

SECRET BARED BY AUTHOR OF 'THREE WEEKS'

For Glyn Says She Wrote
Sensational Novel to Arouse English.

WEDNESS A GRIEVANCE

LONDON, March 31.—Ellnor Glyn has answered the question: "Why I wrote 'Three Weeks'." In the Grand magazine she defends the morality of her works and explains that she wrote "Three Weeks" for the amusement of the Englishman, because, she says, the Englishman is incapable of a great and overpowering passion.

"The churning of souls in the agonies of the four awful years must have awakened the minds of young men of the so that there must not be a generation of unthinking ones now."

Thirteen years ago Paul was the most young clean Englishman. He often wondered what such a life would become if awakened by a love, and inspired by a woman of great temperament.

AND DIFFERS IN LATIN COUNTRIES.
In Latin countries there have been countless cases of supreme passionate loves, which have made history—but in England this is very rare.

"I was going to say I could remember not a single case."

"I used to wonder if it was because Englishmen were naturally cold, or because English women were not capable of inspiring those great passions."

"And finally the vision of 'Three Weeks' came to me suddenly in the autumn of 1906, and I retired to the pavilion of my garden where I used to write in those days and began."

"It seemed as though some spirit from beyond was guiding me—I wrote breathlessly for hours and hours until the end."

She then turns to the popular attitude toward her works, and speaking of the new heroine of "Three Weeks" writes: "The reason she has been condemned is because in England and America we have always to eliminate the red out of the spectrum passion and anything to do with the physical must always be ignored and taboo."

"Our whole attitude in these countries is an unconscious view of God's scheme of things."

things... of his plan to keep the earth populated.

"It does not seem to have struck us that it would be more effective and emotional to try and imitate physical emotion and fall in with God's meaning to the highest."

Leap Year Offer No Joke, Says Bill

SPOKANE, March 31.—A gentleman who says his name is "Bill" is in a fix here. He wants advice. A girl went to a leap year party. A girl proposed to him. Bill thought she was joking and accepted. Now she says she wasn't spoofing and Bill loves her. Wadde-know-about-that? Bill wants to know, also, Wad'll-I-do-about-it?

'Indecency' in Paris Goes in New York

PARIS, March 31.—There was a riot in the art exposition of the "dependants" when Sculptor Brancusi arrived and discovered that his bust of the Princess X had been removed by the authorities on the ground that it was indecent.

"But I showed it in New York and the public was delighted," exulted Brancusi.

He produced some press clippings to prove his assertions and the Princess X went back to her pedestal.

Mince Pie Bears Saws for Prisoner

DENVER, March 31.—Police are still searching for a pretty young girl who left a mince pie with a jigsaw saw in the city jail here to be given to her.

Bershy, 20-year-old burglar, who is in jail for trial.

When the young lady called at the city jail she was informed that it was necessary for her to secure a permit from the office of the chief of police before seeing Bershy. She asked a jailer to keep the pie until she could secure the permit. Becoming suspicious when she failed to return, the jailer opened the pie and discovered a full assortment of hacksaws and files, evidently to be used by Bershy in escaping his way to freedom.

SHIPPERS PLAN GREAT FLEET

12,000,000-Ton Merchant Marine Aim for America.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31.—An American merchant marine of 12,000,000 tons, or about 30 per cent of the world's commercial shipping, within three years is the aim toward which shipping authorities are striving, it is indicated here.

The shipping would be all good boats adaptable to modern trade and would not include the smaller coastwise ships.

The present shipping board will turn out 11,500,000 tons by 1921, John H. Roser, former director of operations for the emergency fleet corporation, estimated.

With this vast tonnage in sight Senator Wesley Jones of Washington, chairman of the senate commerce committee, with members of the committee is seeking to frame constructive legislation which will utilize this asset to the fullest extent under the American flag.

The proposed program has in view the establishment of advantageous routes to South American ports, the West Indies and the Caribbean, besides many new lines.

Shipping authorities have revealed to congress the extent to which the big maritime interests of the world are racing for supremacy in the general disturbance due to the war.

At present, it is said, with nearly the same tonnage on the seas as in 1913, the service is only 50 per cent of what it was in pre-war days.

The total shipping in the world today is 40,000,000 deadweight tons, it is said, and the world will need 50,000,000 tons when the full after-the-war trade boom sets in.

At present, it is admitted, the shipping of the world, and of the United States in particular, is in a transitory stage. It is hoped to tide over this period until normal conditions return, which, experts predict, will be soon.

The institution at present has twelve rooms and plans are under way to enlarge it at an early date.
