

FT. HARRISON EDUCATIONAL CENTER NOW

Books Play Important Part in Military and Vocational Training.

HIRE CIVILIAN TUTORS

Fort Benjamin Harrison has become an educational center, as well as a military training station.

New methods are being used in building the new army of regulars.

Vocational and educational training has taken its place along with military training at the army post.

Under recent authority of congress and under direction of Col. Edward E. Hatch, commanding officer at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, the day's training has been divided into the following classes: Military during the morning, educational and vocational during the afternoon, voluntary athletics on Saturday afternoons and evenings, and entertainment and recreation after retreat.

SUNDAYS GIVE CHANCE FOR WORSHIP.

Religious services are held on Sundays. A modern soldier's duties call for at least a grammar school education, according to Col. Hatch.

The basic educational course comprises penmanship, arithmetic, geography, civics, English, spelling, United States history and elementary science.

The advanced course includes mathematics, general history and modern languages.

There are seventeen different departments in vocational training, from which a soldier can select a line of work to which he is suited.

The courses include mechanics, building, printing, business, agriculture and other subjects.

CIVILIAN INSTRUCTORS ARE EMPLOYED.

Civilian instructors and army officers direct the educational and vocational work.

The new plan of development for soldiers is not merely to make good soldiers, but also to make the service attractive to desirable men, to spread the spirit of Americanism by using American principles, combatting illiteracy and making good citizens out of foreigners and to bind the civil and military closer together.

Col. Hatch believes the military and educational training offers special inducements to the young men of Indiana.

GIRL WILL BARE MURDER STORY

and a voice of a man said pleadingly, "Oh, Mabel, get a doctor, get a doctor."

"Then I heard more groans coming from the room," the witness said.

MRS. GOSSETT AT RAPT ATTENTION.

While Mrs. Parker apparently reluctantly told her story, Mrs. Gossett leaned forward with her right hand supporting her chin.

The little woman charged with murder was unmoved as Mrs. Parker repeated the incidents preceding the discovery of the stabber.

Mrs. Parker did not testify at the city court hearing and was not obtained as a witness for the state until she was served with papers summoning her into court.

The state introduced Dr. George R. Christian, chief deputy coroner, who conducted the autopsy on the body of the dead man.

William LaRue, manager of the Chalfont apartments, 300 North Pennsylvania street, testified that Mrs. Gossett came to his room early on the morning of Dec. 26 and asked him to summon a doctor because her husband "was very ill."

TELLS OF DOCTOR'S ORDER IN CASE.

He called Dr. James H. Taylor of the Blumhagen apartments, who later told Mr. LaRue that "it was a stabbing affair and was a case for the city hospital," according to LaRue.

LaRue testified that he entered the Gossett's apartment and saw Gossett, stripped of all clothing, on a bed.

Gossett, according to the apartment manager, said that he was attacked by a man while on the way home.

Dr. Taylor took the stand and substantiated the testimony of LaRue.

LaRue identified the man's shirt and a union suit, both stained with blood, as the ones he saw on the floor of the Gossett room.

LaRue also testified to finding a butcher knife, a large knife, on the roof directly under the window of the bathroom near the Gossett apartment.

As the knife, the blood stained union suit and shirt were introduced, Mrs. Gossett moved forward in her seat.

Her right hand slowly touched her right cheek as she gazed upon the reminder of the tragedy.

Police Officer Clarence Golder testified of going to the Gossett apartment and aiding in removing Gossett to the city hospital and of taking Mrs. Gossett to headquarters for examination.

Golder testified that he noticed nothing unusual in the room which would indicate that there had been a violent struggle.

The state was scheduled to complete the introduction of evidence today.

According to the police, Mrs. Gossett claimed that she became frightened and started crying when her husband entered bleeding from his wounds.

The state claims that Mrs. Gossett afterward made a confession in which she admitted stabbing her husband in self-defense.

Farmers Befriend Prairie Chickens

FARGO, N. D., April 17.—Thousands of prairie chickens in this state were enabled to live through the past winter only by being fed by farmers.

Spaces about 100 feet square were kept clear of snow and grain screenings scattered there daily for the wild fowl.

The prairie chicken is one of the best friends of the North Dakota farmer. It is a known fact that it eats many times its weight in insects.

Kin of Shakespeare Dies in Rhode Island

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 17.—At the age of 82 John Dolbey, direct descendant of William Shakespeare, died here in the Home for Aged Men and Couples.

He is survived by his wife, who is also an inmate of the institution.

For twenty-five years he has been a shoemaker in this city.

He fought with the British during the Sepoy mutiny in India.

Composer of 'Dixie' in Hall of Fame

NEW YORK, April 17.—The name of Daniel Decatur Emmett, composer of the Confederate war song, "Dixie," has been placed in nomination for election to the hall of fame of New York university, it was announced.

Mr. Emmett, who also was an author and actor, is credited with having organized in 1845 the first negro minstrel show in New York.
