

CHARLES RAY IS DETECTIVE IN MELON PATCH

Water Queen to Disport as Modern Woman on Circle Screen.

HUGHES STORY AT OHIO

The diving of Annette Kellerman, the sight of Charlie Ray acting as a detective over his father's watermelon patch, the troubles of Bryant Washburn attempting to wear sideburns, pretty Helene Chadwick playing opposite T. Roy Barnes and a new Metro release called "The Hope," are a few of the features to be seen during State Fair week on the local screen.

The big time picture season is well under way as the summer season is now a thing of the past. The Ohio theater has taken over the Famous Players-Lasky program, which proved so successful at English's this summer under the management of the Burtons.

The Colonial has already introduced its new feature service with marked success. Everything points to an interesting week on the screen next week.

MELODRAMA OF STAGE NOW A METRO MOVIE

"The Hope," successful of spectacular melodramas, has been produced in motion pictures and the production, with its elaborate settings and scenes, will be seen at the Colonial all of the week starting Sunday.

The cast includes Ruth Stonehouse, Jack Mulhall, Frank Elliott, who appeared in the original stage play, and Marguerite de la Motte, and Lillian Langdon.

One of the most spectacular scenes is that of an earthquake destroying an entire street in Italy.

Lord Ingestre, a dependent upon a wealthy marriage to recoup the family estates. Lady Brenda Carlyon is the lady of his choice and he asks her to marry him. Meanwhile, he is ordered off with his regiment to India.

He develops the enmity of Capt. Grant, who is in love with Lady Brenda. In spite of his desire to win Lady Brenda, Grant has become engaged to Olive Whitburn, whose wealth attracts him.

But when he comes into his inheritance he jilts Olive and again seeks to win the hand of Lady Brenda. Many complications develop during which many intensely dramatic situations are seen. The original play was written by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton and is produced on a scale with "The Whip" and other spectacular melodramas.

CHARLIE IS SMALL TOWN
SLEUTH IN LATEST MOVIE.

In his newest comedy, "A Village Sleuth," which will be presented at the Alhambra the first half of next week.

State Fair Week or Stage and Screen

Charles Ray has a detective story with an amusing twist, and one that is not without its thrills.

In this picture Charlie is the country boy with aspirations to become a second Sherlock Holmes.

His efforts to nab the robbers of his father's watermelon patch, resulting rather disastrously, he leaves home and secures a job as a chore boy at a fashionable health resort.

There a combination robber-murder mystery looms up and Charlie proves his worth by solving it.

In The Land of Make Believe WALTER D. HICKMAN

The unexpected can happen in vaudeville as well as on the legitimate stage and a special example of this is the character ability manifested this week at the Lyric by Richard Keane in a scene from "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

One does not expect such heavy acting on the three-day stage as done by Mr. Keane this season, especially his carefully drawn study of Peter.

Mr. Keane and his act is a compliment to vaudeville and his act is of the big time because his work in character is so complete and carefully drawn.

The Stuart Walker Players will close their fourth season in summer stock at the Lyric tonight with the final presentation of "39 East."

Dixie Hines sends this space the following news of Broadway: Rachel Barton Butler, playwright and Fokine and Fokina, the celebrated Russian dancers, have been placed under contract by Richard G. Herndon, manager of the Belmont theater, and their first trans-continental tour is now being arranged.

First he will stage the revival of "Aphrodite" and later "Mecca," putting on the dances for both of these celebrated spectacles.

"Little Miss Charity," the tuneful and highly proper musical comedy with which the Belmont theater is to be opened, had its premiere adjacent to Broadway this week, and a delegation from the most famous street in the world, journeyed to be in on this event, returned with reports indicating that "the half has not been told" of its charm.

New York is sending both "The Storm" and "The Passion Flower" to Chicago next week, and is receiving in exchange "Sweetheart Supper."

Heen Ford, the prima donna with this unusually successful musical play, is not unknown on Broadway, and her Chicago success, having been duly heralded in the metropolis, has developed an interest in the early presentation of the play here.

"Call the Doctor" goes into the Empire theater next week.

From what has been written by the out-of-town reviewers, there is one new Bohemian actress in Rex Martin, who is destined to bring joy to the hearts of the lovers of clean and effective comedy.

ENGLISH'S AND MURAT OPEN SEASON MONDAY

'Listen Lester' Raises Curtain at Former,
'Tattle-Tales' at Latter.

DIVING BEAUTY HEADS LYRIC SHOW

The 1920-21 theatrical season will get under way next Monday with the formal openings of the Murat and English's.

The initial attraction at English's will be "Listen Lester," a musical comedy, with Fred Heider, while the Murat will shelter Jimmy Hussey's new revue, "Tattle-Tales."

A matinee will be given Monday afternoon at the Murat, but English's will not open until Monday night.

Both shows will be on view during state fair week.

B. F. Keith's will not open Monday, as first announced, because work has not been completed on extensive improvements being made there.

The Park theater begins the fourth week of its season Monday afternoon with "The Cabaret Girls."

Popular vaudeville continues at the Lyric, the Broadway and the Rialto.

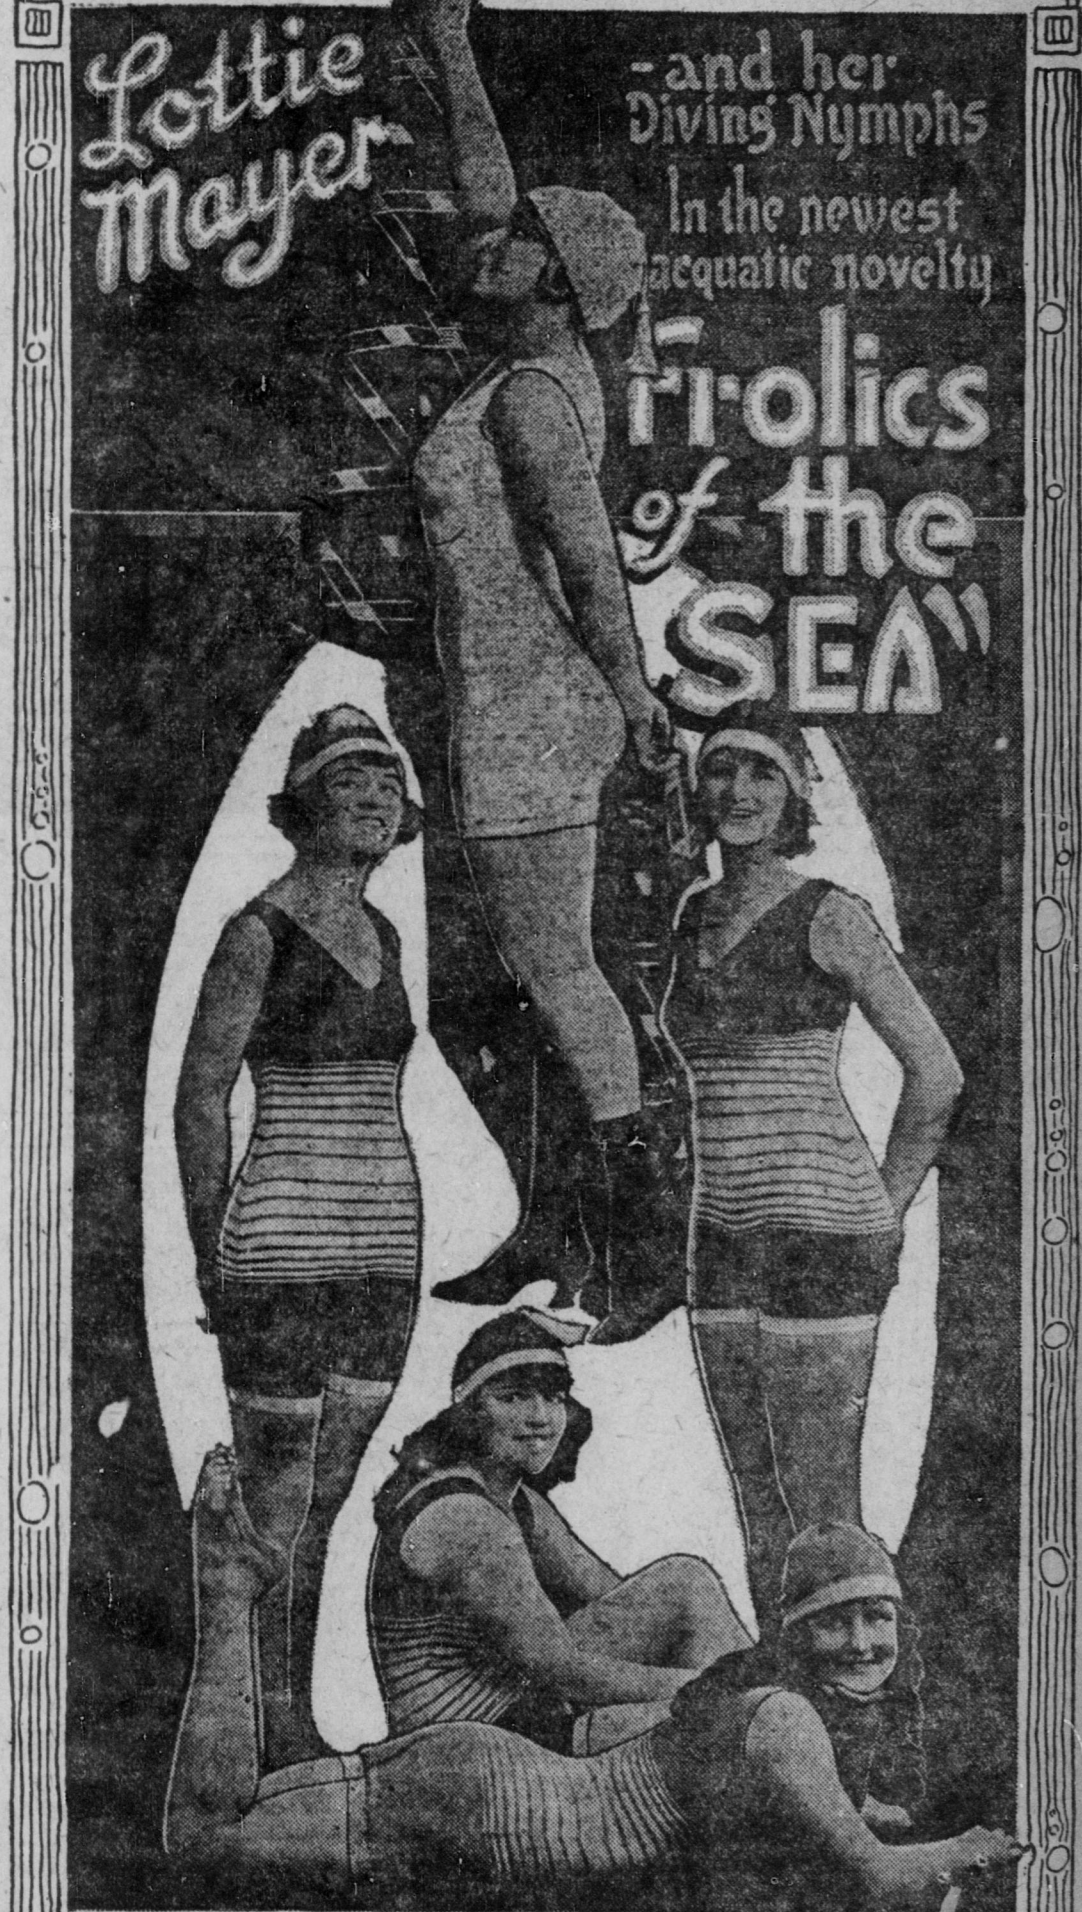

JUNE CAN KICK BACK OF HER HEAD.

June Roberts, the 17-year-old dancer, said to be one of the reasons for the success of John Cort's musical comedy, "Listen, Lester," which comes to English's next week, is from a well known theatrical family, her father being H. M. Roberts, one of vaudeville's veterans and stock manager of the west. Her mother was originally from Chicago, where she was one time one of the leading teachers of the dancing. Miss Roberts possesses a wonderful physique, great strength and endurance, being gained through work on the bars in a "gym" suit. Quite determined there was no stunt in acrobatic dancing that another could do that she could not do herself, it was on a wager for some chocolates that the young lady first attempted her star feat of kicking the back of her head with both feet at the same time, an act achieved (Continued on Page Eight.)
