

BRYAN MISSES FIREWORKS AT SECOND SESSION

No Volunteer, or Called Out Speeches, to Stir Visitors' Enthusiasm.

APPLAUDS SIDE MEETING

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN. Copyright, 1920, by W. J. Bryan. SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—The second day of the convention seldom is exciting.

The accumulated enthusiasm expands itself in the first demonstration. The noise comes when the bottle is uncorked, so to speak, the second day is largely a matter of routine.

Permanent Chairman Robinson gave in his own language, which is always well chosen, a review of the party's splendid economic record, following much of the line of Chairman Cummings' speech. His remarks about the senate elicited one of the most enthusiastic of the outbursts of applause. He disappointed the dries by not making any reference to the subject of prohibition, a matter the more surprising because he comes from a bone dry state and represents a constituency that has grown more and more firm in its opposition to intoxicants.

The session was entirely formal beyond the delivery of the speech, there being no volunteer or called-out speeches. The second day is usually employed as a sort of gala day; prominent democrats are called out to stir enthusiasm by a recital of the glorious deeds of the party and by prophecies as to what we are going to do to the enemy.

There is no time in a politician's life when victory and the offices that come with it loom larger than they do on the second day of a convention. The set speeches being couched in language more or less cautious, the audience has to rely upon the extemporaneous speakers to wave the flag and pull the tall feathers out of the eagle with real abandon.

SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY GOES TO WASTE

To had that such a splendid opportunity was wasted, for it must be remembered that those present have been fighting for tickets for weeks. They have been waiting to everybody they knew that had a push or a pull.

The convention gives the man with influence a great opportunity to demonstrate to his friends how near he is to the throne. It isn't fair for a convention to have a short session on the second day with so many prominent democrats present. In the prepared speeches that are ready delivered extemporaneously.

While the convention was proceeding in the auditorium the resolutions committee was affording quite a promising group of petitioners an opportunity to lay before the committee in open session the subject on their hearts.

Mr. Hall, secretary of the National Association of the American Federation of Labor, presented the claims of those for whom he has so long spoken.

He was earnest and always does, and made a very favorable impression on the committee.

He will have more time to rehearse here than he had in Chicago, PROHIBITION SECOND SUBJECT ON LIST.

Prohibition was the second subject taken up, and no one who was present will be guided any longer by those who have been predicting that the subject will be ignored.

It was very apparent from the first moment that this is the question upon which there is most feeling. At night, after every one is in bed, he goes to the cupboard and tries to steal what was denied him.

It happened that the superior officer was a white man. He put me on the spot, he said, "I'm not a soldier, I'm a man." "That's right, you're a man," said to me, "and so they went down stairs and got an order from the officer," said the maid.

She is a gray-haired little English woman from Southampton. She has a son who is an officer in the British army in Egypt, and he has the war on his paternity. She took a place in the Palace hotel. Her name is Mabel Cheeseman and, after five years of war in England, she has come to the United States.

By 1921 a man won't dare go into politics. From delegates to chambermaids these democratic women are all dangerous surprises.

much encouraged the dries and increases the probability of a dry plank in the platform. There are probably 200 delegates in the convention who would trade their views on every other question for a wet plank and go home happy in the belief that the democratic party can carry the election by an appeal to the throats of the drinkers and the pockets of those who want to go into the business rather than by arguments that appeal to the heart and the conscience.

But with woman suffrage in sight the delegates know that a wet plank would be a disaster. The real contest is between the dries and the doggers.

MANY OTHER SUBJECTS TOUCHED AT HEARING. A number of other subjects were presented, among them agriculture, education and the Irish question. And I might add in this connection that here, as at Chicago, the women have surely justified their claim to equal consideration.

The league of women voters presented a battery of speakers that would be hard to match. Senator Phelan and Mr. McClatchy of Sacramento appeared before the committee in behalf of more rigid Japanese exclusion, the latter with statistics and the former with a masterful digest of this situation.

Those who have heard the senator before say this is the most powerful address he has made on the subject. It showed him to be an effective speaker, as well as acquainted with the subject. The greatest personal victory yet won in this convention was scored by a young Filipino by the name of Jose T. Mendez.

Woman Is Continual Surprise at San Francisco Convention

By WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—A woman "got" Jim Reed! When Mrs. William Woodrow Martin of Cape Girardeau, Mo., a little town in Missouri, got on to a street car in front of the convention hall at 2 o'clock yesterday morning and went to a little room in an inconspicuous hotel to retire for the night, she was due to awaken famous.

Between the hour of 1 and 2 she had "polished off" Senator James Reed, had read him out of the Missouri delegation, and practically out of the democratic party. Eight hours later the great convention itself was hissing the very name of the man she had overthrown.

The scene was dramatically simple. For many months the democrats of Missouri have disliked Reed because of his stand against Wilson, both during the war and thereafter. The state convention of Missourians on April 22 chose delegates to the convention, but it DID NOT select Reed.

Two weeks after the convention, boss-ridden Kansas City, boss-ridden St. Louis and little Knox county chose Reed as a delegate, though they had no right to do so.

Reed came to the San Francisco convention to claim a seat and all the Missouri folks outside of the boss-ridden towns execrated his name.

JORDAN HINTS AT COMBINE TO FIGHT M'ADOO

Says Fading Booms of Others May Give Birth to Powerful Opposition.

WILSON STILL AT WHEEL

By DAVID STARR JORDAN. Copyright, 1920, International News Service. SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—As I write the presidential fight will control the democratic convention, though facing the certainty of defeat, the "crowd" of Mr. Robinson's impassioned address recalls our early idealism and forestalls an unqualified endorsement of the administration.

To have won "the war to end war" and to have inaugurated the league of nations are emphasized as crowning achievements.

The signs still point toward the nomination of McAdoo.

His force, capacity and independence of character generally are recognized and it is believed he will draw a large part of liberal vote which may determine the election.

The Cox boom is subsiding, for the moment, and the Palmer boom, with its noisy clique of rosters, seems to make no progress within or without the convention.

That, indeed, he nominated, could not be elected, appears evident.

Indeed, to defend his activities as one of the hardest tasks which confronts the Wilson forces.

Some of his rivals complain that he ought to have made his position clear, one way or the other.

On the surface the convention atmosphere seems back again to normal.

Nobody appears much excited over the outcome.

The steamroller is well oiled and works with precision, yet its operations arouse suspicion of revolt.

An unpleasant snarl from Missouri is thrown out, a bit arbitrarily perhaps, but protests barely reach the public ears.

It is part of the game.

Georgia and the name of John W. Davis will be sent upon an arrow shot by Stephen Jackson.

Georgia will yield to Pennsylvania, and a Mitchell-Parker lot will be cast by John H. Bigelow of the anthracite towns of Hazleton, Pa.

WHITLOCK'S NAME ALSO TO BE PRESENTED.

Secretary of Agriculture Meredith's name will be put into the big hopper by Claude R. Porter of Iowa.

When Kansas is called, W. W. Rose will, independently of his delegation, present the name of Ambassador Brandegee, according to his own statement. The Kansas delegation is unstructured, but are counted upon as McAdoo adherents.

Senator Jenkins of Kansas City at this point is prepared to end and says he will propose the name of William Gibbs McAdoo.

Following the naming of Senator McAdoo by former Gov. Shallenberger of Nebraska and Gov. Edwards of New Jersey, Charles E. O'Brien of New York, and the presentation of Gov. A. Smith by Senator William M. Cramer of New York, will be sent into the air by Judge James G. Johnson of Columbus, O.

Senator Simmons of South Carolina, Secretary of Navy, and Senator Walsh of Massachusetts may be the subject of speeches when their states are reached.

This mood of Marshall's name will not formally be placed in nomination by the Indiana delegation, if his request is respected, but he will get the votes. It is not definitely arranged to have anything more than a few kind words for Senator Glass by some member of the Virginia delegation, Glass being the local head and front of the McAdoo movement.

The eighteenth man, if any, is the dark horse.

derstood he wants the call to come from the floor of this convention, if at all.

James M. Cox, governor of Ohio, is the closest actual rival of McAdoo. His boosters are not giving out figures. He may show equally with McAdoo on the first ballot and the tendency will be to grow, but whether he can leap the 728 gap is the question.

Thomas Riley Marshall of Indiana is somewhat stunted by the rising tide of popular talk about his presidential candidacy, but it is not likely that he will have much more than a naive son vote on the first ballot. Maybe it will grow to sizeable proportions.

LONG LIST OF FAVORITE SONS. Then will come the long list of favorite sons, with an aggregate of some 300 pledged votes among them.

Gov. Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey appears not to have gone beyond the "fourteen votes" in his own strength.

There is a question whether Gov. Smith of New York can lay claim to New York's thirty votes, as the unit rule may be invoked against the first ballot.

John W. Davis of West Virginia may have a few more than the sixteen votes of his state delegation.

Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma has his state's twenty-two votes as a net gain.

Others with pledged home state delegations are Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, Senator Charles McNary of Oregon, Germany Gerard, with South Dakota's ten votes; Senator Simmons of South Carolina with eighteen votes.

The session former Ambassador Gerard probably will be honored by the first nominating speech, as Arkansas will yield to South Dakota when the roll of states is called.

But these candidate races come up to the wire with the nervousness of thoroughbred and no one cares to "beat the barrier" lest the finish be bad.

John F. Crosby being prepared to voice his merits.

Georgia will yield to Pennsylvania, and a Mitchell-Parker lot will be cast by John H. Bigelow of the anthracite towns of Hazleton, Pa.

The court offered Abbott a suspended sentence if he would pay at once $100 to the county clerk for the support of his wife and agree to pay $10 a month for the next year.

Abbott announced that he would rather go to prison for life than to contribute to his wife's support. He is the son of a wealthy farmer in Johnson county and Mrs. Abbott is the daughter of Albert Hitchcock, a rural mail carrier of Hope.

WOMEN EAGERLY STUDYING MOVES

Mrs. Bass Says They Take to Work Earnestly.

By MRS. GEORGE BASS. SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—A good many women are having their first insight into the may I say conventional—ways of man for the first time, and they are amazed, amused, confused and interested all the time.

Some of the women here were at the recent biennial, so they have an excellent chance to compare this convention with that one—this with its brief, indefinite day-to-day spontaneous program so different from the long, carefully worked out, sometimes exhaustive and always exhausting mental drill of fare that gives every good clubwoman brain pain biennially.

However, there are certain points of agreement.

Most of the delegates to both club and political conventions are in dead earnest, burning with zeal for some great cause and with no little of their own to grind, and if we are all acquainted with the occasional woman delegate whose main idea is to wear as many changes of raiment as possible she has her counterpart in the man who thinks his one, solemn, urgent duty is to make as much noise as possible on every possible occasion.

Men are used to going to conventions and letting the committees do the work, but in women's conventions we all of us have a great deal to do right along, and I am willing to predict that within the next dozen years the meetings of the platform and resolutions committee, and they should be separate committees.

All these women are eager and interested and they want to know what is going on and hear the discussions that precede the recommendations of the committees.

The stalwart jest that platforms are meant to get in on, rather than to stand on, has gone into the discard forever, and if women had done only this in the year of their first convention, they would have more than justified their presence.

Receiver Named for Huntington Foundry

HUNTINGTON, Ind., June 30.—Suit asking a receiver for the Huntington Steel Foundry was filed in the Huntington federal court yesterday by A. L. White, president of the company.

The complaint says there is danger of the company becoming insolvent. White says that it owes him several thousand dollars.

In addition to this White says he is the indorser of about $50,000 worth of notes, some of which are due and some of which come due in the near future.

Judge Eberhart appointed W. W. Hawley receiver.

Clark, who was arrested last night on a vagrant charge, was taken to the Indianapolis from Springfield, Ill., about a month ago.

Tentative Draft of Planks for 'Frisco Platform

program of the woman's party having to do with such as old age pensions, non-employment insurance, maternity benefits, improvement of conditions among workers has been met favorably, it is said.

The use of the injunction in labor disputes was the subject of long discussion, but commendation of it may be omitted. IRELAND's effort has been made to put into the platform an Irish plank which will declare the futility of passing resolutions in favor of the Irish republic or even recognizing the republic, but the importance of turning the question over to the league of nations is favored. It is not clear at this time what form this plank will take.

MEXICO.—The sentiment of the committee is for a plank which will withhold recognition from any government of Mexico that does not comply with such responsibilities as maintenance of effective border patrol, honest government, enactment of laws fit to protect foreign investments and legitimate enterprises, fair taxation of foreigners and payment of international obligations.

SOLDIERS' BONUSES.—It is doubtful if the platform will favor the flat payment of soldiers' bonuses, but will provide for proper assistance for maimed, crippled or sick soldiers as a government duty through an efficient board.

And I am willing to predict that within the next dozen years the meetings of the platform and resolutions committee, and they should be separate committees.

All these women are eager and interested and they want to know what is going on and hear the discussions that precede the recommendations of the committees.

Bryan Fighting for Political Existence

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—Bryan is waging the fight of his life. On prohibition issue, it is apparent, he has a chance to win, but on the league issue it looks as if he has his back to the wall.

Administration forces are not considering a compromise with the Nebraska, firmly believing they can beat him in the committee and on the floor.

Bryan's direct challenge to Wilson on the league issue was made in his speech at the Jackson Day banquet in Washington last January, has not been forgotten.

The Wilson leaders evidently want to eliminate him from politics and are determined to annihilate him in the present encounter.

If Bryan is decisively beaten in the league fight, his opponents will feel he has been definitely crushed politically. This they hold would obliterate all chances of Bryan influencing the presidential nomination or holding a veto power over any candidate.
