Canfield Looms Up in Fourth District

Special to The Times.
BATESVILLE, Ind., March 12.—Announcement of the candidacy of Harry C. Canfield for the nomination for congressman from the Fourth district has created considerable enthusiasm in this section. He is a democrat.

Canfield's supporters, though being organized in every corner of the district and preparations are being made to set forth the qualifications of Mr. Canfield upon which he bases his claim for the support of the democrats. Mr. Canfield's aggressiveness, his capacity and willingness for hard work coupled with his sympathy with the cause of the farmer. (Mr. Canfield was born and reared on a farm in Dearborn county, as also his desire to render a service to the small business man and the waggoner, stamp him the ideal man to bring about the district's return to the democratic column.

Labor Vital Issue, Cummins Declares

CHICAGO, March 12.—"The labor question will be of supreme importance in the coming presidential campaign, even overshadowing the country's foreign problems," Senator Cummins, Iowa, declared in an address before delegates to the National Farm Bureau meeting here. He is staying here. He advocated the formation of a tribunal to adjust labor-disputes in industries vital to the public.

TODAY'S MOVIES

ALHAMBRA—Elsie Ferguson in "His House in Order." Bert Washburn in "The Six Best Celars." Bert Washburn in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." The insert is that of Jack, a dog, which is Chad's pal in the story. This well-produced and acted picture is at the Circle all this week.

KILLED BY ELECTRIC WIRE.

DEFIANCE, O., March 12—Adolph 21, son of former Sheriff John P. Elser, was electrocuted when he came in contact with a wire on the Elser premises.

REAL SIGN OF SPRING: FOLLIES COMES NEXT WEEK

'Up in Mabel's Room' at Murat—Ferguson Acts Well at Alhambra—Washburn at Isis

JACK PICKFORD

The robin is no longer the first sign of spring. There are some people who judge the coming of spring by the arrival of Ziegfeld Follies in town.

Spring must be here, then, as the Follies will hold forth all next week at English's, beginning Monday night.

The advanced Follies is said to be the largest in the history of English's for this engagement.

The Follies comes direct to Indianapolis from the Chicago run. Marlynn Miller is one of the real reasons for the popularity of the Follies. She takes part in a ballet written for her by Victor Herbert.

Also there will be Eddie Cantor, Bert Williams, John Steel, Doris LeVant, and many others.

Mabel's room in the Follies continues to hold the center of the stage at the Murat. "Up in Mabel's Room" will complete its engagement at the Murat with a matinee and a night performance Saturday.

It is never too late to say something good about a fellow. In the rush of time we did not say as much as we wanted to about Eddie Buzzell and Peggy Parker in "A Will and a Way" at Keith's this week. Here is a team that has lots of class and a sure enough Kennedy punch that is delightful. They know how to put over their numbers.

Minstrels will never lose their appeal, and this is demonstrated by the exceedingly well-acted Arthur Deuling in his minstrel act at the Broadway this week. He sings a combination of the old-time successes.

Crane family appear to be gathering in most of the theaters at the Rialto this week. This is the result that the people talk about when they leave the theater. That's a good sign.

"My Little Lamb" is one of the popular songs rendered by Charles Levine this week at the Park with "Sweetie Girls." He has another song in "Hisco Dippy Too." Max Field is the comedian.

DOLLY WILSON.

Remember Dolly Wilson? Well, if you were a patron of local picture houses some few years ago when "amateur night" was all the rage you are bound to recall Dolly—the little blonde, curly headed girl who nearly always carried off first prize.

Dolly has grown up now. She is scoring a hit at the Lyric this week.

Florence Billings will complete her engagement at the Isis with the Saturday showings of "Wit Wins." Opening Sunday will be Mary MacLaren in "Bonnie Bonnie Lassie."

Helen Gibson in "Daring Danger" and

VIVIAN ALLEN

Harry Carey in "The Rider of the Law" remains at the Regent up to and including Saturday night showings.

Mary Miles Minter is the main attraction this week at the Colonial in "Judy of Rogues' Harbor." Underlined for Sunday is Bert Lytell in "The Right of Way."

THE ISIS.

A prohibition comedy, "The Six Best Cellars," opened a three-day engagement Thursday at the Isis.

Bryan Washburn plays the lead. It is a comedy with a little drama.

The comedy ends with Bryan stepping out of his character, pointing his finger squarely at the audience and asks him what he would do if he was in the same fix.

As said before in this space, "The Six Best Cellars" is satisfactory entertainment.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE.

Constance Talmadge is forced to glide down a fire escape to get a square deal in "Two Weeks."

Alma Rubens takes the part of a chess girl. She is in her tiny suit trying to escape from a bill collector, when a wealthy young clubman calls. She knows this means a good dinner and she is right.

So she climbs on the fire escape and gets the good dinner.

To be seen at Mr. Smith's.

ELSIE FERGUSON.

Elsie Ferguson as a classic dancer.

That is what she is in "His House in Order."

This unusual effect is obtained in the beginning of the film and shows the imagination of the young girl, Nina.

The story of "His House in Order" concerns the matrimonial troubles of Nina and her husband, Elmer Jason, M. P.

Jason has the abominable habit of comparing Nina to his first wife, Anna.

No, Nina is not jealous, Anna is dead, but as has been said, comparisons are odious.

Opinion: Satisfactory character work by Miss Ferguson; a good story; an excellent cast.

and he is not hard to dispense, he returns with words of praise for his first

But he learns that Anna had not been the wonder that he had idolized.

No, Nina is not jealous, Anna is dead, but as has been said, comparisons are odious.

Opinion: Satisfactory character work by Miss Ferguson; a good story; an excellent cast.
