Housewives Plan Boycott to Halt Rising Prices.

Potatoes are riding for a fall in Indianapolis, according to the Housewives' league.

Because of the prices being asked the housewives are planning on a systematic boycott of "spuds."

Wednesday the league leaders will meet at the Chamber of Commerce, when plans will be laid to jolt the prices.

It is expected the women will make a telephone and house-to-house canvass which will result in a tremendous reduction in the consumption of potatoes. The women at the same time will prepare a list of substitutes to be used on the table in place of "spuds."

An inspection of the storage houses reveals that there is only a small supply of potatoes in the city.

PUSS IN BOOTS JR.

By DAVID CORY.

CHAPTER VII.

When Puss Junior awoke the next morning—for he had fallen asleep in the story, you remember, beside the silver stream that led to the Castle of my Lord of Carabas, where his famous father was Seneschal—he rubbed his eyes and then, after curling his whiskers, he pulled on his red-topped boots and looked about him for something to eat. But there was nothing in sight for breakfast except a few red berries on a bush and cats, you know, don't eat berries.

So he gave a sigh and started off hungry, but still determined to find father. And by and by he came to a small village and right in front of the grocery store stood Handy Pandy. Now Handy Pandy, Jack-o'-Lantern, loves most any kind of candy. He's always near the grocery shops where they sell fresh lollipops.

But this particular morning, Handy Pandy didn't have a cent. No, sir! He had spent all his money, so all he could do was to look at the big wooden box full of "licious lollipops and wish he had one. And when Puss saw him standing there, wistfully eyeing the candy, our generous little traveler took a penny out of his pocket and bought a lollipop for him.

And then he bought a saucer of cream for himself and a piece of cake and after that he didn't feel hungry at all, so he said goodby and continued on his journey. And by and by, all of a sudden, just as he turned to his right, he saw the castle of my Lord of Carabas.

"Hurrah! Hurrah!" he shouted and throwing up his cap he started off at a run, and pretty soon he was knocking at the drawbridge. And then in another few

The Aftermath of Flu

This is No. 1 of a series of advertisements, prepared by a competent physician, explaining how certain diseases which attack the air passages—such as Pneumonia, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Measles or even a long continued Cold—often leave these organs in an inflamed, congested state, thus affording a favorable foothold for invading germs. And how Vick's Vapo-Rub may be of value in this condition.

Your doctor will impress upon you that following recovery from the active stage of influenza, there often remains an inflamed, congested condition of the air passages—throat, larynx, bronchial tubes and lungs.

Frequently the cough hangs on—soreness of the chest persists—you take cold easily and there may be obstinate catarrh. This condition is slow to clear up and if neglected may favor the development of pneumonia, or later on, serious disease of the lungs.

Such cases should continue under the care of their physician—should exercise moderately in the open air—eat plenty of wholesome food—avoid overwork and sudden chills.

Nightly applications of Vick's Vapo-Rub may help nature to complete the process of repair. Because Vick's acts locally by stimulation thru the skin to draw out the inflammation, attract the blood away from the congested spots and relieve the cough. In addition, the medicinal ingredients of Vick's are vaporized by the body heat. These vapors are breathed in at night long, thus bringing the medication to bear directly upon the inflamed areas.

Vicks should be rubbed in over the throat and chest until the skin is red—then spread on thickly and covered with hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, swallow a small bit of Vick's the size of a pea.

Samples to new users will be sent free on request to the Vick Chemical Company, 231 Broad Street, Greensboro, N. C.

Three Things Plea Timeliness
So We Give Word to Each

Cretonne for Hangings

The refreshing of one's home is perhaps more noticeable in the curtains and draperies than in any other medium of decoration. And though heavy silk and velvets are appropriate for winter, spring must not be met with anything but airy curtaining and gay, cherry cretonnes that swing on every fresh breeze.

New ones have come to us at the remarkable pricings of 35c and 50c the yard—really astounding values. It seems that some of the old French court idea has been reproduced in the colorings and flower-filled vase patterns. One such has a French blue ground printed in rose and beige colorings.

Other new cretonnes, priced differently, of course, are the handdone Batik patterns—real importations, and only $2 the yard—handsome irregular-latticed effects, great plumaged birds in brilliant colorings, and—well, a whole department of different patterns would at least require a whole section of the paper to describe them all!

Willow and Hard Maple Furniture

Pussy willow, titwillow—and now willow furniture—all express the lyric of existence—flower, song and restful ease!

Willow chairs and rockers, with or without pockets, $12.50 to $19.00. Extensions of willow at $12.50.

Willow chaise lounges shown at $24.00, $30.00 and $32.50.

Willow tables for porch and sunroom at $14.50.

Willow couches priced at $50.00.

Hard maple is attractive in self-tone, but in jade or French blue, coral or canary it's irresistible. At extra charge, we paint the maple furniture that you may buy here. The following prices are for natural maple only.

Hard maple straight chairs and rockers at $5.00, $5.50, $6.00 and $7.50.
