WHO ever reads the back of a city directory, anyhow?

DAYS may come and days may go, but the legislature we have with us always!

THE REAL STORY of the grain failure at Raub will be told later. Wait for the big show.

THE 1919 YEAR BOOK of the Goodrich administration has been printed and the year 1920 is only half gone!

IT IS HARD to arouse the public over a coal shortage in July, but if the shortage is to result in no ice there may be a real stir.

INSTEAD of worrying about the "lost amendments" of the last regular session, the general assembly might worry a bit about those of this special session that are bound to be lost, as usual.

THAT LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE appointed to find out when the third special session of the legislature is to be held should remember that it is dependent on how well the amended tax bill suits.

'Peace, Progress and Prosperity'

"Peace, progress and prosperity," the motto adopted by the democrats for their national campaign, rings true.

Peace with honor comes first; progress is world-wide and prosperity is the inevitable result of the two.

Every real American desires peace, but no real American desires a peace of the type Senator Lodge characterized as a disgrace when there was talk of separate negotiations with Germany.

Progress can only come to that nation which helps other nations and is willing to share with them the burdens of overcoming those obstacles that stand in the way of progress.

Prosperity comes to those individuals or nations that peacefully and progressively struggle to make this old world a better world in which to prosper.

"Peace, progress and prosperity" are the ultimate results of the Wilsonian league of nations and it is for such a league that the democrats of the United States are striving.

Goodrich as King Coal

It would be difficult indeed to find a piece of legislation susceptible of a more vicious use than the bill which has been pushed through the special session of legislature under the guise of an emergency bill to regulate the coal industry in Indiana.

Under the terms of this act Gov. Goodrich and his own appointee to the state board of accounts are entrusted with the complete regulation of the business of the various coal operators and dealers in the state.

They can compel these dealers and operators to lay their books before them for inspection. They can force them to show the ownership of their stock, the contracts under which they operate, the value of their property and the most minute economies in their operation.

Through the exercise of these extraordinary powers vested in him by the special act of this legislature, Gov. Goodrich may, if he chooses, make himself the best informed of any person in Indiana as to the value of coal properties and the advisability of ownership of stock in many corporations.

And with this knowledge in hand, he may, if he chooses, so order the coal business under other emergency powers conferred on him that it might be desirable for the owners of these properties to part with them at a sacrifice.

There is no intent herein to say that Gov. Goodrich will take advantage of such information as might come to him in an official way to improve his personal finances.

But the statement is here made without fear of successful contradiction that if the coal control bill had been designed for that purpose it could not have been better adopted to such a purpose.

Mr. Goodrich has admitted his personal interest in coal mines in Indiana.

He has admitted the interest of his "close business associates" in coal mines in Indiana.

It is a matter of court record that one coal mining company gave Mr. Goodrich "stock for service."

And as a crowning glory of his administration as governor and his participation in the coal business, he is now entrusted with more power over the coal companies in Indiana than was ever before delegated to any man in Indiana!

No one has as yet pointed out what it is hoped to accomplish through the agency of this coal control bill.

No one has ever pointed out where the public will be benefited in the least by this most extraordinary delegation of autocratic power to a single individual.

Sincerely it is to be hoped that the courts of Indiana will soon be called upon to stand between the possible abuse of power delegated in this act to the governor and the coal industry, which appears to have suffered sufficiently from such measures of alleged regulation.

Violated Contracts

Addressing a group of labor leaders who were before him as a result of violation of a restraining order Judge Anderson of the federal court found occasion to give expression to a situation that ought to be of grave concern to all unionists.

He said the public was fast losing sympathy with unions that tolerated strikes in violation of their contracts and he predicted that a continuation of such strikes would eventually deprive the theory of collective bargaining of public support.

There is an inherent love of fair play in every man or woman who goes to make up the general public. It is the most general attribute of the American people.

This love of fair play has many times in the past demonstrated itself in a manner to compel capital to recognize labor.

The time is fast coming when it will demonstrate itself in a movement to compel labor to recognize capital.

Union leaders, as a whole, recognize this situation. It is only an occasional leader here and there who is so blind to the principles on which nations are founded that he can not see the irreparable harm in violation of a contract.

In the last few years contracts with unions have become the rule rather than the exception in industry.

As in all other phases of business the value of a contract depends on the ability and the willingness of the contracting parties to abide by its terms.

Faith fades when contracts fail. There can be no prosperity, no sound industrial progress unless labor contracts are made in honesty and upheld in fact as well as theory.

The test of labor's right to negotiate contracts by collective bargains lies in labor's ability to keep such contracts when they have been made.

Why should misguided labor leaders be permitted to jeopardize all that for which labor has struggled for years?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Is milk a cheap food? What is the difference between preferred stock and common stock? This department of The Times tells you. If you have a question to ask, send it with a 2-cent stamp to The Indiana Daily Times Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. The answer will be mailed direct to you.

MILK AS FOOD.

Q. Is milk a cheap food? M. E. R. A. Milk is cheap in comparison with eggs or meat, since one quart is equal to eight eggs, or one pound of lean meat. Cereal foods are the cheapest energy foods, but these are lacking in lime and vitamins and consequently can not be used alone. A combination of bread and milk or cereals and milk is a satisfying, as well as sufficient, meal.

PREFERRED AND COMMON.

Q. Which pays better dividends, preferred or common stock? L. O. A. Preferred stock pays a certain specified dividend, which is assessed before common stock receives any dividend. For this reason it is a safer investment than common stock, but common stock pays higher dividends, since its value fluctuates with the earnings of the concern.

NOMINEES' NEWSPAPERS.

Q. What papers do the presidential candidates own? N. V. R. A. Senator Harding is the owner of the Marion (O.) Star and Gov. Cox is owner of the Dayton News and Springfield News.

ALIEN PROPERTY SALES.

Q. What was done with all the money obtained by sale of alien property during the war? T. W. A. Such moneys were deposited in the United States treasury and will be held there until congress decides what disposal shall be made of them.

WORLD'S "SUGAR BOWL."

Q. Why is Cuba called "the world's sugar bowl"? H. S. C. A. The island of Cuba produces one-third of the cane sugar of the world. Adding the beet sugar production to this total, Cuba still furnishes one-fourth of all the sugar used.

PHILIPPINE MINT.

Q. Have the Philippine islands a mint of their own? O. G. A. The Philippine mint commenced operations on July 15, 1920, the first coins minted being one-centavo pieces.

HOUSE RATS AND MICE.

Q. What proportion of damage done by rodent pests is from house rats and mice? M. E. A. About two-fifths of the damage inflicted is caused by these species, both of which were brought into this country from the old world.

NEW YORK LEADS.

Q. What state collected the greatest amount of income and excess profits tax? I. M. C. A. New York state was first in this respect, counting for the year 1919, $712,425,702.94. Pennsylvania was second with a total of $301,111,410.79.

CASINO.

Q. How many points make a game in casino? H. F. A. There are two ways to count the game. First, each deal is a game in itself and the majority of eleven points wins, but the sweeps may make it a tie. Second, twenty-one points is game. If both players reach twenty-one in the same deal, the points score out in the following order: Cards, spades, big casino, little casino, aces and sweeps. If aces have to decide, they score in order of spades, clubs, hearts and diamonds.

NO FIGURES ON PREACHERS.

Q. Kindly let me know the number of bankers, saloon keepers, lawyers, preachers and actors that were confined in penal institutions in one year? L. R.

A. The United States bureau of census says that in 1919 there were 115 bankers, 2,190 saloon keepers and bartenders, 178 lawyers and 65 actors and showmen confined in penal institutions in the United States. There are no figures on preachers.

VENUS WITHOUT ARMS.

Q. Why is Venus always pictured without arms? F. K. N. A. Venus De Milo is usually pictured without arms because this famous statue, when found in 1820, had the arms broken off. Artists do not agree as to the probable position of the arms in the original statue.

SNOW LINE.

Q. Will you kindly tell me the name of the exact spot on a mountain top where all vegetation ceases? N. B. A. A. The boundary on a mountain which marks the cessation of all vegetation is known as the snow line.

RAILROAD.

Q. What is the "railhead" of a railroad system? T. L. O. A. Ordinarily the president of the railroad is considered the railhead; sometimes the chairman of the board. The railhead of a railroad under construction is the farthest point to which the rails have been laid.

SMALLEST HONEY BEES.

Q. Where are the smallest honey bees found? M. C. A. The smallest honey bees in the world are found in the East Indian Islands and on the mainland of Hindustan. Their honey combs are no larger than a child's hand, and the cells are about the size of a small pinhead.

PROTECT WHEAT FROM FLAG SMUT

Illinois Must Keep Infected Product at Home.

Indiana farmers will be protected against flag smut on wheat. Word was received today by Richard Lieber, director of conservation in Indiana, from Dr. Karl A. Kellerman of the federal horticultural board, Washington, D. C., who has been assigned to the infected district in Illinois to the effect that "one shipment of wheat straw from a field near the border of the quarantined district was shipped to an Alton paper mill."

"Federal regulations now in effect. Further movement of straw will be prevented."

When the flag smut was discovered in parts of Illinois, federal authorities immediately quarantined the state to prevent the shipment of the infected straw to paper mills in northern Indiana. Since that time Illinois farmers have been shipping the infected straw to Illinois paper mills.

Dr. Kellerman said that there will be no more straw moved from the district to other parts of Illinois. Prompt work on the part of the Indiana department of conservation in making protests to the federal board is given as the reason for the absence of the disease in the wheat of Indiana farmers.

FOR GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES.

Q. Has the bill to increase the general scale of salaries paid government employees passed congress? S. S. B. Such a bill was considered by the last session of congress, but failed to pass. It will probably be taken up next winter.
