

MODERN MODES NOT IMMODEST

Expert Says Fashions Judged
by Present Standards.

LONDON, July 20.—"There is nothing immodest in present-day dresses," the principal of a well-known dressmaking establishment declares to the Globe.

"Fashions today," he said, "judged by present-day standards, are not more immodest than were those of any other age, when judged by the standards of that age."

"It is very seldom," he continued, "that the same creation will suit two women."

"A dress worn by one person might not evoke the slightest thought of impropriety, while if worn by another it would immediately become suggestive."

"Perhaps the churchmen who have been attacking styles have come across people who did not wear dresses particularly suited to their style of beauty, and the minds of these men, instinctively realizing that something was wrong, but at the same time not understanding what it was, immediately concluded that the dresses were immodest."

"Again," the designer added, "if a woman is endowed with a perfect pair of shoulders and arms, why should she hide them or try to improve upon the work of nature with man's artificial substitute?"

Realizing that there was perhaps another than the artistic side to the question, the Globe representative turned to the commercial aspect of the dressmaking business.

The manager interviewed here, however, was only able wisely to say that "the women of today must want the short dress and the bare back, otherwise how would it be possible to sell such fashions?"

"Everybody," he declared, "has a distaste for something that is personally I never smoke, and I dislike seeing women smoke their after-dinner cigarette."

"I know, however, that if a woman wants anything all the protests in the world will not stop her from having it, and it is only our duty to anticipate her wishes in the matter of clothing."

"Woman wants the type of dress which has been called immodest, though in reality it is only so when judged by the standards of another generation."

Every One Home Canner Now

Without if you can't, but can anyway," says the department of agriculture.

Hundreds of Indianapolis women are co-operating with the request of the federal government to conserve every bit of the vegetable production of this year, and are doing their own canning.

They have found that much less sugar is needed than they were accustomed to use before the war, and have also found that certain syrups can be substituted, doing the preservative work as efficiently as the sugar.

The high cost of sugar, as well as its scarcity, no doubt has deterred many women from doing their own canning, being doubtful as to the outcome.

Others have said that they could not obtain the product except at a prohibitive price.

But these are just minor impediments, for the Indianapolis housewife says "where there is a will, there is a way," and goes right straight to filling her shelves with every kind of the season's production.

Among Indianapolis women who have joined the movement are Mrs. William H. Hart, 631 East drive, Woodruff Place, president of the Housewives' league, and Mrs. William A. Ragan, 2011 North Talbot avenue, secretary of the organization.

Mrs. Hart says: "I have done my own canning for a great many years, and would not give up doing it for anything."

"I put up all my fruits and vegetables by the cold pack, and have always found it very satisfactory."

Mrs. Ragan said that she has found that many women who never did their own canning began doing so during the war, at the request of the government, and have had such good results that they are doing it again this year.

"In fact," says Mrs. Ragan, "I believe they will continue to do it all the time now."

WOMAN'S ROTARY MEETS ON FARM

Contests and 'Sing' Features of Evening.

An interesting outing was held by the Woman's Rotary club yesterday evening, at the home of Mrs. Louis Burkhardt on Williams creek.

A corn roast and 6 o'clock dinner followed an exploration of the farm, and a series of contests were entered into by the members during the evening.

Dr. Jane Ketchum carried off the honors in the swimming contest and Dr. Amelia Keller, president of the club, took first place in the corresponding contest.

At twilight Mrs. Helen Warren Chaplin sang "Her Dream." Mrs. Fern Flint sang "To the End of the Lane" and Miss Ella Browning gave a song in pantomime.

Mrs. Burkhardt, who is listed on the club roll as a bookkeeper, gave a practical demonstration of her work and served samples to her guests.

A club "sing" around a blazing bonfire closed the night's events.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. G. H. T. Scribner of San Francisco, with Mrs. Albert Rabb; Mrs. E. B. Miller and Mrs. Bertha Barker of Newcastle with Miss Eleanor Barker, and Mrs. Scott McKenzie Fraser of Dothan, Ala., with Dr. Marie Kast.

Will Make Plans for Nurses' Home

Board of Health Selects Indianapolis Architect.

After considering preliminary plans submitted by more than twenty Indianapolis and out-of-town architects, William East Rust, Indianapolis architect, was selected to make permanent plans for the proposed nurses' home at a meeting of the city board of health last night.

Selection of the architect was not made on a competitive basis as was first intended by the board, but was made on consideration of previous hospital work done.

Mr. Rust has planned several Indianapolis buildings, the Peter Bent Brigham hospital in Baltimore, the Boston Home for Nurses at Boston and other eastern institutional buildings that are considered standard architecture.

The home for the nurses, which will be built in connection with the City hospital, will cost $350,000, with approximately one-third that amount for equipment.

The architecture of the proposed building will conform with the general lines of the remainder of the City hospital buildings, according to Dr. Herman G. Morgan, secretary of the city board of health.

Dr. Morgan said that accommodations will be furnished by the new building for 120 nurses.

The building will be three stories high, of brick and steel construction and will have recreational and educational facilities.
