

ANITA STEWART IN ORIENTAL PLAY

Warwick at Alhambra—'Blind Youth' at Isis

"Fagan Purple," an oriental spectacle, and Anita Stewart in "The Yellow Typhoon," a movie, will be on view next week at the Isis, opening Sunday.

"Fagan Purple" depicts a Chinese festival of ancient times and thirty-five persons are required to present this lavish pantomime.

S. Barrett McCormick, assisted by Frank Zimmerman, art director, and Norma Gregg, composer, combined their efforts to produce it.

The title will be remembered for "The Palace of Diversion," which opened the eyes of Indianapolis movie fans to the modern way of presenting movie entertainment.

Anita Stewart plays a dual role in "The Yellow Typhoon."

The spy in the household is always a menace, but he is especially dangerous in "Who's Your Serrano?" now at the Ohio.

The Jap butler in this play is the thief of some important naval documents, and nearly causes the death of a prominent officer.

The efforts of the girl in the case to recover the plans lead to the downfall of the spy and the vindication of the officer.

Lois Wilson is the girl in the case, as the danger, YUKIO AOYAMA, ter of one of the naval officers involved.

Yukio Aoyama plays the role of the Japanese spy in this movie.

A GOOD WARWICK MOVIE.

Just the right mixture of romance, adventure and mystery is used in the photoplay, "The Art of the Man," which is Robert Warwick's latest production.

In this play Warwick appears as a soldier of fortune, one of his best roles, and wins through many difficulties with his smile.

He is sojourning in South Africa, working his way from place to place in the tropical country.

Illicit diamond buying furnishes the mystery element of the story, and the wanderer's love for a girl supplies the romance in large quantities.

And adventure—there is something happening every moment.

Fights and real rough and tumble fights are incidental to the arrest of the diamond thieves.

To tell much of the story would be detracting from your joy in seeing Warwick unfold the play in his own way at the Alhambra.

AROUND THE TOWN.

Mack Bennett's "Down on the Farm" continues to extract the laughs from patrons of the Circle.

"Blind Youth," which was used successfully on the stage, is the current offering at the Isis.

"The Bathing Beauties" will close their engagement at the Park with the Saturday night show.

A new Larry Semon comedy is one of the offerings on the present bill at the Lyric.

"The Copperhead," with Lionel Barrymore, is on view at English's this week.

Buck Jones in "The Forbidden Trail," a movie, is to be seen at the Rialto.

Jimmy Britt, former fight champion, continues to relate his experiences at the Broadway.

Mr. Smith's is offering Will Rogers in "The New Border."

This is the final week of the big time vaudeville at Keith's, with the house going into popular vaudeville at the close of the current bill.

Louise Glavin is wearing many beautiful gowns in "Sex," at the Colonial.

The Regent is offering a wide variety of movies these days.

Act of Chivalry May Cost Arm of Youth

BOSTON, May 21.—An act of chivalry in giving up his seat to a woman is likely to cost William E. Egan, 17 years old, of Brooklyn, his arm.

Just as an Ipswich street car was rounding the curve at Lapsowne street young Egan arose.

The car lurched and he was thrown violently against the window, his arm going through the glass.

Dog Stampedes Six Swimming Elephants

QUINCY, Ill., May 21.—While six elephants at a local amusement park were in a small lake swimming a dog jumped in and grabbed one of the beasts. It started a stampede that bowled over keepers, demolished fences and ruined lawns, for the animals made a wild dash for liberty. They were captured and quieted, however, five miles from the city. No one was seriously hurt in the commotion.
