

'UNCLE BOB' LIKES UPS AND DOWNS

He's Had Some Real Thrills in Elevator, Too.

How would you like to go through life with each day's happenings just a series of ups and downs?

One man in particular in Indianapolis does just this thing, makes a living by it and enjoys the routine.

This man is "Uncle Bob" Bailey, one of the elevator men at the Indiana state capitol.

"Uncle Bob" has been on duty at the statehouse elevator for about fourteen years, and in all this time he has had many experiences, some humorous and some exciting.

And in addition to being an elevator man, "Uncle Bob" serves as a bureau of information for many tourists and sightseers at the capitol.

HE'S REGULAR INFORMATION BUREAU.

"Do I have to answer questions?" he commented in response to a query.

"People come to me for everything from a birth certificate to a burial permit."

"Not so long ago a couple came to me and wanted to get married."

"This was a new one on me, but I did my best to set them happily on their way."

"I sent them to the courthouse for their marriage license and in the meanwhile scurried about the statehouse in search of a minister."

"I found one, and when they came back, the preacher married them, and I had two more 'satisfied customers.'"

"My experiences are not always funny, though."

"I remember one time there were three women and three little children got on the elevator wanting to go to the museum."

"That was when the museum was on the fourth floor."

WOMAN GRABS HIM BY THROAT.

"When I closed the door and started up one of the women grabbed me about the neck and began to choke and scratch me."

"She was screaming at the top of her voice, and I did not dare to take them on up for fear she would jump over the banister when she got out, so I returned to the main floor."

"After it was all over I learned that the woman had been out of an insane asylum very long, and when she saw the bars on the elevator door, she imagined she was being led into a trap to be sent back to the asylum."

"Uncle Bob" has been on the elevator during the sessions of many legislatures, and probably has as large an acquaintance with persons throughout the state as any man in Indiana.

He is always ready each morning with a cheery "Good morning," and his jolly nature makes his elevator one of the bright spots of the statehouse.

Wins Music Prize

PASQUALE TALLARICO.

"Laugh-away Nights of Spring," composed by Pasquale Tallarico of this city, was awarded the first prize of $100 offered for the best ballad by an Indian in connection with the National Song Composers' convention, at Greenwood, this week.

Miss Agnes Hodgins, soprano, sang the selection.

Mr. Tallarico is head of the piano department of the Indiana College of Music and Fine Arts here.

Morris Hamilton, a young cornetist of Indianapolis, now studying in New York, carried off the second award for his ballad, "The Meeting of the Waters."

Presented the number, accompanied by John Geiger.

John Gunder, pianist, also of the Indiana College of Music and Fine Arts, won the second place in the art song contest with his composition, "Light Shadows," which was sung by Miss Goldie Williams, contralto.

BLAIR WINS COVERED HONOR.

William Blair of Princeton, banker-musician, was awarded the first prize for his art song, "A Sign."

Mrs. Everett Johnson, accompanied by the composer's niece, Miss Margaret Jean Gilmore, interpreted his composition.

Greenwood is now on the map, must-see speaking, due to the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Polk.

The national song composers' convention is to be an annual affair and plans were laid last night for enlarging and extending the organization back of it.

Mr. Polk announced that he and Mrs. Polk were contributing $1,000 to be awarded next year for the composition contest prizes.

Mrs. David Allen Campbell of New York, editor of the Musical Monitor and vice president of the Federation of Musical Clubs, was present at the convention and stated that the federation would aid and back the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Polk in making the convention one of national interest to musicians.

HOOSIER SONGS FEATURE DAY.

A delightful "Hoosier" musical program was given yesterday by a group of artists from Indianapolis, in carrying out "Indiana day."

Mrs. Hazel Simmons Steele, soprano, accompanied by John Geiger of the music department of Indiana university, sang a group of numbers, among which were "Hush Thee, My Baby," composed by Charles Hansen of this city, and "The Day I Forgot," by Morris Hamilton.

Dr. Paul Kleeman, baritone, one of the younger talented singers, used in his group two Riley numbers, "There, Little Girl, Don't Cry," music by the late Clarence Forsythe of Irvington, and "Out to Old Aunt Mary's," with a musical setting by Barclay Walker, local composer.

He also sang "Sorta Miss You," by Clay Smith of Rockville.

Edith Dearmin of Greenwood gave Mrs. Polk's composition, "Remembrance," together with a number of American selections.

Mrs. Clyde Titus, soprano, another local singer, presented James Dungan's original number, "A Lullaby," together with a group of Hoosier offerings.

Last night the Lincoln trio, including Miss Yuba Wihite, cellist; Mrs. Jackson, violinist, and Mrs. S. K. Ruick, pianist, assisted by Miss Florence Ann Parkin, soprano, and Thomas Nealis, tenor, gave a program of Indiana songs and Hoosier numbers.

All the sessions of the convention were held in the splendidly equipped community house given as a memorial by James and Laura Polk of Greenwood.
