Church Merger Ends in Rumpus

LAKE, Kas., June 28.—Merging of congregations of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches here has found to be unsatisfactory.

After a four months' trial the churches have decided to separate. The merged congregations were known as the Federation church of Olathe.

A double arose over a ruling in regard to church property.

INCREDULATING.

"I'm not so crazy about Harry more."

"Why not?"

"Because he knows so many funny songs."

"Does he sing them to you?"

Wife of Republican Democrat Delegate at San Francisco

Two Other Women at Convention Trace Ancestry to Indian Chiefs.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 28.—Mrs. William H. England of Oklahoma, Vassar graduate and mother of six children, is one of more than 300 women who are delegates to the democratic national convention which opens here today.

Her husband was a delegate to the republican state convention in Oklahoma.

Among the other Oklahoma delegates are two women who trace their ancestry to Indian chiefs.

They are Mrs. Richard L. Fite, wife of a physician formerly of Georgia and grand niece of Sequoyah, inventor of the Cherokee alphabet, and Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson, wife of an attorney and oil man, daughter of the Rev. Charles Johnstone, last chief of the Delawares.

Mrs. Fite was first chairman of the Women's Democratic Club of Oklahoma, and Mrs. Lawson was formerly president of the Oklahoma Federation of Women's Clubs.

KENTUCKY WOMAN

PRACTICAL FARMER.

Miss Laura Clay, delegate at large from Kentucky, was one of the organizers of the Kentucky Equal Rights association in 1882 and is reputed to be a "practical farmer."

Mrs. Elizabeth Marbury, delegate-at-large from New York, who was decorated by the United States, France, Belgium and Italy for war work, is first vice president of the League of Catholic Women.

She came to the convention with Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby, "mother of New York women's democracy," in a special train from New York that carried fifty-four women delegates and alternates.

Texas sent a nationally known figure in Mrs. Percy Pennybaker, club leader. One of the best known of California's eight delegates is Miss Mary E. Foy, who has been identified with many phases of civic betterment work. Mrs. John W. Troy of Alaska was the first woman delegate to arrive here.

17 WOMEN NAMED FOR COMMITTEE WORK.

Seventeen women, headed by Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the secretary of the navy, have been appointed by Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the democratic national committee, as members of the executive committee of thirty-four.

Mrs. George Bass, chairman of the women's bureau of the democratic national committee, and Mrs. Mary Holland Kinkaid, assistant director of publicity in charge of women's activity, are among the leaders here.

Mrs. Bass is a Chicago civic worker and had charge of the 1916 democratic presidential campaign in twelve western equal suffrage states, ten of which cast their electoral vote for Wilson.

Grandmothers Hold Prominent Place in Big Convention

Silver Hair and Sweet Manners of Motherhood to Touch Future Democracy.

By EDNA HUBER CHURCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—Grandmothers are certainly getting into politics. That was the impression which I received as I looked over nearly 500 democratic women gathered here for the national convention.

One hundred and four of these women, many of whom are grandmothers, will have seats as delegates in the convention, while 240 will be seated as alternates.

The women of this convention are a most impressive example of the dignified beauty of modern women.

The most beautiful silver hair, soft toned voices and sweet manners of motherhood which are combined in these women baffle the most aggressive work which they have done and are doing to win victory for the democrats in 1920.

MORE ACTIVE THAN MANY OF YOUNGER.

Mrs. John B. Castleman of Kentucky, 80 years old, the oldest woman in the convention, leads many a fight for progressiveness and liberality and is more active than many of the younger girls who have come to San Francisco to act as convention ushers.

Mrs. Mary Holland Kinkaid, who is proud she is a grandmother, is grinding out printable publicity in a manner that would put to shame most of the boob-haled young females who claim themselves "publicity experts" along Broadway.

Mrs. Betty White, a delegate at large from Arizona, admits that while she has not lost her youthful fervor for Jeffersonian democracy she is not too old to lead a fight on the floor of the convention if some of the male democrats attempt an onslaught on the Jeffersonian platform.

NEW YORKER

PLEASANT GRANDMOTHER.

Mrs. M. G. Church of New York is another grandmother who declares "we women must put the idea of progressiveness firmly in the minds of men."

Visiting with that beauty which comes only with gray-haired dignity, she stands out in sharp contrast the fresh, young beauty of Mrs. Nell Wright of Huntington, Tenn., the youngest woman delegate in the convention.

Mrs. Wright is a sister of Mary Allison, a movie star, and one wonders how she herself escaped the screen.

Of course there are some young women all concerned in the democratic convention, as Miss Chari Williams of Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. Peter Olesen of Chicago, Minn., but the fact still remains that grandmother is most prominent in politics.

Denver Hospitals Crowded to Limit

DENVER, Colo., June 28.—Because Denver mothers frown upon receiving visits from the stork in their own homes there is a lying-in shortage in the city.

The hospitals are inadequate to care for expectant mothers who apply for accommodations.

Local physicians declare that the "fad" prevalent in the east for some time has reached Denver and is responsible for Denver mothers crowding the home as a place for bringing children into the world.

That the "fad" has come to stay is the opinion of many physicians, who declare that the need for an institution to be used exclusively for lying-in purposes is growing daily.

With many women who become mothers swamping the hospitals there is not sufficient accommodation for other patients, it is said.

CHILDREN'S PARTIES.

Children like parties. And as a summer party is not very difficult to plan and carry out, this is the time of year to make them happy.

A fairy party is sure to meet with favor. It should be given out of doors. Here is a suggestive wording for the invitation:

"The fairies invite you to come to a party they are giving on Wednesday, July 14, from four to six, in Mary Dennis' apple orchard. Please come dressed as a fairy."

Or the fairy party could be given in the woods or in a garden—but it must be out of doors.

The small host or hostess should dress like a fairy with wings of organdy and a spangled frock and should lead the guests from the house to the fairy's playground. Lanterns glowing under shrubbery, big butterflies and bats of crepe paper hanging from branches of trees and perched on bushes, add to the fairylike look of the garden.

The little fairies can dance around a fairy pole, frimmed with ribbons; somebody can read or tell them a fairy story—there is almost always some clever young girl who will do this in costume for you—and to each may be given a small fairy tale book—the book can be given as a favor or one can give as a prize for winning some game.

The fairy refreshments can be spread on the grass.

If the children are told to hunt for them, where the fairies have hidden them, and find them—hanging to bushes, under flowers and all about the garden, the fun will be increased.

Thin sandwiches and cakes, wrapped in waxed paper, might be hidden in this way. Call the lemonade or cold chocolate milk shake fairy dew, and if desirable have the ice cream in flower molds.

A summer party can take the form of a hay ride through the country, with supper at the end. Or a ride with a picnic lunch as a surprise in the middle of it is delightful.

An Indian party can be given, at which the children play outdoor games for amusement.

For a prize a string of beads and an Indian arrow may be given.

Refreshments may be served at a table.
