

WYCKOFF HITS UNFAIR PRICING

Places Merchants on Honor in Fight Against Prices.

The convention of the Indiana Retail Dry Goods association ended at the Claypool hotel with a round-table discussion of what constitutes profiteering. Stanley Wyckoff, fair price commissioner, gave us an illustration a man who stocked up for speculative purposes and sold his goods months later at an excessive price.

He was asked if a business man who bought ahead of the market, anticipating a rise in prices, should not be permitted to sell at replacement value, realizing upon his foresight.

Mr. Wyckoff said that no penalty should be attached to foresight so long as the dealer sold his goods at replacement value without excessive profit.

Wyckoff talked against quotation of comparative prices in marked-down sales of goods.

He declared Indiana was ahead of other states in the matter of fair prices and said there had been few cases of profiteering in Indiana, which had been dealt with severely.

The convention ended last evening.

DOG HILL PARAGRAPHS

Columbus Alspach's chimney has begun to lean away from his house, and he will not fix it until the English sparrows get through building.

The manager of the Tickville opera house added quite a lot of pleasing and deceptive realism to an emotional picture drama Saturday night, as he made the moving picture actress sigh out loud by the use of a wheezy bellow behind the curtain.

Stacy Hicks set out right early Sunday afternoon to call on Miss Flutie Belcher, but just before he got there his nerve went back on him. Sometimes the bravest mule gets scared at the frailest is a source of satisfaction to people who are anxious to have fresh vegetables as early in the season as possible.

Cabbage, cauliflower, head lettuce, tomato, pepper, sweet potato plants, radishes and lettuce may all be grown in a hotbed and the plants transplanted when the outdoor soil is prime for germinating the seeds—with the result that you'll have fresh vegetables a month to six weeks earlier.

Doubtless many people who utilize BABY FARMS from year to year are already working on their hotbeds, so that plants will be ready for early transplanting.

By all means PLANT A GARDEN—PLAN FOR IT NOW—PLANT IT ON YOUR OWN SOIL. IT'LL HAVE A double value. STERLING FARMS (our 15th addition) soil is rich—payments easy. Call us for details. Do it NOW.
