HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

THURSDAY, AUG. 19, 1920.

Again kindly stars rule, according to astrology. It is a most auspicious rule under which to win the approbation of one's fellow men and women.

During this rule persons who hold positions in the Sun are likely to be unusually responsive to appeals or requests for personal favors. It should be a lucky time for seeking positions or for obtaining appointments.

Mercury and the Sun are today in aspects that give the press great advantage over persons who hold ambitions or who desire public favor.

Editors, publishers and advertising men have the forecast of supreme successes that bring them not only profit but honors.

Food will again cause anxiety, because of a rise in prices of staples. There will be a grave problem before the new year, it is predicted.

Strikes of many sorts will be prevalent, despite all attempts at arbitration. Persons whose birthdate it is may expect a year of great activity and unusual prosperity.

Children born on this day are likely to be serious and industrious. They usually are orderly, idealistic and possessed of personal charm.—Copyright.

Meetings

A lawn fete and picnic will be held by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Moravian church, Friday night, at the home of Mrs. Charles Finkel, 2644 Sutherland avenue.

PUSS IN BOOTS JR.

By DAVID CORY.

Now the Lord of the Castle was so pleased when Puss gave him the golden apple that was stolen by the silver bird, as I told you in the last story, that he presented Puss Junior with a snow white horse. And after that Puss rode away, down the steep path from the castle, until he came to a green meadow.

And as his horse was thirsty he let him drink in the little stream that flowed by, and while he stood there, resting the reins upon the horse's neck, a little fairy dressed all in green suddenly appeared from beneath a buttercup and said to him:

"Did you say to the Blue Breasted Pigeon that Fairy Land was only a dream country?"

"Not exactly," replied Puss. "I asked her if there was really a Fairy Land."

"Well, now you shall see it for yourself," said the little fairy. "Come with me, and I will show you the Fairy Land in yonder wood." And then she flew up and sat beside Puss, for she had little wings of gauze that she knew, and could fly as well as any bird.

Well, by and by, they came to a lovely spot in the woods, where a band of fairies were dancing in a ring. In the center of which was a throne made all of roses. And in the midst of the lovely flowers sat the queen of the fairies, and she was very beautiful, and when she saw Puss Junior, she waved her wand and all her little subjects stopped dancing and stood around him.

And do you know, when she waved her wand, Puss and his snow white horse grew smaller and smaller until they were no larger than the little fairies themselves. But Puss didn't feel himself grow small. No, indeed. He didn't even know he was so little, and he jumped off his horse and bowed very low before the lovely fairy queen.

"Ah, my noble Sir Cat," she said, "I see you wear the golden feather." And then Puss told her how he had gotten it, and then he told her how much he wished to see all of Fairy Land.

"I will help you," she said. "You must beware of ogres and giants, for they are cruel. Here is a little ring. Wear it, and when you are in trouble turn it three times round your finger and you will become so small that none may see you, save a fairy. And then she placed on Puss Junior's little toe the ring, and after that he said goodby and mounted his horse and rode away.

Well, by and by he came to a great cave, where sat the giant called Redeye, and, oh, dear me, he was a wicked looking giant. His hands were as big as crucifixes. He was a little ring. Wear it, and when you are in trouble turn it three times round your finger and you will become so small that none may see you, save a fairy. DO YOU KNOW—III.

1. Why linen dish towels are better than cotton ones?
2. How to bake potatoes so that the skins are soft?
3. The easiest way to stone raisins without a raisin stoner?

Answers to Yesterday's Question.

1. The onion is mentioned in the oldest writings of Egypt and India and has been for ages cultivated and consumed in almost every country in the world, surpassing all other vegetables in antiquity and extensiveness of cultivation.

2. The best way to cook an egg for invalids and children is to poach it. To do this place it gently in a pan of boiling water, removing the pan at once from the fire. The water should cover the egg but the pan should not be covered. Let the egg remain six or seven minutes in the water, when it will be cooked more uniformly than if soft-boiled.

3. Don't put your hands in water while peeling potatoes and they will not turn black.
