

LIBERTY BOND SALES KEEP UP DESPITE SLUMP

Money Demand and High Rate Cause, Investment Broker Says.

HOLDS RELIEF CERTAIN

Despite the low prices of Liberty bonds and the apparent glutted condition of the big markets with the government securities, Indiana investors are buying lots of bonds at discount, Chester M. Jewett of Haulsen & Jewett, investment and securities brokers, said today.

Nearly all Liberty bonds that have been sold in Indiana by original subscribers have remained in the market and have been sold to other investors, Mr. Jewett said.

Besides absorbing all bonds on the local market Indiana investors have bought millions in bonds from the larger markets.

HIGH CALL MONEY CAUSE OF SELLING.

"The law of supply and demand, as exercised in the Liberty bonds at this time, is influenced largely by the high rate on call and time money," said Mr. Jewett. "The bulk of the Liberty loans was raised by selling investors who loaned their credit to the government."

"At the close of the war many corporations wanted to expand business, and to do so had to have money."

"The money rate rose and investors and business operators found that they could raise money more cheaply by selling their bonds at a discount than they could by borrowing."

"That, I think, has been responsible for the low quotations on bonds, not the general extravagance of wage earners and small investors."

QUOTATIONS SURE TO BE INCREASED.

"Inevitably the quotations on bonds must rise sometime, and I think it will come about through two things:

"First, the rate on call money and time money must recede from its present high level, and second, the government must go into the open market and retire additional bonds."

"When the money market resumes its normal level bonds will be much sought after by conservative investors and the price will go up."

"There is nothing remarkable about the present low price of bonds."

"The remarkable thing is that they have not gone lower."

"The American public has done well in maintaining the present price."

Detour? Where? Just Detour!

The above is a reproduction of a road sign with which motorists in Marion county have become very familiar recently.

Note the explicit manner in which it tells the motorist just how he may drive in order to get to wherever he is intending to go.

After starting out on a twenty-mile drive in Marion county and encountering six or eight of these signs nearly any driver can tell you that when you approach Indianapolis you should have an extra tank of gasoline and an unlimited amount of patience.

So equipped you will eventually get into the city that welcomes your coming. But do not be afraid to ask questions. Of course, it is part of the law of the state that when a contractor closes a road he shall mark the detour plainly for the benefit of those tourists who may not have lived in the neighborhood all their lives.

But what's the law among friends? If there is no direction as to detour, use your own judgment.

It probably will not be half as bad as the road on which you are expected to travel while the real road is closed.

Installation of officers will take place at the annual meeting of Post B, Indiana Division, T. P. A., at the club rooms, 436 Indiana Pythian building, Saturday night at 8 o'clock. Matters to be presented to the state convention, May 14 and 15, will be discussed.

Revival services will be started at the Emmanuel Baptist church, Sunday.

Earl C. Hartman, who served in the war as an aviator, and Miss Cora O. Nay, both of Boone county, were married yesterday by Rev. Frank C. Huston, 30 West Ohio street.

Offices of the Minneapolis & St. Louis railway will be opened April 1 at 328 Merchants bank building, with J. T. Graffis in charge as general agent of the freight department.

Detectives today are searching for John Dardy, 26, negro, alleged to have stabbed Vena Cherry, negro, 148 South West street. Youth Arrested Here as Terre Haute Thief

William Kelly, 18, arrested in this city Thursday night, will be taken to Terre Haute today to answer the charge of robbery.

Motor Police Drinkut and Stevens met an interurban car west of the city and arrested Kelly following a telephone call from Terre Haute police that a man who held up a grocer was on the car.

A loaded revolver and $45, said to have been taken from the grocer, were in Kelly's pocket, according to the police, who also say the youth confessed the robbery.

Kelly rooms at 701 North Liberty street, Indianapolis, but his parents live at 329 Crawford street, Terre Haute.

Plans for the reception of delegates were made yesterday at a meeting of the committee, of which J. H. Lederer, general manager of The Times, is chairman, at the Chamber of Commerce.

All who attend the convention next June will be entertained with a series of automobile trips to various points of interest in the city.

Members of the committee attending the meeting were Chairman Lederer, Robert Sorogin, Bert O'Leary, Capt. Claude F. Johnson of the Indianapolis police department, James P. Trotter, James H. Lowry, Fred Mills, executive secretary of the board in charge of general arrangements, and John Orman of the Indianapolis Automobile Trade association.

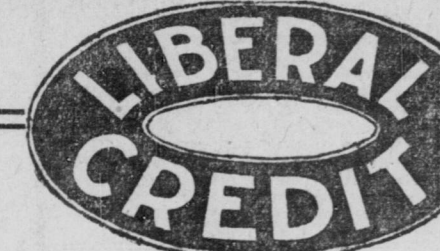

Hubby Must Work So Wife Can Keep Up

CHICAGO, March 26.—The maintenance of his wife "in the style she is accustomed to" is paramount to his life and the fact that he is heir to $1,500,000, Master in Chancery Holden ruled in ordering John Arthur Farwell to go to work today.

In hearing the maintenance suit of Mrs. Loretta Farwell, Master Holden reported her a woman of extravagant habits, but ordered her husband to pay alimony of $1,500 annually.

The court indicated $15,000 said to have been spent by Mrs. Farwell in six months, was excessive.
