

W. C. A. TO GIVE MONTHLY SHOWS

First of Series to Be Held Wednesday Evening.

The first of a series of monthly entertainments for members of the Young Women's Christian association, will be given Wednesday at 8 o'clock in Hollenbeck hall.

These entertainments will be under the direction of the membership and social departments.

Mrs. Fred Hoke is chairman of the membership committee and Mrs. Harry Griffith of the social committee.

The dramatic art class of the association, of which Miss Alberta Yacovine is the instructor, will be responsible for this first program.

They will repeat the playlet "Blowing Bubbles," which was so cleverly given during "Come and See" week that many requests have been made to have it repeated.

In the cast are Miss Leora Welmer, Miss Margaret Cuthbert, Miss William Smith, Miss Genevieve Zik, Mrs. Della Bantz and Mr. Leonard Echols.

Antipomene will follow the play, entitled "Pierrot's Serenade."

The part of Pierrot will be taken by Miss Frances Miller, Columbine by Miss Bonnie Gerkin, Harlequin by Miss Alice Carr and Pierrette by Miss Margaret Negley.

The committee has invited the members of the Federation of Industrial Clubs and their mothers, who will be attending the mother and daughter dinner of the federation, to be their special guests.

Admission to the play will be by membership card only except that members may bring guests with them.

A profusion of spring flowers, delicious food and an abundance of it, are in store for those who attend the May morning breakfast on Saturday morning, May 1. Arrangements have been made to begin serving at 8:30 for the benefit of those who must be at work early and to continue serving until 9.

A new ruling has been made by the physical education department to the effect that all persons using the pool will be required to wear suits furnished by the association. No extra charge will be made. The poor dyes used in bathing suits have made this step necessary. All the association suits have been boiled several times in order to remove the dye as the dye is so possible, and will be boiled each time they are used. As the association can not obtain sufficient coal to heat the water in the large pool, only the small pool is used until the coal shortage is relieved.

The Federation of Industrial clubs will have charge of refreshments at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. An interesting program has been planned, including several musical numbers and an informal talk by Mrs. Will Adams. Mrs. Adams' subject is "The Body, the Living Temple of God."

Week's Club Index
Century Club—Tuesday night in the Metropolitan School of Music. Edward N. Cane will talk on "Victor Hugo's Masterpiece." Members may bring guests.

Home Economics Club—Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. E. E. Feger, 104 East Maple road. Mrs. E. E. Thompson will give a review of lesson to on milk. Mrs. J. W. Burchinal will give the demonstration. Mrs. Albert Smith will talk on "Retouching the House."

Inter Nos Club—Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Ralph Goldrick, 114 Berkeley road. Mrs. R. W. Showalter will talk on "American Art," after which there will be a general discussion, led by Mrs. G. Tomlinson.

Irrigation Tuesday Club—Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. George Moore, 212 Downer avenue. Mrs. William Forsyth will talk on "A Year of Peace in Mrs. G. Moore's Home." Mrs. O. Neier will speak on "Current History."

Heal Study Club—Tuesday at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. D. F. Billingsly will give current events. Mrs. Fred Bala will talk on "Glimpses of Life in Colonial Virginia." Mrs. Franklin McCray will give for her topic "The Literature of the Bible."

Magazine Club—Saturday with Mrs. F. M. Montgomery, 1211 North New Jersey street. Mrs. M. E. Perline and Mrs. W. H. Blodgett will be the assisting hostesses. Mrs. Demarecus Brown will talk on "Some Modern Italian Writers." Members may bring one guest.

Monday Club—Observance of twenty-first anniversary Tuesday afternoon in the Rainbow room of the Severin hotel. A musical program will be given by Miss Jenn McCormick, contralto, and Miss Margaret Seemiller, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Herbert Adkins. Toasts will be given by Mrs. James H. Parkhurst, Mrs. E. J. Robinson, Mrs. Edward Feger, Mrs. Henry B. Long and Mrs. A. J. Clark, charter members.

New Century Club—Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Otis McCracken, 2307 College avenue. Miss Mabel Thompson will be the assistant hostess. Mrs. L. S. Carr will talk on "The League of Nations" and Mrs. Carl Maholm will talk on "The Boy Scout Movement." Music for the meeting will be in charge of Mrs. William Newton.

Parlor Club—Monday at home of Mrs. Edgar Brown, 1142 Broadway. A paper on "French Language and Literature" will be read by Mrs. George Bass. The general discussion will be led by Mrs. David Ross.

Present-Day Club—Monday, with Mrs. W. C. Zaring, 2304 College avenue. The general topic for the program will be "Surrey of French Literature." Mrs. A. L. Thurston, Mrs. W. H. Adams and Mrs. C. W. Caudle will be the speakers.

Writers' Club—Tuesday night in the public library auditorium. Original poems by the members will be read. Mrs. Edith McCall Gates will talk.

Zetates Club—Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. L. Sydenstricker, 535 East drive, Woodruff place. Greetings and letters from corresponding members will be read.

In 'Bubbles' Cast

MISS CAROLYN COFFIN.

Among the charming members of the cast which will present "Bubbles" at the Murat theater next Tuesday and Wednesday is Miss Carolyn Coffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Coffin, 1213 North Meridian street.

She and many other leaders in society and musical circles have volunteered to make "Bubbles," which is characterized as "a musical froth," a success. The show is to be given for the benefit of the Boys' Club association.

The cast includes Mrs. James Gordon Murdoch, Miss Florence Anne Parkin, Mrs. Glenn Friemond, Mrs. R. Felix Geddes, Miss Ruth Perry, Miss Elizabeth Nicholson, Miss Gertrude Shuler, Mrs. Charles Rauh, Mrs. Charles Schaff, Mrs. Richard Fairbanks, Mrs. Don Hawkins, Mrs. John Fishback and Mrs. Gordon Tanne.

Tickets are now on sale at the Murat theater.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

A New Serial of Young Married Life

By ANN LISLE.

CHAPTER XVIII.
The government had been allowing Jim a $40 a month for rent while he was a bachelor. Now that he was married, it would probably give him about $45 for "self and wife," and that I must find a little apartment for that sum. We couldn't dig deeper into our salary for rent.

It was impossible to discuss the matter with Jim, for the shadow of unhappiness and nervousness was always wringing the way across his face. "Poor less Jim" seldom smiled now—these days he wasn't fearless. I could see that. So I did not annoy him with questions. Forty-four dollars a month didn't seem the first real estate agent very favorably.

I went a weary round of offices and finally, at the fourth, procured a list of apartments ranging in rental from $40 a month to $65. Why I took the beyond-the-dreams-of-avarice $65 list I never knew!

Then I traveled from one end of the town to the other, I saw "walk-ups," with dark halls and great, large, dreary rooms—$53.50. There were apartments with no electricity, apartments with ancient plumbing, apartments from which I could hear the roar of the "el," apartments so far from street car and subway that I dare not contemplate walking to and fro on a slippery wintry day—that is, I didn't dare contemplate the walk for my Jim with his shattered ankle bone.

Two days of weary search. Two days of "business" that took all my husband's time. Quiet evenings, when each of us was evidently trying to hide some pain or disappointment from the other.

Then I decided to go down to the Washington square neighborhood and hunt about for myself. I had heard of a wonderful place where apartments went for as little as $2 a month. But I found that the Place and the Alley were alleys, indeed; that the rentals were far higher than tradition had said, and that both had long waiting lists.

Disconsolate, I wandered over to the atmosphere of smoked girls with short, bobbed hair and men with long, bushy hair. And then— I heard a husky little voice cry from a car that was drawing near the curb:

"Why, it's Jim wife! Mrs. Harrison! Answer!"

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

PUSS IN BOOTS JR.

By DAVID CORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.
After Puss Junior left the circus, you heard in the story before this, he didn't know which way to turn. You see there were two roads branching out, one to the left and one to the right, and on the sign post was written: "Rasperryville" and "To Lollypop town."

And while he stood wondering which way to turn a little pony whose name was Dapple Gray came up the road on the left.

And when he saw Puss Junior he said: "I'm the little pony whose name is Dapple Gray."

So jump into my saddle and ride a mile away.

You need not use a whip or lash, for I will go so fast.

You'll think you're on a train of cars that whiz the stations past.

And of course Puss jumped into the saddle and rode off, down the road to the right until they came to a bridge where the tollman charged him a penny to cross.

"Why do you charge a penny?" asked Puss. "It seems to me a farthing is enough." But the tollman said no and so Puss took out a penny. I suppose they charged a penny because he was riding Dapple Gray, don't you think so?

Well, by and by, after they had gone for maybe a mile or more they came to an old goose who was standing near the road quacking like a steam radiator out of order.

"Goosey, Goosey Gander, Why Do You Quack?" Asked Puss.

"Goosey, Goosey Gander, why do you quack?" asked Puss, pulling up Dapple Gray until he stood on his hind legs and pawed the air with his front hoofs.

"Because I'm sorrowful," said the old goose. "I've made a mistake, a very bad mistake."

"Tell me about it," said Puss, and he got off his pony and tickled the poor

CONTRALTO GIVES ARTISTIC GROUP

Audience Greets Mary Jordan With Much Favor.

By GRACE HUTCHINGS.

Miss Mary Jordan, contralto, of New York, made her fourth appearance before the Indianapolis Academy of Music last night, and, as in her other appearances before the club, entertained in a most pleasing manner.

Miss Jordan is a singer of more than ordinary voice and accomplishments, and her concert is always artistic.

Last night she sang a program made up entirely of modern songs, her opening number being the big aria beloved of all contraltos, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" from "Sampson and Delilah" (Sain-Sacra). This won so much favor with the audience that she returned and sang "Come to the Garden" (Turner-Salter). "In the Moonlight" (Haley), "The Smith" (Hobbs) and "The Spring" (Wolf) made up a group that was attractive. "The Smith" especially, was so well received it was repeated.

Her group of solos was a study in contrasts.

"Invocation to Eros" (Kustner) was the most artistically sung of the entire program.

"Come Up, Come in With Streamers" (Deis) was brilliant, and "I Passed by Your Window" (Brahe) was a quietly beautiful number that was repeated.

The group closed with the familiar "The Year at the Spring" (Beach) sung with dash and brilliancy.

Two encores, "Hard Trials" (Burlough) and "My Love's a Muketeer," and two numbers sung with the chorus, completed Miss Jordan's part of the program.

The numbers with the chorus, "The Rose in the Vale" (Zoellner) and "Rest on Me" (Morse) among the most enjoyed numbers of the evening.

The chorus, Rudolf Heyne directing, sang even to exceed their customary excellence.

Miss Stella Bernard accompanied Miss Jordan in a splendidly successful fashion.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace B. Caldwell have returned to Indianapolis, after a temporary residence in Chicago. Mr. Caldwell is now at the home of Mr. Z. Barker, Miss Josephine Andrews and Theodore Barker of Worthington, Mr. and Mrs. Barker will be at home after May 10 in Worthington.

St. Margaret's Hospital Guild will meet Tuesday with Mrs. Harry K. Dunn, the Gwynne apartments, 3171 North Illinois street.

Samuel A. Peck of the Diamond chain works will be in charge for the A. W. W. club meeting Tuesday night in the clubrooms, 2161 North Meridian street. The Woman's Efficiency club will meet with the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapin Wagner, who have been spending the winter in California, have returned to their home, 120 West Thirty-third street.

Gamma Sigma sorority will meet tomorrow afternoon at Mrs. Arline Fishman, 131 West Morris street.

A spring dance will be given tonight in the Denard club room for the members of the junior section. The committee in charge includes Miss Ruth Fromm, Miss Jean Doda, Miss Harriet Kline and Lindabell Thompson.

Society News

The wedding of Miss Carol Marie Ridpath, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Ridpath, 1815 North New Jersey street, and Joseph H. Devoy of Brookfield, Mo., took place this afternoon at the home of the bride, Rev. F. S. C. Wickes officiating. Carrie Pratt Kennedy played the Lohengrin wedding march during the processional, with the Mendelssohn march as the recessional. Cadman's "At Dawn" was played during the ceremony. Baskets of roses and ferns were used through the parlors, tall palms and blooming plants forming the altar. Ivory white tulle was worn by the bride, and she carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. There were no attendants. The going-away costume was of midnight blue tulle, with a white hat of the same shade. Among the guests were Raymond C. Ridpath of Sioux City, Ia.; Miss Mary Devoy and Paul Devoy of Brookfield, Mo.; James Devoy of Oxford, Neb.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clifford and Mrs. Mrs. Clarence Clifford of Lebanon, and Miss Martha Ridpath of Greenfield, Miss Anna Devoy and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Roberts of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Devoy will spend several weeks in Chicago and will be at home after June 1 at 1815 North New Jersey street.

A wedding of interest which took place today at noon was that of Miss Ruth Wilson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Wilson, 4172 Carrollton avenue, and Ned A. Barker of Worthington, Ind. Miss Wilson served ten months in France as a nurse. Mr. Barker also was in service. Another feature of the marriage is that today is the anniversary of the bride's father and mother's marriage and Rev. M. B. Hyde of French Lick will officiate at their wedding, performed the ceremony today. Mrs. Bruce Maxwell, one of the guests, witnessed both marriages.

Robert Barker, brother of the groom, sang "At Dawning." Miss Freda Hart accompanied and played the wedding march. Pink roses and ferns were used through the parlors, tall palms and low roses decorated the dining room. Lattices of pink rambler roses, tall ferns and cathedral candelabras formed an effective altar. The bride wore a draped gown of ivory crepe merino and carried a shower bouquet of tiny roses and lilies of the valley. Out-of-town guests included Will Barker of Springfield, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Z. Barker, Miss Josephine Andrews and Theodore Barker of Worthington, Mr. and Mrs. Barker will be at home after May 10 in Worthington.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace B. Caldwell have returned to Indianapolis, after a temporary residence in Chicago. Mr. Caldwell is now at the home of Mr. Z. Barker, Miss Josephine Andrews and Theodore Barker of Worthington, Mr. and Mrs. Barker will be at home after May 10 in Worthington.

St. Margaret's Hospital Guild will meet Tuesday with Mrs. Harry K. Dunn, the Gwynne apartments, 3171 North Illinois street.

Samuel A. Peck of the Diamond chain works will be in charge for the A. W. W. club meeting Tuesday night in the clubrooms, 2161 North Meridian street. The Woman's Efficiency club will meet with the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapin Wagner, who have been spending the winter in California, have returned to their home, 120 West Thirty-third street.

Gamma Sigma sorority will meet tomorrow afternoon at Mrs. Arline Fishman, 131 West Morris street.

A spring dance will be given tonight in the Denard club room for the members of the junior section. The committee in charge includes Miss Ruth Fromm, Miss Jean Doda, Miss Harriet Kline and Lindabell Thompson.

Indiana alumni of Pi Beta Phi, under the direction of Miss Hazel Wynn, president of the local chapter, were hostesses for the Founders' Day luncheon in the Riley room of the Claypool hotel today.

The active chapter of Butler college will have charge of the state dance to-night in the Athenaeum.

The program for the toast at the luncheon was announced of the interest being taken in politics.

Miss Mary Galtman of Peru was toastmistress, and the responses were: "The 1920 Campaign of Pi Beta Phi," Miss Helen Bailey of the Franklin chapter; "Indiana's Platform," Miss Magdalene Feltz of the Indiana chapter; "National Policies," Miss Miriam Deming, province president; "Local Organization," Miss Bobbed hair and men with long, bushy hair. And then— I heard a husky little voice cry from a car that was drawing near the curb:

"Why, it's Jim wife! Mrs. Harrison! Answer!"

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

Pi Phi Hostess

MISS HAZEL WYNN.

Miss Wynn is president of the local chapter of the Pi Beta Phi alumni, which held a Founders' day luncheon at the Claypool today.

COVERS FOR 180 AT PI BETA PHI FETE

Founders' Day Luncheon Brings Out Many Alumni.

Indiana alumni of Pi Beta Phi, under the direction of Miss Hazel Wynn, president of the local chapter, were hostesses for the Founders' day luncheon in the Riley room of the Claypool hotel today.

The active chapter of Butler college will have charge of the state dance to-night in the Athenaeum.

The program for the toast at the luncheon was announced of the interest being taken in politics.

Miss Mary Galtman of Peru was toastmistress, and the responses were: "The 1920 Campaign of Pi Beta Phi," Miss Helen Bailey of the Franklin chapter; "Indiana's Platform," Miss Magdalene Feltz of the Indiana chapter; "National Policies," Miss Miriam Deming, province president; "Local Organization," Miss Bobbed hair and men with long, bushy hair. And then— I heard a husky little voice cry from a car that was drawing near the curb:

"Why, it's Jim wife! Mrs. Harrison! Answer!"

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.

—Copyright, 1920.
(To Be Continued.)

It was Evelyn Mason. She was driving a smart little "bummy roadster," emerald blue. She herself was all in soft gray, with a hat and sport hat of blue. She looked like a pert, mischievous child. At her side sat Sally Royce—more like a proper brown Perkinse than even in her copper-colored silk jersey and flaunting hat of gold and copper straw.