

PALLADIUM.

Saturday Morning, July 18.

We are requested to announce John R. Wilkinson, William Parin, and John Goodwin, as candidates for Justice of the Peace, in Miller township, vice Milton Gregg, resigned.

No looking out. The Times, of the 11th instant, says the friends of Mr. David Kerr, not being willing that he should decline, he will continue to be a candidate for recorder.

The same paper announces Capt. John Tait, of Randolph township, as a candidate for coroner.

We learn from the Globe that the President left Washington city on the 6th inst. on an excursion to the Rip Raps, where it was expected he would remain several weeks.

Mr. Clayton, the aerial navigator, who left Cincinnati on the 4th, on a voyage to the Adams, is seen, was short of his destination. After a flight of some hours, he came safe to anchor on the earth near Pickett, Pike county, Ohio; about 100 miles from Cincinnati. The balloon was secured without damage.

The Philadelphia papers announce the death of JOHN MARSHALL, Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. He died in that city on the 8th instant, after a long and severe illness.

The senior editor duly appreciates the "hopes" and wishes of the Times, as to his withdrawal from the Palladium. He will consider them, together with other things, before he takes leave of his friends and patrons. The "congratulations" may not be necessary, or may have to come from a different quarter. "There is many a slip," &c.

The editor of the Times, after a great deal of blowing about the impropriety of the rail road to Lawrenceburg; the taxes it was about to lay upon the people, is unable or unwilling to tell how much the mammoth bill appropriated to it. The question we put to him, has fairly silenced his brag about the road. He is ashamed to tell his readers that the road is a private company undertaking, for which no one, unless he chooses, pays one cent. The first section, now under contract and improvement, will be constructed at the expense of the citizens in and around this place. The State has no interest nor direct concern in it. She has not even taken a share of stock in the road. The improvement is indeed and in fact, what the editor allows, made by and at the expense of those who think it will be beneficial to them. This being the case, we are surprised to see the Times and his correspondents introducing the road at all, as an objection to Lawrenceburg. If other citizens, in common with others, are willing to give their private funds to make a rail road, we see no good reason why they should not be allowed to do so, free from contumacious from those who are perhaps more envious, but less enterprising than they. We would again ask the editor of the Times to name the sum he or any other person, not a stock holder, will pay to complete the mile section now under contract. He must, if he answers candidly, say he will pay nothing; and that the whole attack on the rail road and its friends, is merely a measure to deceive the public.

The editor of the Times is desirous to know who are the managers in the effort to fix the county seat at Wilmington, and calls on us to name them. Whenever the editor thinks proper to name the Lawrenceburg Junta we shall feel disposed to do the same. But, without waiting for this explanation, perhaps he can get from the Manchester convention proceedings some hints that will enable him to guess at a few of the managers below.

"Alas! Poor York!" The editor of the Times has, for some time past, been manufacturing political opinions for the Manchester nominated candidates for representatives, under the supposition that no one would take the trouble to expose his attempts at imposture. But, alas! what short-sighted creatures we are. Scarcely had he formed an available creed for the said ticket—made them mammoth bill advocates, and every thing as he thought best—than out comes Mr. Milliken and blows the fabric "sky high." Not a peg is left on which to hang a doubt as to his opinions; and they are any thing, but as represented by the editor of the Times. What is now to be done? We would advise the editor to get his correspondents, "Truth," to form a new creed for the Manchester ticket—perhaps he can concoct something to suit the exigency.

We were not a little disappointed, and so we presume were many others, at not seeing in the last number of the Times, some report of the doings at Rising Sun on the 4th. After proclaiming to the world that a second deliverance from bondage, (removal of the seat of justice from Lawrenceburg) was to be commemorated on that day, in an appropriate manner, could it have been believed that no note or record would have been made of the result; no spirit-stirring moments left to impress upon the minds of the rising generation the high and commanding importance of the benefits gained by the second struggle for independence. We have, indirectly, understood that the day was celebrated in a patriotic, stirring manner; but cannot on vague authority, venture to give our readers even an outline of the proceedings. We hope, if it is inconvenient for the Editor of the Times to make a report thereof, that his graphic correspondents, "Truth," would undertake the job. His imaginative powers particularly fit him for so important a duty.

The East and the West. We have been somewhat amused with two notices, one in the Nashville Tennessee Banner, and the other in the Newburyport Herald, that we read contemporarily. Here they are:

From the Nashville Banner.

We are requested to notify those married gentlemen who have not subscribed to the Ball to be given to-morrow night, that the subscription paper is at Govey's where their names will be received with pleasure, if they wish to subscribe.

Gentlemen who are acquainted with ladies who have not received tickets; or who know of strangers being in the city, are requested to apply to either of the managers for tickets of invitation.

From the Newburyport Herald.

A notice was given on the morning of the 26th, that tickets of admission to the Tea Party, were to be obtained at the store of M. & P. Harrod. Those ladies who came in without tickets, are very politely requested to call on the Misses Harrod and leave the admission fee, in order that the Managers may be enabled to settle their bills.

May 27. Per order of the Committee. The Nashville article is right down good. What kindness, hospitality, and love of fun, breathes in every line of it. The Nashville bachelors notifying the married men that they are not ashamed of their company, and that they may dance if they will pay the fiddler, is an excellent joke, but who can help loving them for the anxiety they express lest any lady should be forgotten, or the strangers in the city be unprovided with tickets. When you read such an advertisement, you feel a visionary connection with the people, and cannot help helping them "had a good time."

As to the other—the Newburyport affair—there is too much of the "small potato" about it, and too few in the heap, to suit our fancy. What! dun the ladies publicly, for the cost of a cup of "two shilling southing"! Who ever heard of such a thing, out of the land of wooden nutmegs and bass wood pumpkin seeds! And what a beggarly reason too! They are requested to pay up, in order that the managers may be able to "settle their bills." Settle fiddlesticks! If there was an deficiency, why didn't they levy a tax on the bachelors—that was the proper "ways and means" to raise the supplies, and not to tell the world that there are some ladies in Newburyport, like a good many ladies in other parts, who never think of paying for any thing; however anxious the managers may be "to settle their bills." Out upon such notices.

Boston Transcript.

DEED—On the 27th ult. at his residence in Miller township, of droopage, Mr. THOMAS HARGREY, sr. in the 71st year of his age.

In this place, on the 16th instant, after a short illness, Mr. JOHN HORN, about 23 years of age.

For the Palladium.

Messrs. Editors: It is currently reported and believed that the writer of certain communications in the Rising Sun Times, over the signature of "Truth," is a citizen of Lawrenceburg! Can it be possible? Is there one among us, claiming the rights, the privileges, or prerogative of the press, so mean, so truckling, so lost to generous feeling, as to pen so dastardly an article? If there is, let him be pointed out—let the slow, annoying finger of scorn be always directed towards him, and his name become a reproach among us. But it cannot be that such a man resides among us. Let diligent search be made, and where is the citizen who raises his voice against the rail road as a vain, an useless improvement, far beyond the means of the company to accomplish? Where is the citizen opposed, by his acts, to the White Water canal? And where is he who looking one way, pulls another—makes loud professions for men and interests, but deserts both to subserve his own selfish views? Can the mind recognize such a character among our citizens? If so, let him be watched, for he may be the writer of "Truth."

New Music book—Patent Notes.

MASON'S SACRED HARP, a new collection of Sacred Music, (STEREOTYPED IN PATENT NOTES), arranged by LOWELL MASON, author of Boston Handel and Haydn Society Collection Church Music—the Choir or Union Collection—Lyra Sacra—Spiritual Songs, &c.—and by TIMOTHY B. MASON, Professor in the Electric Academy of Music, Cincinnati. Published by Truman & Smith, Booksellers, Cincinnati.

MASON'S SACRED HARP is adapted to the wants of all denominations. The variety of metres is much greater than in any other collection of music. But very few hymns are contained in the hymn books of the different denominations of christians for a time may not be found in the Sacred Harp. It contains a great variety of very beautiful Psalm and Hymn tunes; a collection of interesting Anthems, Set Pieces, Sacred Songs, outpourings and Chants, which are short, easy of performance without instrumental aid, appropriate to the various occasions of christian worship, the wants of singing schools, musical societies, and pleasing and useful to singers for their own private use, and improvement.

The Harp contains much new and valuable music, which has been drawn from the highest sources of musical taste and science in Europe, especially in Germany. It has been the constant aim of the authors to give a collection of tunes, that should be easily learned and easily sung.

Teachers of Singing, Clergymen, and others, who are desirous of improving their music, can employ no means so effectual as the circulation of this admirable collection, which has been prepared expressly for the south and west.

The following recommendations are appended as an inducement for persons interested in the progress of music in the west and south, to give the book a candid examination.

From the Baptist Journal, Cincinnati.

Having used this truly excellent and popular collection of music in the Baker street Baptist church, for several months past, we are confident that for simplicity, elegance of taste, ease of execution, and adaptation to promote and cherish a love for sacred music, it is decidedly the best work of the kind with which we are acquainted.

From the Standard—Written by Professor Niles, president of the Musical Society in South Hanover college, Indiana.

The style of music contained in the Sacred Harp, is chaste, sublime and beautiful. The harmonies throughout are in the highest style of scientific accuracy and skill. We are confident that the name of Mason will secure for it wide circulation it deserves.

From the Cincinnati Journal.

The Sacred Harp has been very much needed. The senior editor, professor Lowell Mason, of the Boston academy of music, has long been esteemed, both in Europe and America, one of the ablest musicians of the age. He has been, for many years, president of the Boston Handel and Haydn Collection of Church Music; "a work," said the London Harmonicon, several years since, "which is not surpassed by any publication of the kind in the world; it is highly honorable to American talent, and shows clearly the rapid progress of the Americans in musical science." He has since arranged a "choir harmony," a collection of anthems, &c., published by the Handel and Haydn Society of "Lyra Sacra," a collection of original and selected anthems, &c., "The Choir, or Union Collection of Sacred Music," and several other valuable musical works.

Professor P. B. Mason, of the Electric Academy of Music, Cincinnati, is a very able and accomplished musician with all Mason's musical publications, have carefully examined every page of the "Sacred Harp," which is the last production, and think it is not too much to say it contains the cream of all the other works. It may be justly entitled the "Standard of Music." It contains a great number of pieces composed by Mason, of almost unequalled excellence. The authors and publishers are very beautiful. The music in the Harp is rich, beautiful, flowing, melodious and tasteful in its character; of a style perfectly simple and intelligible, so as to be easily sung.

From the St. Louis Observer.

We have examined the Sacred Harp with care, and do not hesitate to give the style and harmony of the tunes our unqualified approbation. The music combines in an equal degree, the simplicity and singleness of expression, which ought ever to characterize devotional tunes. The pieces are in exquisite harmony and taste. We were to name all the tunes of preeminence excellence, we should select a large proportion of all contained in the volume. It is just the kind of music which, it seems to us, all would love to sing. We are confident that the Harp needs only to be known, to be introduced at once into universal favor.

From Mr. B. S. Forbes, Teacher of Sacred Music, Lexington, Ky.—I am using "Mason's Sacred Harp" in my several schools, and give it the preference to any other collection of sacred music extant. The delightful association of music, singing, and prayer, which it affords, to accomplish the taste of all singers, and particularly the learner. I would most cordially recommend the work to all teachers of singing, and to others interested in the progress of music in the west and south.

From Mr. Thos. J. Orr, Teacher of Singing in the Methodist Church, Cincinnati.—I have examined "Mason's Sacred Harp" with much interest and satisfaction. It is admirably adapted to the use of schools, and from the sacred character of the pieces, the purity of the melodies, and the richness of harmony, it is peculiarly calculated for the cultivation of correct musical taste, piety in the heart and moulding multitudes for the church of Christ.

Mr. Billings, Teacher of Sacred Music at Pittsburgh, says: "Mason's Sacred Harp" is the most complete, interesting, and useful collection of Psalm and hymn tunes I have ever seen.—It is emphatically, Sacred Music. I will use no other book, and encourage its general introduction throughout the south and west.

The contents of the Sacred Harp may be divided into three classes:

First Class.—A very choice collection of the good old tunes, with which all singers, old and young, are familiarly acquainted.

Second Class.—The most beautiful, interesting, and useful tunes, from the Handel and Haydn Society collection; Lyra Sacra; the Choir or Union collection Spiritual Songs, and other musical works of the same order.

Third Class.—A highly pleasing and useful collection of Anthems, Set Pieces, Sacred Songs, &c., new and old; also a variety of beautiful pieces, Tunes and Anthems from the works of Handel, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Cherubini, Romberg, and other eminent composers, arranged and harmonized expressly for the Harp.

Introductory Rules.—These have been prepared with great care according to the inductive system of instruction, and are the result of much experience. The advantages of this system are so great that it only requires to be known to be universally adopted. The elementary principles of music presented in this way, are clear, easily understood, and they afford a pleasing, useful and intellectual study, as well to the teacher as to the scholar.

Eight Editions of the work have been sold in a few months. It is now used by all denominations in the different western and southern states. A large volume of recommendations can be presented, but it is not necessary; the work will recommend itself, and musical men are invited to give it a careful examination.

Mason's Sacred Harp is sold at wholesale and retail, by the Publishers at Cincinnati, W. B. Snyder, Lawrenceburg, Indiana, and is also sold by booksellers and country merchants generally, throughout the United States.
