A group of antique china lent to the John Herron Art Institute by Mrs. J. H. Weaver of Greencastle, Ind., forms an interesting exhibition which will be displayed during the remainder of the summer.

William Dudley Foulke's collection of paintings by old masters and George C. Calvert's group of American artists' works will also continue on display.

The Persian and Oriental paintings, belonging to Mrs. Chauncey Blair of New York city, which have drawn many visitors during the past week, will be in the institute until fall.

In Mrs. Weaver's collection there are six pieces of antique Austrian china.

The delicate "Fire Steeples" plates and pitchers are valuable, because the art of making them has been lost long ago.

OLD VIENNA CHINA.

LIKE MODERN WARE.

Six pieces of old Vienna china, made way back in the fifteenth century, seem very like the hand-painted china we find in modern homes.

Two pieces, supposed to have been used in the Austrian foot-washing ceremony, are very interesting.

A chest containing an old-fashioned claret set is another antique article in the collection.

It comes from France, being made with French filigree of mother-of-pearl.

Another miniature chest containing a tea service is of Chinese origin.

Tiny Chinese figures are inlaid on both the chest and the tea set.

There are a number of pictures in William Dudley Foulke's collection of old masters which deserve a second visit.

"The Picture Book," by Jastinsky, a Polish artist, who exhibited a number of important pictures at the Columbus exposition in Chicago in 1893, is perhaps the most striking picture in the entire collection.

A little girl, with big, brown eyes that speak, is falling asleep over a picture book.

Her curly hair is tousled, and her doll has been pushed aside on the table.

The attitude and the choice of coloring by the artist bring out the childish characteristics most effectively.

A lifelike portrait of St. Francis of Assisi, attributed to Zurbaran, but probably the work of a Spanish artist of an earlier date, holds the attention of the visitor.

It is a strongly marked face over which gloomy shadows play.

The dark, somber colors emphasize the portrayal of the friar of the dark ages.

A long austere robe drops from his shoulders to his feet; in one hand he carries a cross and in the other a book.

His bare feet gleam on the stone floor, showing the nails which have been placed through them.

"The Lofoden Islands," the work of an unknown Danish artist, makes an interesting study in gray tones.

The feature which saves the picture from monotony is the pink topping of the cliffs.

The artist has been very skillful in making his objects stand out plainly with hardly perceptible differences in color.

"Madonna and Child With St. Elizabeth and John the Baptist," painted by an artist of the school of Carracci, is a very interesting picture.

Mr. Foulke purchased the picture in an old junk shop in Italy.

He found that the picture had been painted over and gave it to an expert artist in Berlin.

This artist discovered that it was already upon its second canvass to which it had been pasted.

BELONGS TO SCHOOL OF CARRACCI.

He identified it as belonging to the school of Carracci, from the texture of the original canvass.

The picture is an adaptation of one of Titian's works now in the Pitti gallery in Florence.

In the Florentine picture the figure of St. John is on the other side, but the virgin's face and the child are much the same in all.

The colors, although naturally dull, are much dimmed and in some places the figures have become almost obliterated.

"The Turgler and His Schatz," painted by Huzo Kaufmann, a Munich artist, is an interesting little picture, which shows a marked regard for color and detail.

Another picture by Kaufmann is called the "Bavarian Girl," and shows the same delicacy for mingling colors of varying shades.

The "Portrait of a Lady," apparently of the Elizabethan period, shows a strongly marked face with a striking contrast in the waist.

"Rebecca at the Well," which is a copy by a French artist of Murillo's painting in the Prado gallery.

It is pronounced a remarkably accurate copy by authorities, although reduced in size.

The colors are well blended, and offer an interesting study in faces.

Hot Summer Sun Trying On the Complexion

How to Protect Your Skin and Bring Roses to Your Cheeks

A Free Oatmeal Prescription Does Its Work Overnight. You Can Prepare It at Home.

New York—Exposure to sun, dust and wind has a very bad effect upon the skin and complexion. There is a way to overcome this. "It is my own discovery and takes just one night to get such marvelous results," says Mae Edna Wilder when her friends ask her about her wonderful complexion and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. "You can do the same thing if you follow my advice," she says. "I feel it my duty to tell every girl and woman what this wonderful prescription did for me. Just think of it. All this change in a single night. I never tire of telling others just what brought about such remarkable results. Here is the identical formula that removed every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you form no idea of the marvelous change it will make in just one application. The prescription, which you can prepare at your own home, is as follows: "Go to any grocery store and get ten cents' worth of ordinary oatmeal, and from any department or drug store a bottle of Derwillo. Prepare the oatmeal as directed in every package of Derwillo. Before applying Derwillo cleanse the skin thoroughly with a good cleansing cream. (Laska cold cream I have found to be the best). The first application will astonish you. It makes the skin appear transparent, smooth and velvety. I especially recommend this method for dark, sallow skin, shiny nose, freckles, tan, and sun spots, coarse pores, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles, and, in fact, every blemish the face, hands and arms are heir to. If your neck or chest is discolored from exposure, apply this combination there and the objectionable defect will disappear as if by magic. It is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. Since short sleeves are in vogue it is necessary to have beautiful hands and arms and
