TO ASK EVERYONE

Each Home to Be Asked for
G. A. R. Space.

Every resident of Indianapolis who is listed in the telephone directories will be called within the next two weeks regarding rooms in private homes for the G. A. R. national encampment here, Sept. 19-25.

The telephone calls were started today from the headquarters of the housing committee, 701 Chamber of Commerce building.

Thousands of residents will be asked to open their homes for the members of the Grand Army of the Republic and the eight allied organizations who are expected to come here for the encampment.

The large clock at the intersection of Kentucky and Illinois streets, erected to record the number of rooms obtained, today showed that 2,000 rooms have been listed. A large number of the persons who have listed these rooms have agreed to make no charge.

Plans for the reception of the thousands of visitors and the assigning of rooms in private homes were discussed at a conference of committee chairmen today.

According to tentative plans special preparations will be made to receive the visitors.

Those who attended the conference today were Edward A. Kahn, executive chairman, William E. Balch, executive secretary, Scott R. Brewer, chairman of the housing committee, Mrs. Ida S. McBride, women's organizations, Fred H. Hoke, reception, J. W. Lilly, badges and Wallace O. Lee, information.

optimism that prevailed when the armistice delegation set out for Minsk Saturday morning.

Official circles held out the hopes Saturday that "within a week we hope to dash to the whole world by wireless the news of peace."

The Polish delegation consists of four military officers headed by Gen. Kulinowski, a radio expert, three members of the Polish government; three international law experts; six members of the Polish diet; representatives of the various political parties and several women stenographers.

The women went upon an energetic shopping excursion before they left, buying scented soap and other toilet articles that are unobtainable at Minsk.

All of the delegation carried large quantities of bread, butter, sardines and canned vegetables.

BATTLE FOR WARSAW
ALONG ENTIRE FRONT

WARSAW, Aug. 16.—A great battle for Warsaw has started along the entire front, the war office's official statement declared today.

Both Poles and Russians launched attacks at many places and hand-to-hand fighting raged.

Bolshevik lines pushed forward.

MOSCOW, Aug. 16.—The bolsheviks have pushed their lines to a point five miles from Warsaw, where the battle is continuing, it was officially announced today.

The communists said there was fighting on the Radom-Okuneff line, which is five miles from Warsaw on the eastern side of the capital.

RUSSIANS REACH THE VISTULA RIVER

PARIS, Aug. 16.—The Russians have captured the Polish fortress city of Novo Georgievsk, eighteen miles west of Warsaw, and have reached the Vistula river at that point, the war office announced in a communique wireless from Moscow today.

The text of the communique, as given out by the French government, follows: "In the region of Vladimir, the Poles are making counter-attacks. The Poles have captured Novo Georgievsk."

"We are approaching Novo Minsk," the communists say.

French military experts believe that the Russians have already occupied it.

BERLIN REPORTS
FORTRESS FALLEN

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—The Russians have surrounded Warsaw, their lines being on all sides of the city, at a distance of about twelve miles, according to a dispatch to the Berlin foreign depot today.

The fortress of Graudenz was reported to have fallen before the reds' assaults.

WASHINGTON HOPES FOR AN EARLY PEACE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—With the red armies reported almost at the gates of Warsaw, state department officials and diplomats here today worked hopefully for word from the armistice and peace delegations at Minsk which would stop the fighting between Poland and soviet Russia.

Officials hoped that an agreement at Minsk on armistice and peace terms would save Warsaw from the bolshevik armies.

While there was skepticism here as to the permanency of the Russian victory over Russia, it was believed Poland may have a chance of surviving as a nation only if the Poles retain their capital.

Double-Header Mystery Goes on Before Our Little Kathleen

By KATHLEEN MCKEE.

Having heard that the charity ball games at Washington park Saturday would have an "all-star" cast—I mean I decided that since it was a charity affair I would just naturally be let in.

My nerve was nearly destroyed, however, when I was mobbed by a dozen or so girls who waved gigantic yellow cards at me, which I found out were score cards, but my courage returned when I saw some coffee pots, for I supposed the charity consisted of serving free cups of coffee during the intermission between the acts, but I later found the pots were to contain money for the Salvation Army.

My attention was focused on a bunch of girls in white, who, attired in dirty colored suits were entertaining themselves with insane antics.

About this time a man yelled something through a megaphone, reminding me of a side show at a circus, whereupon graceful attitudes were assumed by the actors.

My attention was attracted to an individual who wore a soft cushion tied around his neck, which, my neighbor assured me, was a life preserver.

Two of the players must have been awful savage, because they were muzzled.

A nice red suit was worn by one of the players, while another wore a dress of a patriotic red, white and blue combination, attracted my attention.

An orange Indian club which was used by one man relieved the monotony of the scene.

An "Official Big League Scout," aged 12, patrolled the field with dignity.

THE BANDS WENT UNNOTICED.

Baseball players must be like dancers, since two jazz bands provided the music for their game, but I regarded those two bands wasted, since nobody paid any attention to them, and I could have appreciated them so much on a hardwood floor.

As near as I could tell the game consisted of one man trying to hit a little ball with a stick, and if he accomplished this feat, all the rest tried to beat it off the field, although some of them took an awfully round-about way of doing it.

Every time the man with the little ball was successful in hitting the ball heavenward, its ascent was accompanied by a yell from the crowd, which seemed quite unnecessary to me.

The audience also yelled whenever one of the players started to run off the field, and I can't say I blamed them, for I was a dirty way for a man to try to sneak out of the game.

A man in a blue suit stood in the middle of the field and did nothing, and just what his connection with the game was I am still trying to figure out.

In my estimation a baseball game is a very unfair proposition, since some have to work so much harder than others; for instance two of the players sneaked way out to the edge of the field, where they had little work to do.

It was annoying exceedingly the way the actors would leave just about the time I was getting to know them, and a new set would come on, and I would have to get acquainted all over.

A number of private games were conducted on one side which were much more interesting since they at least tried to catch the ball, whereas the central actors didn't seem to care one way or another.

My sympathy was aroused by one fat individual who did his level best to run, although the crowd did not applaud him one bit.

I noticed, also, that a number of the players wore white medals over their hearts, which, I supposed, had been awarded for bravery in action.

Only some pitchers got a half dozen medals, while a ball and another only one was a mystery to me.

A photographer took his life in his hands in venturing into such a den of lions.

One player without any reason started tearing around the field like a mad dog while the crowd yelled appreciation, and then about the time I was getting into it, he stopped and all the players quit again and a new bunch came on.

Frankly speaking, I never saw such badly arranged exits in any show before. Just then a ball sailed in my direction and I trembled for my life, but it hit the wire above my head and I sat still.

The monotony of the game was relieved by a clown-like player who took an artistic running tumble in the dust and then looked at the audience in a most astonished fashion.

Just then a ball took an upward curve and descended on the back of one of the players, and I didn't blame him one bit for looking cross when the crowd laughed.

Two enthusiastic ball chasers fell over each other in trying to get the ball; whereupon a lively parley took place over in a corner of the field near me.

Well, I wish they would stop arguing and get to work, I said.

My companion turned a condescending gaze on me and told me that the game was over, that it was a tie; he didn't take the trouble to tell me what kind.

SIX MEN HELD IN NAPARIU MURDER
Taxi Driver Confesses Details of Affair, Say Police.

Five negroes and one white man are under arrest today charged with the murder of Adam Napariu, 28, an inspector of the city board of health and alleged boot-legger, who was shot Saturday night.

John Frase, 31, and Vernon Allen, 24, negro, were indicted in the shooting, which occurred at West Tenth street and the Ben Davis road.

Steve Frase, West Raymond street; John Napariu, living on Ben Davis road; and the alleged companions of Napariu, the murdered man, are under arrest on the charge of operating a blind tiger.

Dr. Paul Robinson, coroner, is investigating.

The six men charged with murder are Harold Kaufman, 22, 1938 Central avenue, and five negroes, Lawrence Allen, 24, 622 Muskingum street; Edgar Harrison, 24, 628 North California street; Henry Lee, 20, 425 Muskingum street; John Montgomery, 32, 1023 Lafayette street; and Mike McGuire, 25, of 611 West Tenth street.

One hour after the fatal shooting on the lonely country road Saturday night the police received a telephone call and an emergency squad was sent to the scene.

Napariu had been killed by a bullet, which struck him in the forehead.

The police were told that Napariu, Frase and Sarben had gone to deliver twenty gallons of white milk whisky to some person who had sent a telephone call.

They had found an automobile waiting and in the car was a negro and a white man.

Suddenly a number of negroes appeared from their hiding place in the weeds and demanded that the alleged bootleggers hold up their hands.

Napariu is alleged to have drawn a revolver and backing away opened fire, the robbers returning it.

Napariu was killed, Frase fell with a bullet in his body and Allen, one of the alleged negro hold-up men was shot through both legs.

His companions placed him and the twenty gallons of whisky in their car.

Frase was robbed of $40 and Sarben of $2.

The police found Napariu's revolver, a .38-caliber weapon.

Detectives DeKosette, Golder, Sneed and Trubee arrested the six alleged members of the murder gang.

Henry Lee, taxi driver, is said to have confessed.

Lee, according to the statement made to the police, did not know where he was taking the men Saturday night until after they stopped there.

He told of the pistol duel in the darkness, of the loading of the whisky into the car, and said he did not dare to try to escape.

Lee told the police where ten gallons of whisky were hidden in a barn on Twenty-first street. The police found the whisky.

Later in the day, two five-gallon kegs of whisky were found in the bushes along the Noblesville road north of Broad Ripple.

The barn where the ten gallons of whisky was found is said to have been Kaufman's barn.

Lee's confession, the police say, indicates that only one of the hold-up men did the shooting that resulted in Napariu's death.

For the last several days he had lived with the girl at the home of her grandparents.

He believed she was married to Lindell.

He admitted to Sheriff Fowler that he had been under arrest for taking a young girl from Indiana Harbor, Ind., to Burman, Mich., and said he was released from custody when the girl escaped from Chicago for unknown reasons.

The big touring car which Lindell drove when he ran down Frank Harvey, was stolen from Grant park in Chicago on June 14.

It is the property of G. A. Freeman of Chicago and was returned to him Saturday.

If Lindell is not convicted here of manslaughter, it is expected that he will be returned to Cook county, Ill., for grand larceny.

One Carload of Coal
Helps Out Clermont

The serious situation caused at Clermont, the Indiana Girls' school, has been alleviated somewhat by the delivery of one carload of coal, according to a statement made by Maurice C. Shelton, state purchasing agent.

Mr. Shelton said that through the efforts of John W. McCordie, vice chairman of the public service commission, a carload of coal had been delivered at the institution, and the promise was made that more would follow.

Other state institutions, according to Mr. Shelton, have a small supply of coal on hand.

WON'T ORGANIZE
AGAINST H. C. L.

Government Movement Hasn't Enough Funds Left.

Women of Indiana will not be organized to fight the high cost of living, according to word received from the department of justice at Washington by Miss Eleanor Barker, who was appointed chairman of this state.

Miss Barker says she was informed that Indiana would not be organized on account of lack of funds.

The appropriation made by the congress at the last session to fight profiteering is reported to have given out.

The fact that several of the field organizers have been called in and that no further steps are being taken in organizing the states is evidence.

"I regret very much that we shall not be able to organize this state," Miss Barker said, "for I believe that the high cost of certain commodities could be lowered very materially by a concentrated campaign on the part of the women."

The plan proposed by the department of justice contained a number of very interesting and constructive suggestions for the work which I would have been very glad to carry out."

proximately twice as much as had the original improvement.

When the city council ordered the shade trees in the district would be damaged or destroyed because of harm to the roots which would result from setting the curbs back three feet on both sides of the street.

It is deemed to do the work now when the board is not in a position to make Delaware street a thoroughfare from the center of the city to the northern limits because of the work of a bridge over Fall creek.

While the elimination of the log was not up for hearing the property owners seized the occasion to object on the ground that the intersection is not dangerous and the cost of the property on the northwest corner, which it is proposed to condemn, is excessive.

MILLER ANSWERS EACH QUESTION.

Mark Miller, acting chairman of the board, answered each of the objections as the board saw them, his principal contention being that the street has been down for twenty-five years and had reached the end of its natural life, hence to repair it would be folly.

The board deferred action on the widening resolution until Aug. 30.

Following a conference with Frank C. Jordan, secretary, and B. J. T. Jess, chief engineer of the Indianapolis Water Company, the board announced that Mr. Jess will submit to the city an estimate of a price for which the water company will make repairs to the pier of the Twenty-third street bridge over the canal.

The board sought the aid of the water company because the repair in question must be done below the water line and the water company has trained men and special equipment with which it can do the work more economically than the city, Mr. Miller explained.

BOONE RESCINDS
TAX BILL ACTION

Six Counties State Acceptance of Horizontal Increases.

Notice was received today by the state board of tax commissioners from the board of review of Boone county, that the action of the board in rejecting the horizontal increases of the state board had been rescinded.

Four counties, Jasper, Jackson, Putnam and Posey, have yet to approve the horizontal increases of the state board. It is understood by members of the state board that Jasper and Putnam counties may accept the order of the state board.

Six counties today notified the state body that their boards of review had accepted the horizontal increases.

They were Marion, Cass, Floyd, Wayne, Whitley and Madison.

This leaves but seven counties out of the ninety-two in the state that have not yet certified their action to the state board.
