

LAWRENCEBURGH,

SATURDAY MORNING, JAN. 9, 1836.

FOR PRESIDENT:
GENERAL WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON,
OF OHIO.

HARRISON ELECTORS FOR INDIANA.
Gen. JOHN G. CLENDENAN, of Orange county.
Dr. HIRSH DECKER, of Knox.
Gen. MILTON STAPP, of Jefferson.
Mr. Enoch McCarty, of Franklin.
Mr. Asa Williams, of Wayne.
Mr. ALBERT S. WHITE, of Tippecanoe.
Gen. MARTIN G. CLARK, of Washington.
Mr. ABRAHAM P. ANDREWS, of Laporte.
Mr. A. W. MORRIS, of Marion.

J. R. Dubois, who hails from Fort Wayne, has sent us a letter, per mail, requesting us to send him blank sheets instead of printed ones, as we support Gen. Harrison. The fellow, however, forgot to pay the postage, on the letter. We are glad he is not a Harrison-man, and conceive that we have gotten rid of him, very cheap, at 18¢. We shall send him a blank sheet, as he thinks that best suited to his understanding, and have no doubt, he will find it very instructive, unless he should try to read it tergo end upwards.

Mr. Editor.—These are strange times. It has been said that politics brings us acquainted with strange bed-fellows, but I cannot stand changing my principles so often I do not know where to find the party that call themselves, "Whigs" though I am or rather was one of that party. They have left me not I, them. I supported Adams—then Clay, and why did we support them? Why sir, because they were Statesmen and Civilians. Why did we oppose Gen. Jackson? Because sir, all history had shown that it was dangerous to elevate military men to power. We thought and I still think, it was setting a dangerous precedent in this Republic to place a military Chief in the Presidency. Experience has proved it so in the case of Andrew Jackson. Witness his exercise of the Veto Power, his removal of the Deposits without law and his claiming a right to construe the Constitution, "as he understands it" and then what civil talents he has! Who writes his Messages? Is he not a dotard, and the mere dupe of the parasites who hang round his Palace? And sir, in this opinion of the total unfitness of military men for that high office, the whole Adams and Clay party concurred. Mr. Clay raised his warning voice, against the propriety of putting any Chief in the Presidential Chair, and the whole party and all its presses united in the sentiment. It was our great argument. We called the Jackson men the "Mammoth boys" and said they were carried away by their admiration of a successful soldier, and now what do I see and hear? These very men who refused to vote for Jackson because he was a military man, without civil talents, are now, going, head over heels, after Harrison, another military man, very little better qualified for civil office, than Jackson was. They have deserted their original principles and, like the Jacksonians, are hurrying, at the top of their lungs for the "Hero" the "Hero." In fact, they have gone over to the Jackson party, for none but Jacksonians can consistently support Harrison. It is indeed mortifying to me. You would not become a Jacksonian, and yet you are a Harrison-man. Now, sir, I can see no difference, in principle. I am not surprised to see Jacksonians, support Harrison; it is consistent with their nature and principles. In going for him they stand on exactly the same ground and use just the same arguments, they did for Jackson. Yet then you battled against them and now are battling with them. It is true, that some of the Jacksonians, by the influence of the office holders, are going for Van Buren, but, sir, you cannot deny it, the Jacksonians, here in the West, are more numerous than the Jackson Van Buren men.

I cannot go with you Mr. Editor. I am an original Adams and Clay man, and therefore cannot consistently support any military Chief, much less Gen. Harrison, for like Jackson, he is an old dotard, and destitute of civil talents. He is too much like Jackson in every respect. If the Whig party will desert their old principles, and join the Jacksonians, in supporting Harrison, why, I can go with them, that is all. I am sorry to see that you have become a Jacksonian, and hope you will on reflection, see that you are wrong, and haul down the Jackson—Harrison Flag. I am yours, &c. T. B. S.

Manchester, Jan. 7, 1836.

We cannot permit the above Letter of our correspondent to pass to the public, without a word of reply. We confess there is truth in some of his remarks. We acknowledge there is a good deal of the spirit of Jacksonism, in the enthusiasm and fervor, with which the People, of all political parties, are flocking to the standard of the Hero of the North West. We admit also, the great similarity, between the arguments now urged in favor of Gen. Harrison, and those which were urged in favor of Gen. Jackson, when he was a candidate for the same office. Harrison is a plain republican farmer—a patriotic brave soldier—a Western man and a friend to the West. We acknowledge these are the very reasons, for which the western people, supported Gen. Jackson, and our correspondent truly says, that in supporting Harrison, the old friends of Gen. Jackson, are acting in perfect consistency with their original and long avowed political principles. What similarity can they see, between the Hero of New Orleans and the little lawyer, of Kinderhook. The very juxtaposition of their names and titles, excites a smile. A noble gallant soldier, and a little, prim, polite lawyer—the one with a sword hung by his side, the other with a lawbook in his hand, yet they are both just alike, say the office-holders, and all who supported the one, must support the other. Just alike indeed! They are as near alike as the noble oak, which little towers erect amidst the fury of the tempest, is like the little sapling, which sprouts up, under its shade. Alike, indeed. There is as much similarity between them, as there is, between the gallant fiery Hotspur, and the— who came to him, on the battle field, "when the fight was done."

neat, trimly dressed,
"Fresh as a bridegroom, and his chin new reaped."
"He was perfumed like a Miller."
"And twist his finger and his thumb he held,
"A pounce box, which ever and anon,
"He gave his nose. It made one mad,
"To see him shine so brisk, and smell so sweet,
"And talk so like a waiting gentle woman."

Mr. Van Buren is no doubt an accomplished gentleman, a polite fashionable man, a shrewd lawyer and a subtle politician, but to compare him to the open, bold, plain, and gallant Chief of New Orleans, is to compare things which have no resemblance. It will not be strange, therefore, if, as our correspondent says, the Jackson Harrison men shall be found to be far more numerous than the Jackson, Van Buren men. There is no man, who succeeds so naturally to Gen. Jackson's popularity, as Gen. Harrison does—no man who can fill, so well, the broad space which Gen. Jackson fills, in the hearts of the People of the West.

Our correspondent says, that in hoisting the Flag of Harrison, we have become Jackson men, and like them, are blinded by military glory. He is mistaken; it is the People who have hoisted it and given its broad folds to the breeze. We are only battling, as one in their ranks, in their own cause, and under the banner which they have set up.

We regret very much, that our respectable correspondent should so far forget his own character, as to call General Harrison an "old dotard." When will the venerable Chief cease to be persecuted? After having spent so many years in our service, in various civil and military stations, the mushroom politicians, of the day, green in intellect as in experience, mock his grey hairs and call him an "old dotard." If his hairs are grey, they have become so in our service; if he has begun to feel the bodily infirmities of age, the hardships he has sustained in our defence, and the cares and responsibilities incident to his long public services have hastened and increased them.

Old men! Pioneers of the West! you who like Harrison, left your quiet homes in the old states and came to Indiana, when it was a wilderness—you, who, like him, have gone through the dangers and hardships of "the early settlements" and whose heads, like his, are now becoming white with the frosts of age, what think ye of being now called "old dotards."

The National Intelligencer, says R. B. Taney, has been nominated by the President to be Chief Justice of the U. States, and P. P. Barbour, an associate Judge, of the Supreme Court.

Mr. Clay, has again introduced into the Senate, his Land Bill.

Petitions are in circulation in this county, to have a portion of the lower end of the county, stricken off and formed into a new county. The petitions seem to meet with little opposition, so far as we have heard, but let the People throughout the county make known their wishes to our Representatives, whether for or against a new county, and they will no doubt in this, as in all other matters, bow to the will of the majority.

Our readers must excuse the barrenness of this weeks paper as regards the proceedings of Congress and the State Legislature. No little of interest has transpired, that the reader will not lose much.

RAIL ROAD REPORT.

From a hasty glance at Col. Stansbury's Rail Road Report we glean the following interesting particulars:

The Madison, Indianapolis, and Lafayette road is 146 miles long; its total cost $1,666,797 83—average cost per mile $11,416 42.

The Evansville and Vincennes road is 61 miles and a few chains long; its total cost $537,311 77—average cost per mile $8,786 77.

The Vincennes and Terre Haute road is 57 miles and a fraction in length; total cost $469,392 65—average cost per mile $8,099 63.

The Lawrenceburgh and Indianapolis road is 94 miles long; total cost $1,063,555 12—average cost per mile $11,317 50.

The Columbus and Jeffersonville road is 73 miles and a fraction in length; its total cost $21,394 dollars 80 cents—average cost per mile 2,961 dollars 65 cents.

The New Albany and Crawfordsville turnpike is 158 miles long; its total cost $28,581 dollars 25 cents—average cost per mile 4,300 dollars 64 cents.

The Vincennes and New Albany road [graduation] is 104 miles and a fraction in length; its total cost $50,697 dollars 23 cents—average cost per mile 4,300 dollars 54 cents.

From the above summary it will be perceived, that the aggregate number of miles of the above works is 685; and the total cost of completion, according to the sworn estimates of the Engineers on the different routes, is $5,538,931 dollars 77 cents. The Engineers are gentlemen of experience and integrity, and the whole exhibits the important fact, that no state in the Union is better adapted to Rail Roads than Indiana.

MAMMOTH CHEESES.—These wonderful "works of art" have, for the better accommodation of the public curiosity, been removed to No. 2 North Calvert street, nearly opposite the Museum, where they can be seen any time through the day. The great pressure of boys, &c. about the place where these mammoth Cheeses were before located, has induced the necessity of issuing tickets of admission at 124 cents one ticket admitting a lady and gentleman. The largest of this "lot" of Cheeses weighs 1400 lbs.

From the New Orleans Bulletin, Dec. 5.

SUGAR HOUSE BLOWN UP.—We understand by the arrival of the steamer Paragon, that the sugar house of Judge Winchester, in the Parish of St. James, was destroyed on Friday night, by the bursting of the boiler three of his negroes were killed, and many others badly wounded. One of the boilers was thrown to the distance of 300 yards from the house. By the explosion Mr. Winchester's brother was badly injured, but was recovering when the boat left.

Doctor Pierson's

Welch Cough Drops.

FOR CURING Coughs, Colds, Asthma and Consumptions.

THIS Medicine immediately removes difficulty of breathing, tightness or stricture across the breast, obstructions and ulcers upon the lungs, pain in the side or chest, and spitting of blood. Thousands have shortened their days by neglecting coughs and colds at their commencement, by which neglect they have often terminated in Consumption and proved fatal.

It is seldom that a case of coughs, colds, pain in the side difficulty of breathing or want of sleep arising from debility, and even Consumption, that is not relieved in a few hours—and ultimately cured by the use of three Drops. Common colds are removed in a few hours by the early use of this medicine.

CERTIFICATES.

The following interesting certificates are selected from a great number in the hands of the proprietor, and are respectfully submitted.

Mr. H. H. Reynolds—Sir:—For some time past I have prescribed Dr. Pierson's Welch Cough Drops, prepared by yourself, in cases of Coughs, Colds, pain in the side, difficulty of breathing, and other diseases of the breast and lungs, especially the Influenza, which has prevailed as an epidemic during the present winter. I have no hesitation in saying, that they stand highest among the curative means for the above disease, and as such I do cheerfully recommend them to the public.

SAMUEL TAGGART, Physician.

Byron, Feb. 28, 1835.

Mr. H. H. Reynolds—Sir:—This may certify that I am thoroughly acquainted with the above mentioned cough drops—having a knowledge of their medical qualities, and from witnessing their beneficial effects in my practice, feel myself perfectly warranted in recommending them to all persons afflicted with coughs, colds, asthma or consumption, as being the best article now before the public for such complaints.

VERNAL, Atica, Dec. 20, 1835.

Aged people who are troubled with pain in the side, Asthma, or want of sleep, arising from universal debility will find an immediate remedy in these Cough Drops. Many more certificates might be added to this sheet, but it is not deemed necessary. That this article will be sustained by an enlightened public there is no doubt. The proprietor therefore, earnestly begs a small share of their liberal patronage.

For Sale by Dr. E. Ferris, Druggist, corner of Short and Main Streets, Lawrenceburgh, Ia.
