

SAYS COVENANT IS VERY PLAIN

Mrs. Grace Julian Clarke Speaks at Anderson.

ANDERSON, Ind., Aug. 28.—"The heart of the league of nations covenant is a new international commandment, 'Thou shalt not steel.'"

Mrs. Grace Julian Clarke said this afternoon in an address given on the league of nations before a large audience here, Mrs. Clarke, who formerly was head of the State Federation of Women's clubs, is speaking for the democratic party throughout Indiana on the league and its importance as an agency for international peace.

Mrs. Clarke has been nonpartisan in her political viewpoint until the present campaign.

She says the position taken by the republican party on the league of nations has forced her from nonpartisanism.

"The league covenant," Mrs. Clarke said, "is not an abstruse and involved document, but very clear and simple. It is quite capable of comprehension by the average person."

She examined the provisions of the league constitution under four heads: Production of armament, settlement of international disputes by arbitration, prohibition of secret treaties and the end of imperialism.

"Reduction of armaments," Mrs. Clarke said, "is provided for under Article VIII of the league compact. History teaches us that all great wars have resulted chiefly from military preparations. We all know that Germany's huge military equipment and the war party which this militarism developed, was primarily responsible for the world war."

GIVES CAUSES OF WAR.

Vast armaments have always necessitated enormous expenditures, have withdrawn from production, by conscription, all able-bodied young men; they have nourished a spirit of autocracy and conscienceless greed, and they have developed that destructive lust exhibited by Germany in the late war."

Mrs. Clarke told her audience that limitation of armament is practicable and proved her point by citing the cases of Canada and the United States.

Both of these nations have always had a small armament, sufficient merely for needs of defense, she said, and because of the limitations voluntarily placed on its army and navy, the United States has never developed a spirit of international aggression.

"War must be the last resort in settling difficulties that arise between nations within the league," Mrs. Clarke said. "Any controversy between two nations must be submitted to three bodies in turn before the disputing nations may resort to war. These bodies are the council, the assembly, and the international court provided for in the covenant. The machinery of this court is now being established."

HOW LEAGUE OPERATES.

"If either nation is dissatisfied with the findings of these bodies it is forbidden, under the league covenant, to go to war for at least three months after the award of the last body has been made. Nearly a year will then have been consumed by the deliberations and the enforced wait. It is evident that a delay of such length will go far toward mollifying the temper of the belligerent."

Mrs. Clarke explained the economic boycott and analyzed its effect. It could be used by the league as a last resort to prevent war, she said, by depriving the belligerents of the supplies necessary to carry on war.

"The object of the league is to preserve peace among the nations by assuming certain obligations that will be binding on all alike," said Mrs. Clarke. "It does not establish a super-state. It does not commit its members for all time, but only for two years. It does not involve the sending of American soldiers to remote regions or sending them anywhere without the consent of congress."

"It does not destroy the Monroe doctrine, but for the first time in its history the principle is recognized by the nations of the world. It does not give England six votes to our one, for decisions alone are reached by unanimous consent."

Mrs. Clarke said in her opinion the only hope for independence for Ireland lies in the league of nations.

Another Fatality on Big Four Tracks

ANDERSON, Ind., Aug. 28.—One man was fatally injured and two others were hurt when a truck of the Shinkle Transfer company was struck by a north-bound Big Four passenger train at the Seventh street crossing here Friday.

Shinkle was driving the car and did not see the train until it was within thirty feet of him.

He attempted to cross the track, but the rear part of the machine, on which Ray was riding was caught by the locomotive and he was knocked from the truck to the east side of the track.

Shinkle remained in the truck, which was thrown to the west side.

The accident is the third that has occurred on the Big Four Michigan division crossing here within a short time.

Society

A trusty motor car, plenty of gas, a spare tire and the world is ours.

Vacations this summer largely consist of motor trips.

Some are spending the whole summer touring and some are merely going for a week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Elliott, 3202 North Pennsylvania street, have just returned from a week's trip and will start again Monday for Cleveland, Detroit and various other points in Michigan.

Miss Doreen MacEneaney and Ramona Browder were married this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Schmalz, 3248 Central avenue, Dr. Allan Phillips of the Central Christian church, officiating.

Baskets of garden flowers in the Dresden shades, combined with palms, ferns and masses of feathery greenery were used throughout the rooms.

Mrs. J. W. Schmalz, matron of honor, and Miss Winifred Day, bridesmaid, wore frocks of midnight blue charmeuse, made on similar lines, Mrs. Schmalz wearing a duvetyne hat of the same shade and Miss Day a smart champagne of black velvet.

They carried air bouquets of old-fashioned garden flowers.

Little Millicent Coleman, in white crepe de chine, carried the ring in a lily. J. W. Schmalz acted as best man.

Dan Stage, pianist, gave a program of bridal airs preceding the ceremony, including "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly," changing to the bridal chorus from "Lullaby" for the professional.

The bride wore a dark blue frock, heavily embroidered with a duvetyne hat of the same shade, trimmed with orange applique and she carried a shower of Opheelia roses.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Masters and daughter of Brookville and Mrs. W. Gibson of Madison.

Mr. and Mrs. Browder have gone on a trip and will be at home in this city on their return.

Mrs. Althea Storey, who has been visiting relatives in Albany, N. Y., has returned to her home, 616 Temple avenue.

Well, What's the Dif—Both Were Females

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 28.—It is a crime for a cow to peek into a lady's bedroom?

The complainant, a woman, charges the cow walked right up to her bedroom window late one night and got a long eye-full before being discovered.

The woman said she became hysterical and now wants her neighbors arrested for the cow's lack of etiquette.

Quite a Come-Down

Hoosier Grocer Off to Claim His Legacy

Special to The Times. FRANKFORT, Ind., Aug. 28.—Business was slow at Smith's grocery store here during the last week.

The stock could have been piled in an ordinary kitchen cupboard.

But J. M. Smith, the proprietor, sold out late yesterday and left hurriedly to claim his half of a $300,000 estate in West Virginia, left by an uncle who was a coffee merchant.

The uncle was Samuel Smith of Charleston.

Imbibers Show Old Time Form at Wreck

Rev. M. Patterson was deputized by the sheriff to round up the imbibers.

He arrested Clyde Becker, the village barber, for intoxication, but while on the way to this city, Becker made his escape.

Fearing that he was in bad if he did not deliver his half of a $300,000 estate in West Virginia, left by an uncle who was a coffee merchant.

PISTOL SNAPS, SHERIFF LIVES

Fearless Deputy Dares Manic to Shoot.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Death snapped in the face of Deputy Sheriff James Walsh yesterday, but he lived to laugh down attempts of his fellows to lionize him.

Walsh walked into a hospital ward, where Blanche Grey, armed with a revolver, had resigned for fourteen hours.

Emergency hospital attaches said the woman was crazed.

She had driven past with the revolver. "I dare you to shoot me," Walsh said as he stepped into the ward and advanced with shirt-sleeved arms outstretched.

Mrs. Gray pulled the trigger. The hammer clicked against an empty cartridge.

The gun snapped again. A cartridge failed to explode.

Walsh leaped forward and within a few seconds had the woman securely plained.

Mrs. Gray was taken to the hospital following her attack with an ice pick upon a deputy sheriff.

Walsh entered the room against the advice of police and hospital authorities.

They expected him to be shot when he stepped through the doorway.

Pennsylvania Train Real Accommodation

Special to The Times. MONTICELLO, Ind., Aug. 28.—No one can say that the Effner branch of the Pennsylvania railroad, which passes through Monticello is not obliging to its patrons.

Yesterday those loitering near the Pennsylvania station just after the 8:05 east-bound train had pulled out suddenly of a kind of accidents or mishaps when the train was stopped suddenly just a short distance past the Illinois street crossing.

A woman was seen to descend the car steps, run back to the station, disappear inside, reappearing a minute later and again boarding the train.

The mystery was explained as she passed a number of people by the station door.

She had forgotten her umbrella!

Logansport Pot of Politics Boiling

Special to The Times. LOGANSPORT, Ind., Aug. 28.—Increased interest in politics here is being shown as registration day approaches.

Both democratic and republican organizations have increased their working forces and are bending every effort to secure a 100 per cent registration.

Chairman Del Flyn is arranging a street parade to precede the speaking.

Walter Closson, chairman of the county republican committee, announces that Hiram Johnson of California will open the campaign for the G. O. P. here early in September.

USED TO MOVIES—TOO DEEP

But Couple Find They Don't Have to Look Through Lattice

It was their first trip to the Murat and the vastness of the place, compared with the movies which had attracted them hitherto, was most bewildering.

Small wonder then that both the husband and the wife started down an aisle hunting for their own seats.

Most movies do not have ushers anyway.

Seats G, Right, 1 and 2, the ticket stubs called for.

A third of the way toward the front they found the cryptic inscription GG 1 and GG 2 on a couple of seats, and since it almost corresponded with the figures on their stubs they sat down.

But something was wrong, they knew that absolutely.
