he accordingly did, but after investigating the affair, the Justice concluded to send Mac to Lawrenceburgh, to await a future trial. This distressed him very much, and Spafford offered to lend him money to obtain security; but while the bond was making out, a steamboat came along and Spafford "took the chute." On hearing this McLean burst into tears, and he said that Spafford was his brother-in-law.

McLean was taken to jail, where, we have understood, he was attacked with Cholera, but got well, and effected his escape.

Rising Sun Times.

The person above alluded to, was put to lodge in one of the public buildings, owned by the county in this place, last week; but owing to the change of diet, water, atmosphere, or perhaps a little too much cramped in circumstances, for hot weather, he was shortly after declared to be seriously indisposed, and removed to more spacious, airy apartments, to ease out, as comfortably as possible, the few remaining hours of his existence. The change appeared to have the most beneficial effect, adding fresh oil to the flickering taper, and causing it to revive and shine more strong and steadily—inasmuch that the watchers retired and left the sick man to the care of old Somnus. What opiates the drowsy god administered to him is not known, but it is presumed they were not very potent, nor long held the patient in durance, as the morning sun rose not upon the sleeper. He was up—gone—one now knew whither. The covering of the bed, tied together and suspended from a window, told that he had passed down in that way, but farther he could not be traced—leaving it a matter of doubt whether he passed off on, or was dissipated in the earth, after the manner of electric fluid. All concur, however, in pronouncing it a clearly developed case, not exactly of cholera, in its worst form, but of some thing else, that carried off a fellow being very suddenly.

Health of Cincinnati. Dr. James M. Mason, in an article published in the Cincinnati Republican, of the 16th inst., speaks of the Health of that city as follows:

There can be no doubt, I think, but that Cholera has existed in Cincinnati for the last 3 months, sporadically—that is, like other diseases common to our district of country. But it has not this summer, neither does it now, prevail epidemically; nor does it prevail to an extent that should excite the fears of our citizens, nor of those persons who may wish to come here on business, or for the purpose of residing. Fewer cases have occurred, in proportion, in Cincinnati, this summer, than perhaps have occurred in any other town of any magnitude on the Ohio or Mississippi rivers.

$1,300 FOR A MURDERER.

The above reward is offered by the citizens and goaler of Claiborne county, Miss. and the Governor of the State, for the apprehension and delivery of a fellow named JACOB SKINNER, who broke jail on the 23d of May last, at Port Gibson. This wretch murdered JOHN JENNINGS, Esq. a very respectable and worthy citizen of that place, on the 9th of September. Said Skinner is thus described by the Sheriff—"The murderer is a very small man, and one of his feet (I believe the right) is contracted so as to make him very lame, caused by rheumatic pains when young; he is a silversmith by trade, and quite a genius, more particularly so in his own estimation; a noted black leg; has travelled a greater part of the United States, particularly the Western and Southern States. Boasts frequently of his knowledge of those places, and of the persons of note in each place he has travelled through; his complexion is fair, short curly white hair, nearly bald, and thin visaged."

New York Mirror. This truly national work has arrived at its twelfth volume; the first number of which, with one exception, is filled with original matter. It is printed on an entire new type, and altogether affords one of the most splendid specimens of typography in the world.

The engravings of the Mirror are worth more than the subscription price. The proprietors will shortly present to the public a most splendid original engraving of the likenesses of all the Presidents of the United States, which cost three thousand dollars.

We are in the midst of harvest here. The wheat crop is something better than was expected some weeks ago, but it is thin on the ground and considerably injured with rust. In some neighborhoods the crop will not yield more than half as much as that of the last year. Corn looks uncommonly well.

The Hon. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS has been selected by the joint committee of the two houses of Congress, to deliver the eulogy on the life and character of GEN. LA FAYETTE, at the next session of Congress.

About thirty miles below this place, the steam boat Arkansas coming up, ran into the Planter going down, on last Sunday, by which the latter was so much injured, that she sunk immediately. Her cargo to the amount of $12,000, was insured by some office in Louisville.

The following was received by the Editors, through the post office, and is given to the public without comment—it speaks for itself:

JEFFERSONVILLE, July 5th, 1834.

Fellow Citizens of Indiana: Having received numerous letters from various parts of the State, wishing to know my prospects at the approaching election for Governor, I have thought proper to answer them through the medium of the press, and with pleasure can say that I have received information from most of the counties, and believe my prospects good and daily improving.

I lately took a tour with Gov. Noble, north and north east of Indianapolis, and in that section of the country, I was astonished to hear the Governor call on the people to sustain him on local grounds. In the south, said he, or in Mr. Read's neighboring counties, both Clay and Jackson men are supporting Read on local grounds; and will you stand still and see my throat cut from ear to ear? No, said he, I know you too well—you are my neighbors—you interest in my interest, and I call on you to sustain me against the south or against the counties in Mr. Read's neighborhood. I again repeat that I was astonished to see a Governor of a State, thus address the citizens of the counties immediately in his neighborhood. Fellow citizens, if I am elected Governor, I shall consider myself Governor of the whole State, and not a particular section. This course he pursued in nearly all the counties in which we were together, north and north east of Indianapolis, and on one occasion I called on several gentlemen present to give me a statement in writing of the Governor's remarks on that subject, which they did, and copies of which are subjoined.

J. G. READ.

Muncy Town June 5th, 1834.
Dear Sir: At your request I will state that Governor Noble, in his public address at this place on the 4th inst., did call upon the people to support him on local grounds—that it was in his neighborhood—that he lived on the same river. He also stated that the counties in Judge Read's neighborhood, were supporting him, (Read,) both Clay and Jackson men, on the same grounds.

Respectfully yours, &c.
JEREMIAH STILLWELL.

JUDGE READ.
Muncy Town, June, 5th 1834.
Judge Read—Sir: At your request I will state that Governor Noble did, on the 4th instant in this place, state that the counties in Mr. Read's neighborhood, were supporting him on local grounds, and he urged the people to support him, (Noble,) on the same grounds—adding that he lived in their neighborhood—on the same river—and only about forty-five miles—and urged them to do the same. That both Clay and Jackson men ought to support him here in self defence. The above is in substance the remarks of Governor Noble on that subject.

Respectfully,
JOHN TRIMBLE.

JUDGE READ.
NEW ORLEANS MARKET.
From B. Levy's N. O. Price Current of June 21.

Remarks. The Mississippi, since our last report, rose about 18 inches, but has since fallen and is now 10 feet below high water mark, the same stage as noticed last week. The weather, in the first of the week, was warm and dry, but within the last few days we have had several copious rains, which were rendered very acceptable by the continuance of the present drought. Business, as is usual, at this period of the year, is sensibly diminishing daily, and the prices of the most articles which it is our duty to notice, consequently remain nominal. That unusually large number of vessels, of various classes, with which the Levee has been lined throughout the season are now much reduced and a few weeks more will see it comparatively clear.

Tobacco.—The sales of the week are comprised in the transfer of about 175 hhds from second hands, at an advance of from one eighth a fourth cent, on our quotations. The small quantity actually in the market for sale, precludes operations to any extent.

Sugar.—The quantity of Sugar in the country we are told is unusually large for so late a period in the season; and owing, as we before remarked, to the waters being so low, considerable quantities, from different points, have not yet come in; which, as it arrives, will still keep up the stock now in the city, and have the effect to continue the article, as it is at present, dull.

Molasses.—The demand is small and transaction are confined to small lots, at prices not materially varying from those we quote.

Flour.—Former prices continue current; the consumption about keeps pace with the arrivals, and some say, rather exceeds them. Arrived this week 3168 bbls.

Pork.—The stock of Pork in market is becoming much reduced, and the demand, though not great, continues steady at former quotations. Arrived this week, 196 bbls.

Bacon.—Western country Bacon is extremely scarce, and in good demand—we notice an improvement in price, of hog round. Arrived this week, 240 hhds Hams, 14 bxs and 97 hhds assorted.

Beef.—No change has occurred either in price or demand the supply in market is but limited.

Lard.—Good Leaf Lard is scarce and in very good demand, 8 cents is the current price for this description. Arrived this week, 1112 kegs.

Butter.—Some Western has come into market this week, and that of good quality will sell at quotations. The demand Goshen, is out limited. Arrived this week 529 kegs.

Whiskey continues quite scarce and the demand at 24 cts is very fair. Arrived this week 694 bbls.

Coffee.—The Market, at present, is not very abundantly supplied with Coffee, still the demand is very limited: quotations remain unchanged.

Fish, Mackerel.—There is none in first hands, and but few of any description in market. The sales are altogether at retail. Cod are scarce, but at this season, there is not much demand.

Corn is in tolerable demand and is selling for 75 a 8 1/2 cents per bushel, for shelled in Sacks, in the Ear, per bbl. at $1 50.

Hay—there is no Hay afloat or on the Levee, and the sales are principally at retail for $1 a $1 25 per 100 lbs.
