

U. S. SLEUTHS ON SCENT OF JAIL DELIVERY PLOT

asking such an investigation," replied Shank.

The three county commissioners were in session this morning informally discussing the jail delivery.

"The sheriff never asked the commissioners to improve the locks in the federal row and he only asked that the locks on the south side be fixed as good as those on the north side.

"Isn't that right?" asked Commissioner Carlisle Shank of Commissioner Joseph Hayes.

"That's right," said Hayes. "But that isn't the question involved at this time.

"The question is, suppose that the sheriff had every cell locked which he could have had locked and suppose that the tin can used as a blow torch and the inflammable disinfectant were not in the cells, well we would not have had the jail delivery."

Commissioner Shank said he was of the opinion there were two deputy watchmen on at night.

"When the workhouse was in operation we had two watchmen on at night with certain hours for the cellhouse guard to report to the other guard," said Hayes.

MAY DRAW UP CONTRACT.

The commissioners have not taken any formal action but it was intimated a formal contract will be drawn up either between the commissioners and the federal authorities or the jailer and the federal authorities, if federal prisoners are to be kept at the jail.

The upshot of the entire matter may be the removal of the federal prisoners from the Marion county jail to another building, probably the Vigo county jail at Terre Haute.

Sheriff Miller again made another public statement to The Times today:

"I am surprised to hear that Mr. Shank or any other county commissioner would say that I failed to report the locks to the cellrooms of the federal row were out of order," said Sheriff Miller today.

"Every county commissioner knows that those locks were not working and that the prisoners were confined in one big pen and could go from cell to cell as they pleased at night.

"They know that had the locks on those cell doors been working that only the prisoners confined in one cell would have been able to escape and not more than half the men confined in the entire federal row.

"BLAME RESTS ON COMMISSIONERS."

"The blame rests on the shoulders of the county commissioners," declared Miller, "and there is no use of them trying to dodge their responsibility for not having done their duty."

"I guess Judge James Collins will see some of these prisoners are brought to court," added the sheriff, "and not be permitted to wait months before being tried as is true in many cases. No wonder the men wanted to escape."

United States Marshal Storen has information which tends to show the jail breakers actually used their cell-made "blow torch" to take the temper out of the steel bars during the day time and not at night.

This throws much light on the boldness of the scheme and the open manner in which the fugitives are said to have operated.

The jail delivery also shows the utter failure of the so-called "cell house" system under which the sheriff is said to have depended for protection from escapes.

RECENT JAIL HISTORY.

Sheriff Miller some time ago had Jack Hampton as a cell boss and the evidence in the criminal and federal courts showed that he was a "good fellow" and was very accommodating to the "boys" in jail, it is said.

He later was removed as cell boss, it is said, and Ollie Brown, one of the fugitives and a man waiting trial on a charge of manslaughter, made cell boss, DROVE CAR THAT KILLED NUN.

Brown is known as a former parole violator and charged with driving a taxicab which struck a nun on Monument place some time ago, resulting in her death.

So Brown, it is said, was entrusted with the control of those in federal row.

Brown is said to be one of the ring-leaders of the jail delivery conspiracy.

Authorities point out that the "cell boss" system is a joke and should be abolished.

The cell boss system is said to be simply a plan which reduces the operating expenses of the jail by saving some expenses for the sheriff in not hiring extra deputy sheriffs under oath to properly guard the jail.

SAY AUTO WAITED OUTSIDE OF JAIL

Detectives announced today that they had learned that an automobile was waiting outside the jail for at least one of the twenty-four prisoners who escaped early Monday morning from the jail.

They would not reveal the source of their information, but said they had learned that a large automobile in which three men were sitting, was waiting outside the jail and that Arthur Welling, alleged professional safe cracker, stepped into the car as he left the jail.

The car is said to have gone west on Pearl street to Delaware street, thence north.

All except one of the keys stolen by the prisoners were found today by Sheriff Robert Miller.

The keys were taken by the prisoners from Ernest Dreier, 1234 Cottage avenue, night jailer, after they had beaten, tied and gagged Dreier.

The keys were found in the drawer of the sheriff's desk among some papers.

Why the escaping prisoners had chosen that method of disposing of the keys is not known and no reason has been found for the thieves taking the outside door key with them and leaving the other keys.

Now that the first excitement following the big jail delivery has subsided Sheriff Miller has started systematically to determine if possible every detail of the plot that led up to it.

Eight of the twenty-four prisoners were captured the first day and they are safely back in the Federal row.

The hole, ten inches square, in the lower part of the northeast cellroom has been patched.

PLANS OF ESCAPE NOT PERFECTED.

It developed in Sheriff Miller's investigation that the prisoners had not perfected their plans of escape further than to reach the outside corridor surrounding the inner cage or row of cells in the Federal row, overpower the night jailer, steal his keys and make for the outside.

After reaching the first floor the prisoners did not at once go to the office of the jail, as they thought there was another guard there.

The escaping prisoners went to the basement of the jail, planning to escape through the tunnel.

This tunnel leads under the power house, west of the jail, and north under the alley to the courthouse, and was built to ensure the safe transporting of prisoners to and from criminal court.

Had the prisoners been able to unlock the door of the tunnel they could have easily escaped either into the power house, which has not been used in years,

Jail Breakers Elude Capture

Top—Arthur Welling and Jake Shane. Second row—Henry Tunnicliffe and Ollie Brown. Third row—Albert May and George Alberts. Fourth row—Harry Hardacre and Dorsey Horney.

The police still are searching today for some of the most desperate of the twenty-four men who escaped from the county jail early yesterday.

Sixteen of them, including Arthur Welling, who is said to be one of the most expert safe crackers who ever operated in Indianapolis, said Shane, who was being held at the courthouse, where it would have been easy to reach the outside.

The prisoners while in the basement were seen by a merchant policeman before 1 o'clock Monday morning. It was learned today, but the policeman said he thought the men were working and did not dream they were trying to escape from jail.

Failing to make good their escape by way of the tunnel, the twenty-four prisoners went to the office of the jail, unlocked the door and were surprised to find that there was no guard in the office and that Dreier was the only night jailer in the building.

They then unlocked the outside door of the jail office, which leads to the little side porch and jail yard.

Throwing all the keys except the one used in unlocking the side door into a drawer of the sheriff's desk, they made their escape.

Henry Tunnicliffe was the leader of the escaping prisoners, according to Fred Heller, hotel keeper, serving a sentence for violating the prohibition laws, and who is a cell boss in federal row.

Heller said the men closed the door of the northeast cell and worked in day time at sawing the bars.

Heller declared that Tunnicliffe asked Metabarger if he (Heller) had entered the cell Sunday and when told that Heller had not, said, "if he had I would have killed him."

TOOK FOUR WEEKS TO SAW THROUGH BARS.

It required about four weeks to saw the bars, according to prisoners who did not escape, but it was not until the last three days that much progress was made and that was when the prisoners were able to get the bars heated to the proper temperature.

Dr. W. E. Mendenhall, who is caring for Dreier, gave orders that none but relatives be permitted to see him.

The physician, however, said that Dreier's injuries would not prove serious.

Dr. Mendenhall said Dreier's most serious injury was to his throat, he having been choked by the escaping prisoners.

After the police had been spread over the city for thirty-six hours and the police of every city in the country notified of the breaking out of jail of twenty-four prisoners, there were just eight men recaptured.

Most important of these was George Shaw, alias Fletcher B. Rodgers, known as the "north side burglar."

Of the sixteen prisoners who were still at large early today eight are charged with federal offenses.

The men wanted by the federal authorities are Henry Tunnicliffe, said to be the leader of the escaped jail breakers and who is under a five-year sentence; George Saylor, Jack Prinster, Walter C. Smith, Ray McGonigill, Harry Bright, Roy F. Comer and Fred Stiner, alias Stelmman.

The men for whom the state authorities are searching are Harry Hardacre, William Badie, Dorsey Horney, alias

ASSEMBLY WILL MEET MONDAY IN SPECIAL SESSION

the amount necessary for the maintenance of state institutions during the remainder of the current year.

Otto Klaus, auditor of state, did this, drawing the sum of $290,000, but he refused to repeat this process when funds became depleted this year.

APPROPRIATION OF $500,000 NEEDED.

It will be necessary for the assembly to appropriate $500,000 for the maintenance of state institutions and to legalize the acts of the auditor of state in drawing the $290,000.

While Gov. Goodrich will not make public in advance the things he will ask in his message to the legislature to accomplish, it is understood that the assembly will be requested to take up the proposed war memorial building which also is to be used to house the national headquarters of the American legion.

The present proposal is for the construction of a building on the site of the proposed plaza north of University park. The project will cost, according to present estimates, a total of $10,000,000, of which that legislature will be asked to supply $5,000,000, the county to supply $5,000,000 and the city $2,000,000.

PLAN MAY BRING ABOUT FIGHT.

It is understood this plan meets with the opposition of a number of out-state legislators and that may bring about a fight in the assembly.

These are only two of the many things that can come before the assembly, including the amendment of the highway law, the providing of increased levies for the state highway commission, legislation to provide for women voters, an amendment to the county unit highway law to correct errors of the last general assembly, an increase in interest on municipal bonds, and numerous other proposals.

Some months ago when Gov. Goodrich made one of his numerous plans to call a special session, he outlined eighteen proposed measures which might come before the legislature.

It is understood, however, that he will not urge the assembly to take up all of these matters as he is interested first in a brief session.

The time for convening the assembly was set at 10 o'clock in order that a caucus, the chief purpose of which will be to limit the session, may be held by republican members, who are in the majority, in the morning.

ASKS RETURN OF FREIGHT CONTROL

McCardle Goes to Washington to Discuss Coal Situation.

Forced by the acute coal conditions in the state, Commissioner John W. McCardle left Indianapolis today for Washington, D. C., where he will propose to the interstate commerce commission to turn back into the hands of the public service commission the operation and direction of car movements throughout the state.

Since the passage of the Eech-Commins rail control bill, which provides for federal direction of car movements, satisfactory rail service has not been maintained in Indiana.

Under the direction of the state public service commission in 1917 and 1918 the car situation was very successful.

Coal which is now being mined is held because of the shortage of cars for transportation, according to Chairman E. I. Lewis of the public service commission.

Inability of farmers to obtain a sufficient supply of coal to promote the thrashing program and the extreme shortage of coal which faces the private home prompted the action taken by the commission.

While he was in Washington Commissioner McCardle will confer with Senators Watson and New regarding the temporary recall of the Eech-Commins rail control bill.

Such an action by congress would place the control of coal distribution in the hands of the state public service commission.

Boys Draw Fine and Year at State Farm

Robert Wadsworth, 21, and Floyd Ensey, 17, Castleton, Ind., today were found guilty of petit larceny, fined $1 and costs and sentenced to serve one year at the Indiana State Farm.

Judge James A. Collins in criminal court heard the evidence.

The pair were indicted on charges of burglary and petit larceny.

They were found guilty of breaking into the store of George Herr, at Castleton, stealing about $10 worth of cigars and cigarettes.

The state notified the first court against the two young men.

'Red Weevil' Added Enemy of Wheat Crop

LAFAYETTE, Ind., July 6.—Reports from Purdue university announce that the "red weevil" has lately been found in many parts of the state and threatens to become almost as dangerous to the wheat crop as the Hessian fly.

The insect attacks the young wheat grain, sucks the juice from it and causes the grain to "shrive," although the damage ceases when the kernel ripens.

The best remedy known against it is deep fall plowing of wheat stubble land, to bury the insect in the pupa stage.

Rotation of crops so that wheat will not follow wheat is also a good plan to avoid the propagation of the insect.

Henry Tunnicliffe was the leader of the escaping prisoners, according to Fred Heller, hotel keeper, serving a sentence for violating the prohibition laws, and who is a cell boss in federal row.

Heller said the men closed the door of the northeast cell and worked in day time at sawing the bars.

Putting Life Into "Slow Movers"

MANY A WORTHY PRODUCT has met an untimely end for want of proper marketing. Others, for the same reason, are eking out a bare existence when they might be leading profit makers.

for instance:

We found a "slow mover" among the products of one of our clients. It was an excellent product, and it "stayed sold"—but its development was so slow that it was not a profit maker. We analyzed the product and the market, then produced a marketing plan which from the very first brought astonishingly large returns.

Let us talk to you about your market, and its possibilities. An informal conference will not obligate you.
