

900 STUDENTS AT 'TECH' HIGH STAGE PAGEANT

Depict 100 Years of Local History in Five Elaborate Scenes.

MARKS 'SUPREME DAY'

"Supreme day" was observed at the Arsenal Technical school today with a pageant in which more than 900 students participated, depicting 100 years of history, under the direction of Miss Esther E. Shover, a member of the faculty.

The pageant, in which 500 students appeared on the stage, and 400 in the chorus and band, was entitled "Our Arsenal's Gift to Indianapolis."

Throughout the entire action, which took place on the campus of the school, not a word was spoken until the end, when the senior members of the cast repeated the oath of allegiance to the flag in unison.

The ringing of the arsenal bell, in the tower of the old arsenal building, marked the opening of each of five parts of the pageant.

OPENING SCENE CALLED SPIRIT OF PAGEANT.

The first scene was entitled "The Spirit of the Pageant."

This scene opened the conflict which continued until the end of the performance, between two future citizens of the city and the spirits of selfishness, riot, ignorance, laziness and disease.

The second scene represented the history of Indianapolis during the period before the construction of the arsenal and showed events that made the ground available for use by the government, rather than by settlers.

In the third scene the conflict was renewed showing the disturbing influences of the Civil war period.

This was followed by a scene representing the establishment of the school, including the passing of the grounds and buildings to the city and later events in the history of the school.

FIFTH AND LAST TO SCHOOL OF FUTURE.

The fifth and final scene depicts the school of the future.

In connection with the pageant, students at the school have been studying its history and the bearing of this history on the city, state and nation.

The old arsenal with its picturesque tower has a history with which few Indianapolis citizens are acquainted.

In May, 1891, Gov. Morton established the Indiana state arsenal on the north half of the statehouse grounds where ammunition was made.

When the work assumed such proportions as to become a possible danger to the city the arsenal was removed on Feb. 23, 1893, to property belonging to Col. Herman Sturm, superintendent of the state arsenal, lying just south of the site of the present arsenal grounds.

PRESENT SITE BOUGHT IN 1892 AND 1893.

The government was later authorized to take over the state arsenal and a portion of the present site was purchased in 1892 and a portion in 1893.

The storehouse of the arsenal was completed two years later.

During the Spanish-American war the buildings were used for the manufacture of war supplies.

In 1902 the government ordered the arsenal and the grounds sold and the government flag was lowered at sunset, April 15, 1903.

In the meantime a committee of Indianapolis citizens collected $154,000, which it turned over to the government for the buildings and ground, which according to the terms of the deed, were to be used perpetually for educational purposes.

Here, from 1903 to 1912 the Winona Technical Institute was operated.

In September, 1912, eight teachers and 283 pupils started the Arsenal Technical schools, which in eight years have grown to their present size with 3,000 pupils and 148 teachers, the largest high school in the city.

The Arsenal grounds and buildings were turned over to the city to hold in trust, under the terms of the deed, by the supreme court, May 22, 1916.

This date since has been known as "supreme day" in the school.

During the war 233 pupils of the school entered the service of the government.

Chief's Wives Clean Stranded Airplane

LONDON, May 28.—There are forty-three new airplane mechanics in the heart of Africa.

Col. van Rynveld, who has returned to London after his flight to the Cape, tells the following story:

"At Shirati, on the shores of the Victoria Nyanza, we, on landing, found that the natives regarded us as gods and brought peace offerings of milk, food and fruit, while an old chief came out with roan and sheep and wanted to kill them for us."

"We made use of the old chap, however. We told him that the machine would not go on until it had its morning bath, and he straightway set his forty-three wives to clean and oil it up."
