"I just sat," she told investigators when they asked her how she spent her time.

She has just been taken to a school where there are other children and heard a chorus of seventy-five. She had never heard singing before. Shown a picture of a dog, she called it "horse." She has just received her first doll and is immensely pleased.

Her father is a paver employed by the department of highways.

DOCTOR KILLED BY EX-CONVICT

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Search for an ex-convict in connection with the brutal murder of Dr. Jack Hanania, a young dentist, was started Saturday afternoon by the police, following the finding of the body on the floor of Hanania's office by his father. The police believe the crime was prompted by revenge. The name of the ex-convict is being withheld.

The man for whom detectives are searching came to the United States with Hanania's parents about eight years ago. In 1913 he was sentenced to Sing Sing for seven years after a stabbing attack which resulted when Miss Rose Falcon, a cousin of the murdered dentist, refused to return his affections.

Today he applied at the young dentist's office, saying he had a toothache. He was ushered into a waiting room, where two young women were waiting. When a patient left the murdered dentist's office the former convict went in and shortly afterward the young women testified they heard the crunching blows of the hatchet and ran hysterically to the door of the apartment to notify the agent father.

A half completed recommendation, believed to have been asked for as a ruse by the former convict, was found on the floor beside the dead man, who was apparently in the act of writing it when the attack was made.

Nation Turns Back on Beggar Booze

They pointed out that the house was two-thirds dry and the senate even more dry, and that no legislation looking toward a wet spell has any chance of life.

CONTINUE PROBE OF SUGAR SALES

Investigators to Make Purchases at Every Store.

Investigations of reported sales by some Indianapolis grocers of beet sugar at cane sugar prices will be continued to determine whether grocers are persisting in the practice, Stanley Wyckoff, Indiana fair price commissioner, said Saturday. He said investigators will visit and make purchases at each store in the city. Reports of this alleged practice of Indianapolis grocers are being investigated by Charles P. Tighe, special agent for Indiana of the bureau of investigation of the United States department of justice.

Another carload of cane sugar arrived today and was distributed at a wholesale price of $17.20 a hundred pounds. Mr. Wyckoff predicted that sugar conditions will be "fairly good" in Indianapolis by Feb. 1. He said he expects increased shipments and that many wholesalers have bought heavily and are expecting shipments between Jan. 25 and Feb. 1.

Mr. Wyckoff said that reports published yesterday of the practice of grocers in selling beet sugar at cane sugar prices has caused many persons to bring sugar to his office to determine whether it was cane or beet sugar.

He said he will encourage this practice and that he believes if households will keep a check on the grocers the grocers will not attempt to sell cheap sugar at high prices.

Mr. Wyckoff is continuing to enforce the ruling that purchasers of sugar shall not be required to purchase merchandise, an investigator on the city market found three stands at which combination sales were being made. The sales were stopped.

What One Woman Told Another About Headaches

"I've completely conquered my headaches and nervous spells. The least mental excitement used to leave me in a terrible state of nerves. House work wore me out. Parties bored me dreadfully. I was never sure of myself. During a particularly trying time for me, I was urged to try a glass of Celery-Vesce. One teaspoonful in a third glass of water fills the glass with a foamy drink that is extremely pleasant to take and almost miraculous in its effect. A single glass promptly drives away the headache, soothes the nerves and straightens out indigestion and sour stomach. Instead of stupefying like most remedies, it is positively exhilarating. It contains no harmful or habit forming drugs but has an ever welcome taste and is immediate in its soothing, bracing effect—leaves no nauseating after effect. I always keep a bottle handy because someone in the family is always having headaches. Celery-Vesce always brings prompt relief."

Celery-Vesce is sold by leading druggists in 100, 250, 500 and 1,000 bottles. It has been on the market over 25 years, yet many people have never tried it. If you are one of these, order a bottle from your druggist today. He either has it now or can get it for you quickly. If you wish, we will send you a free trial bottle upon receipt of your name and address. Write Friggle Chemical Co., Dept. 14 Indianapolis, Ind.
