Democrats Mourn Loss of Sullivan

CHICAGO, April 15.—Millionaires, politicians, bankers, statesmen and just plain politicians joined today in expressions of sympathy over the death of Roger C. Sullivan, financier and politician, who rose from farm hand to political boss of his state.

Sullivan died late yesterday as a result of a sudden attack of heart failure, superinduced by bronchial pneumonia.

He had been in failing health for several months.

Funeral services will be held Saturday.

Sullivan successfully led the Illinois democrats.

There was general mourning throughout the west side, for it was in that part of the city that Sullivan was loved best.

Sullivan, who was 59, was born at Belvidere, Ill., and as a boy worked as a farm hand for $8 a month.

It is estimated he was worth $10,000,000.

POLITICIAN IS FREED BY SPAN WITHOUT TRIAL

Deputy Prosecutor Assumes Role of City Judge and Protects Arrested Man.

Deputy Prosecutor Ralph Span is still conducting his own "private court" at police headquarters in direct contravention of the law, it became known today.

Span assumed the role of city judge in his office, across the corridor from the city courtroom, yesterday morning when he saved William Leibold, a deputy sheriff and republican candidate for the nomination for state representative, from the necessity of appearing on a motor traffic violation charge.

At the same time there was juggling of the turnkey's slate to keep Leibold's name from appearing on it with other prisoners.

"Go home and go to bed—Pritchard won't stick Leibold anyway," Span is said to have told Patrolman Watts, one of the arresting officers, when he appeared to swear to the affidavit.

Span then stamped "discharged" across the affidavit and that was all there was to the case.

Judge Walter Pritchard of city court had no knowledge of Span's procedure, he says.

Leibold was arrested in front of 730 North Illinois street at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday morning when Patrolmen Watts and State claim he was driving his automobile without lights.

They ordered him to appear in city court in the morning and a slip bearing his name and the charge to be preferred against him was submitted to the turnkey.

The name did not appear on the slate. Not until this morning when disposition of the case was recorded did it appear.

APPROACHES IN UNLIGHTED MACHINE.

The patrolmen were on their beats when they saw Leibold approaching in the unlighted machine, a small roadster.

They say there were no lights on the front of the car and that the tail light was out.

Leibold was halted and questioned. He told the patrolmen the lighting system of his car was out of order.

When Watts and State continued their questioning, Leibold, they say, handed them a card which carried the information that he was a republican candidate for office.

Then he demanded to know why he should be stopped, the patrolmen assert.

He was then told that he must appear in city court the same as any other traffic law offender.

At this, the patrolmen assert, Leibold became abusive and told them that he would "get their jobs."

It is possible that he forgot that the "good government" administration announced some time ago that police jobs were no longer political ones and that the department is now based on efficiency.

In spite of the alleged threats both officers still have their jobs today.

Leibold gave his address at 1030 North Meridian street, which address does not appear in the city directory.

Leibold told the police the automobile

he was driving was owned by "Mr. Smith."

Some time ago a number of cases handled in a similar manner by Deputy Prosecutor Span were called to the attention of Judge Pritchard and for a time the practice was abandoned.

"I never heard of the case," said Judge Pritchard, who is ill at his home today.

Span admitted he had dismissed the charge against Leibold.

"Leibold and a friend came into my office and told me the story," Span said.

"Leibold told me that his lights had 'jiggled' out and that he could not repair them himself."

"Patrolman Watts admitted Leibold had told him this was why his machine was unlighted and I, acting for the state, disposed of it."

Span asserted his action was based on "motion of the state."

DOG HILL PARAGRAPHS

A postmaster has to be a mighty hard-headed person with a stern backbone to stand up and say "no" in a firm manner, no matter where the chips may fall, as a lot of times he has to look a fair young lady in the face and break the news to her that the letter did not come, no matter if the fellow did tell her he was going to write it.

Yam Sims is constantly dwindling away. He used to have several warts and now he has only two left.

The Dog Hill preacher has a new pair of pants and now comes out from behind the stand during his sermon.

Judge Holds Traffic Law Too Drastic

"If we fine one man under this law we will have to fine every owner of a pumping station on public property in town," said Judge Walter Pritchard of the city court in discussing the city ordinance regarding obstruction of highways.

Gusta Deepe, salesman, was fined $10 and costs in city court yesterday afternoon on a charge of violating the regulations by installing a pumping station in front of 3701 Massachusetts avenue for Abraham Lazars without having a proper inspection made.
