

G. O. P. VICTORY AT POLLS MEANS 'INVISIBLE RULE'

Morgenthau Denounces Re-publican Senate and Plat-form of Harding.

WILL AID ROOSEVELT

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 30.—In a sweeping denunciation of the group of senators who, he said, had obstructed the passage of the peace treaty and league of nations, Henry Morgenthau today asserted that the United States again faced, in the event of a republican election next November, the rule of "invisible government" from which the whole world fought to free itself in the war.

Mr. Morgenthau made these statements after he had called on Franklin Roosevelt at Camp Obello Island to assure him of his earnest support in the fight of the democratic party to endorse the league.

"When the thinking people of this country read Senator Harding's acceptance speech," said Mr. Morgenthau, "they hung their heads in shame, and asked, has it come to this?

"The small group of senators who dictated Harding's nomination, and by whom, according to his own frank admission, he will be advised, represent a clique which plans to govern the United States.

"These men were elected, not by the people, not by the republican party, to this eminence, but by themselves.

DEMOCRACY.

"Their methods and purposes are the most untrue democracy, and represent, in fact, the very things which the world fought Germany to prevent—autocracy, selfishness and the determination to perpetuate arbitrary power.

"These are not the characteristics of Americanism, but those of a party which, out of the spirit of Wilson and determination, dictate themselves the policies of the American people, defeated the treaty of peace and the league of nations.

"But they are going to find it difficult to explain their actions to the world, and the world to the real issues."

"The boys who fought and the laborers who toiled to win the war for lasting peace will never tolerate them as guardians of American's destiny in the development of a civilization based on morality, nor will the peace of this land subscribe to the workings of invisible government."

"Mr. Harding's supporters are principally those who have so misunderstood our national spirit that they think they can gain their object by throwing the public into a state of indifference and complacency with the pap of former years."

"That time is past.

"The clock will never go back to the days of Mark Hanna."

"The thinking people, whose sober second thought is always right, will cry 'Shame' upon the professional politicians who, in the face of our phenomenal achievement in the war, would for party purposes and profit befool their own nest."

"It is strange to an objective observer, and particularly to one who knows and believes in the American people, that these efforts to realize how decent and beautiful the American people will be at the attempt to represent them to the world as 'quitters.'

"When has America ever stopped in a task she undertook?"

"What has our nation's youth done to merit such an accusation?

"The inconsistency of those who trade on inane professions of patriotism and the like is glaringly apparent at the most cursory examination of their acts convict them.

"Does not everyone recall their persistent and almost venomous criticism of the president when he refused to plunge the nation into the war hurriedly and without preparation on the invasion of Belgium, and later on the occasion of the Lusitania atrocity?

"Yet these are the very people who are obstructing the passage of a treaty framed to protect Belgium and all other nations, great and small, against those very disasters with which they professed such vehement sympathy.

"Mr. Wilson may have made mistakes. EVERY ONE HAS MADE MISTAKES.

"No human being has failed to do that in the execution of tasks much smaller than his since the world began."

"But what words can describe the actions of senators who were willing to make the greatest document since the Magna Charta a football in the arena of politics?

"These men have talked of autocracy in the whitehouse.

"The makers of our constitution took great care that the president should be deprived of the possibility of exercising autocratic power, were that his dearest wish."

"Neither did they intend that the legislative houses should usurp the powers of the executive."

The people of the United States will recoil at the thought of government by the cloakroom of the senate.

"What is going to become of the world if we turn our back on it?" If America is the one truly resourceful nation left after the war, is to desert her allies and neighbors in their need, and erect against them a wall as high and thick as party politics can make it.

"One-half of the population of Europe between the ages of 10 and 40 has been killed or invalidated by the conflict."

"The percentage of children between the ages of 5 and 7 years, who will never attain physical and mental maturity because of underfeeding and conditions incidental to the struggle is greater, very much greater."

"A little group of politicians continues to falsify every generous sentiment, aim and ideal of this great people," Morgenthau concluded.

"The tide is turning."

"America is awakening from the short rest she took from her mighty exertions in the war. She will resume her onward march before Nov. 2, 1920."

British May Mix in Syrian Affair

LONDON, July 30.—Forced abdication of Emir Feisal, as ruler of Syria would result in Britain abandoning its "hands off" attitude in that country, it was stated today by a very high authority in the Foreign Office.

(Previous dispatches reported Emir Feisal has been deposed on orders of Gen. Gouraud of France.)

The foreign office authority said Britain was not officially aware that Feisal had been deposed.

Feisal is in disfavor, it was said, but if he were forced to, as reported Britain probably would protest to France.

Burglars Work While Muncie Cops Saunter

Special to The Times.
MUNCIE, Ind., July 30.—While merchant policemen and night patrolmen sauntered near, burglars early today took the lock off the front door of the Marx & Kallmeyer clothing store, only a few feet from the public square, filled several grips with a thousand dollars worth of clothing and departed whence they came.

IRISH CAN'T QUIT EMPIRE—PREMIER

Lloyd George Points to Coming
Up of Disorders Bill.

DUBLIN, July 30.—Frank Brooke, member of the privy council and virtual head of the British government in Ireland, said today that Lord Hugh Gough, the lord lieutenant, was shot and killed this afternoon while en route to his office.

He was confidential adviser to the lord lieutenant and was one of the richest men in Ireland.

LONDON, July 30.—Reports of scattered disorders in Ireland were received today, following a twenty-four-hour calm.

Much interest was manifested in the new bill authorizing measures to pacify Ireland.

Premier Lloyd George, answering questions of a delegation representing the lords of lords and commons, said:

"Wait until Aug. 5, when the Irish disorders bill will be considered.

"The bill has been drafted in very drastic terms in the hope that it will enable us to cope with the disorders.

"Irish will not be allowed to leave the empire."

"Munitions shipments to Ireland will be continued."

Six persons have been killed in a battle between civilians and troops at Bruce, in Limerick county, according to unconfirmed reports from Dublin.

Communication with Bruce was cut off, making it impossible to get confirmation of the reported heavy casualties.

A military force is said to have been ambushed and one soldier killed.

A Dublin dispatch yesterday said five persons, including a soldier, were reported killed in a fight between soldiers, constabulary and Sinn Feiners at Bruce, near Killmallock.

Two others were wounded when they were held up in front of the Bank of Ireland in Dublin.

The Dublin council representing all political parties has passed a resolution saying it "views with horror" the "crimes and reprisals" which are rapidly making life in Ireland "intolerable."

And it asks that the government concede a measure of self-government, subject to the restrictions that Ulster remain in the empire and Ulster be no coerced.

"That time is past."

"The clock will never go back to the days of Mark Hanna."

"The thinking people, whose sober second thought is always right, will cry 'Shame' upon the professional politicians who, in the face of our phenomenal achievement in the war, would for party purposes and profit befool their own nest."

"It is strange to an objective observer, and particularly to one who knows and believes in the American people, that these efforts to realize how decent and beautiful the American people will be at the attempt to represent them to the world as 'quitters.'

"When has America ever stopped in a task she undertook?"

"What has our nation's youth done to merit such an accusation?

"The inconsistency of those who trade on inane professions of patriotism and the like is glaringly apparent at the most cursory examination of their acts convict them.

"Does not everyone recall their persistent and almost venomous criticism of the president when he refused to plunge the nation into the war hurriedly and without preparation on the invasion of Belgium, and later on the occasion of the Lusitania atrocity?

"Yet these are the very people who are obstructing the passage of a treaty framed to protect Belgium and all other nations, great and small, against those very disasters with which they professed such vehement sympathy.

"Mr. Wilson may have made mistakes. EVERY ONE HAS MADE MISTAKES.

"No human being has failed to do that in the execution of tasks much smaller than his since the world began."

"But what words can describe the actions of senators who were willing to make the greatest document since the Magna Charta a football in the arena of politics?

"These men have talked of autocracy in the whitehouse.

"The makers of our constitution took great care that the president should be deprived of the possibility of exercising autocratic power, were that his dearest wish."

"Neither did they intend that the legislative houses should usurp the powers of the executive."

The people of the United States will recoil at the thought of government by the cloakroom of the senate.

"What is going to become of the world if we turn our back on it?" If America is the one truly resourceful nation left after the war, is to desert her allies and neighbors in their need, and erect against them a wall as high and thick as party politics can make it.

"One-half of the population of Europe between the ages of 10 and 40 has been killed or invalidated by the conflict."

"The percentage of children between the ages of 5 and 7 years, who will never attain physical and mental maturity because of underfeeding and conditions incidental to the struggle is greater, very much greater."

"A little group of politicians continues to falsify every generous sentiment, aim and ideal of this great people," Morgenthau concluded.

"The tide is turning."

"America is awakening from the short rest she took from her mighty exertions in the war. She will resume her onward march before Nov. 2, 1920."

Widespread Protest Is Made Against Release of Draft Dodger by Fighters

CHICAGO, July 30.—Widespread protests were heard here today from men who fought in France against the release from Leavenworth penitentiary of Brent Dow Allison, the draft conscientious objector, whose case in 1918 attracted nationwide attention.

Brig. Gen. Abel Davis was vigorous in his criticism of Allison's part of the blood of Americans was being spilled in order that America might never experience the yoke of Germanism, Brent Dow Allison was preaching a doctrine which ultimately would have affected the morale of the army.

He was tried for draft evasion and received from twenty-five years to life.

His sentence later was cut to fifteen years and still later to five years.

It is a poor tribute to the 60,000

CAR SHORTAGE HITS GRAIN MEN

Crops to Suffer Unless Moved, McCardle Says.

Unless relief in securing at least 25,000 grain cars is afforded the middle west by the Hoosier grain crop is going to suffer materially, according to a statement issued today by John W. McCarron, member of the public service commission.

The present condition of the grain shortage has produced the worst situation I have known in the history of the grain business," asserted Mr. McCarron, "for with the elevators filled with July wheat, glutting the markets, it is a set state of affairs."

Appeals have been made, asking the Interstate commission to call for grain cars to the middle west, Indiana to get a proportionate share in order to help move the crops.

Mr. McCarron pointed out that with additional cars Indiana and other middle west states can ease the market by moving the crop slowly, without any great reduction in price.

The mother of the aviator wants her son's body to remain here, according to the visitors, and the United States war department will probably be asked to take charge of the burial, unless it is decided to keep the body in the Fisher mausoleum.

FINDINGS TO BE READ TOMORROW.

The finding in the case of ten physicians who are charged with writing illegal prescriptions for whisky will be read in criminal court tomorrow, Judge James A. Collins announced today.

Five Arrested by Game
Wardens for Violations.

Five arrests made this week by Dept. of Game Wardens C. E. Gilpin and George Abel, in the course of their inspection of the department of conservation, resulting in the conviction of five Indianapolis citizens, indicate the attitude of the state department of fish and game toward enforcement of law.

Peter Kulliris, E. C. Doppers and George Neal were fined for taking short game birds, James J. Ford, for hunting on Sunday, and John G. Gandy was found guilty of shooting song birds.

Four of the arrests were made in Marion county, while one was made in Hamilton county.

George Mansfield, superintendent of the fish and game department, declared that deputies have been instructed to make arrests of all minor violations of the state law, and to carry out educational

"Clean sportsmanship" has been made the watchword of the department, coupled with "no law violations."

U. S. AWAITING ANSWER ON OIL

Additional Anglo-French Pact Information Sought.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The state department today awaited details from the American embassy at London respecting the earnest representations made to Great Britain on behalf of this government regarding the new Anglo-French oil agreement.

Officials expected Ambassador Davis promptly to present the British foreign office with the views of this government and to obtain additional information.

Considerable doubt existed as to the nature of the move by Great Britain in sending France to mobilize the output of oil in so-called mandate territories.

To learn whether it is England's purpose to choke off all attempts by the nationals of other countries to develop oil properties in other lands, Ambassador Davis has been directed to obtain the fullest information.

The "open door" policy with regard to the development of oil properties in the territories covered by the Anglo-French agreement is believed to have been brought seriously into the question.

The state department, it was declared officially, will pursue a vigorous course to safeguard American citizens and to uphold a principle which is believed to be of the highest importance to American interests.

Until more specific data is at hand respecting England's new move officials were inclined to remain silent.

STATE ENFORCES FISH, GAME LAWS

Five Arrested by Game Wardens for Violations.

Five arrests made this week by Dept. of Game Wardens C. E. Gilpin and George Abel, in the course of their inspection of the department of conservation, resulting in the conviction of five Indianapolis citizens, indicate the attitude of the state department of fish and game toward enforcement of law.

Peter Kulliris, E. C. Doppers and George Neal were fined for taking short game birds, James J. Ford, for hunting on Sunday, and John G. Gandy was found guilty of shooting song birds.

The arrests made this week by Dept. of Game Wardens C. E. Gilpin and George Abel, in the course of their inspection of the department of conservation, resulting in the conviction of five Indianapolis citizens, indicate the attitude of the state department of fish and game toward enforcement of law.

Peter Kulliris, E. C. Doppers and George Neal were fined for taking short game birds, James J. Ford, for hunting on Sunday, and John G. Gandy was found guilty of shooting song birds.

Four of the arrests were made in Marion county, while one was made in Hamilton county.

George Mansfield, superintendent of the fish and game department, declared that deputies have been instructed to make arrests of all minor violations of the state law, and to carry out educational

"Clean sportsmanship" has been made the watchword of the department, coupled with "no law violations."

FINDINGS TO BE READ TOMORROW.</