

WOMEN HOLD REINS IN TWO TOWNS OF U. S.

Jewett, Texas, Boasts Progress With All Its Offices in Feminine Control.

WYOMING SHOWS FAITH

There are two towns in the United States where women have the reins of government in their hands.

Jewett, Tex., was the first to come under feminine rule.

This little city not only has a mayor, but also claims the distinction of having elected a full city council of women, each of whom has jurisdiction over some particular department of municipal control.

Mrs. J. T. Adkinson, the mayor (the correct expression is mayoress) is also the municipal police judge, but so orderly and law abiding have the people been since the women came into office, that as yet there has been no occasion to hold court.

Mrs. Adkinson says there is every reason to believe that under the administration of women, Jewett will lead a quiet, peaceful existence and it is believed that women can fill the city positions to a better advantage than the men.

TOWN CLEAN-UP COMES FIRST

The first thing that the women did after being installed in office, was to institute a clean-up campaign, which was carried out according to the housecleaning instincts of the average woman and the town is now cleaner than most of the larger towns of the state, for Jewett's population is only 1,000.

All civic problems will be worked out in a systematic way, according to Mrs. Adkinson, and no more disorderly and lawless town will be seen in the future.

The mayoress of Jewett expect to visit other towns while in office in the hope of gaining ideas that will be of some help to her while she presides over the little city during her period of administration.

But Jewett, Texas, is not the only incident of this kind in America.

Way up among the Wyoming mountains, seventy-five miles from the nearest railroad point, is another town where the hand that rocks the cradle also pilots the municipal ship.

This place is called Jackson Hole and the entire municipal board is made up of women, and they are giving a "same and businesslike administration," it is said.

Each of the five women office holders is an old resident of the community, and Mrs. Grace G. Miller, the wife of a bank president, is the mayor and the remaining officers are among the best of the town.

When these women were elected the vote was the largest in the town's history and they defeated the men candidates two to one.

Now, the "gentle reader" must not get the idea that Jackson Hole was of the proverbial wild and woolly west type of town when the women took charge of things there, for it was anything but that.

SUPPORT EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

The citizens of the little burg are refined and intellectual and have long believed that women should have the right of suffrage and take part in the affairs of government.

While the little valley is isolated from the rest of the world by its towering mountains, it is probably the most peaceful valley in the United States.

It is known as the Switzerland of America and is visited by thousands of tourists every year.

Jackson Hole has the distinction of having had the greatest percentage of its population in the service during the war other than any other locality of its size in the country.

Wyoming has had woman suffrage for fifty-one years.

The right of women to vote is not a new thing to them, but this is the first town in the state to be given over entirely to "petticoat rule," as the saying goes, and it has proved a success.

Such are the changes brought about by the progress of time.

Old things are passing away like a tale that is told.

Women are taking a hand in our governmental affairs and the world grows better thereby.

Phelactine, New Wonder Worker for Hair Growths
(Causes Even the Roots to Come Out)

By an entirely new and perfectly harmless method, any woman afflicted with a growth of superfluous hair can now remove the disfigurement completely—roots included—in just a few seconds. Isn't that glorious news?

The recently discovered phelactine process is altogether different from electrical, depilatory and other methods heretofore employed for the purpose. It is the only thing that enables one to remove roots and all in one's own home without expert assistance. The result can not be doubted, for the user sees the hair-roots with her own eyes. A stick of phelactine, with simple instructions, can be procured at any drug store. It is odorless, non-irritating, non-poisonous (a child could eat it without injury). The method is so thorough that the skin is left perfectly smooth and hairless, leaving not the least evidence of its former blemish.—Advertisement.
