WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

A New Serial of Young Married Life

By Ann Lisle

Neal was pacing up and down the room, nonchalantly trying to light a cigarette and letting the match flicker out. Suddenly he flung cigarette and matches down on the table and dashed over to fling his arm about Jim's shoulders. Then he fell to patting Jim on the back and telling him over and over again what sharing our home had meant to him.

Little Phoebe sat silent, radiant-eyed, watching them.

"At this point Jim seized the helm hard in both hands and began steering the ship of events where he thought it ought to go.

"Get your things on, Princess Anne," said he. "Phoebe will stay here and keep her brother company while you see yours off to the station."

"Oh, Jim!" wailed Phoebe.

I was afraid to say a word. Jim only tolerated their fondness for each other because he didn't take it seriously—this he had just made very evident to me. I couldn't do a thing. But Neal could. He sheered off a bit and spoke to Jim unmanly fashion.

PUSS IN BOOTS JR.

By David Cory.

Now in the story before this I left off when the little bald-headed shop keeper told Puss how foolish he was to give the magic blue glass egg to the Old Witch. And pretty soon you shall hear why.

Well, as soon as the Old Witch reached her house in the woods, she went out to the little shed where she kept her chickens and placed the blue glass egg in a nest. And then she called to a little black hen and told her to sit on the glass egg.

Well, by and by, the little black hen got off her nest and there in the hay, instead of the blue glass egg, was a beautiful peacock, and in a short time he grew larger and larger until he was a great big magnificent bird. And then he walked over to the Old Witch's house and looked in through the window. And then he tapped on the little glass pane until the Old Witch opened the door.

"Ha, ha, my beauty," she cried in a high cracked voice, for she was very happy to see such a beautiful bird who came well imagine. "What can I do for you, my fine Peacock?" But the beautiful bird did not reply, but dropped his wings and looked very sad indeed. I guess he knew that he was in the power of that wicked witch.

"Go back to the shed, said the Old Witch, "and I will bring you some corn and barley. So the beautiful peacock did as he was told, for of course he was afraid of that wicked witch, for she might cut off his head any time with her sharp ax which she had hidden behind the door.

And now I suppose you are wondering what has become of Puss Junior all this time. Well, I'll tell you right away, for he is going to do something to help that beautiful Peacock, although he doesn't know yet what happened to the little blue glass egg.

Well, as soon as the little old man stopped speaking, Puss put on his cap and started off for the forest, and by and by he came to the old witch's hut. But, of course, he saw him coming a long ways off, and that was the reason she had told the Peacock to go back to the shed. And after she had locked him in she went back to her hut and awaited for Puss.

Well, after Puss had knocked on her door with the hilt of his sword maybe half a dozen times, she opened it and said, with a horrible grin, "What do you want?"

"Give me back my little blue glass egg. Here is the basket of eggs you gave me for it," and Puss looked fiercely at her, for he wasn't afraid—not when he was angry, anyway.

"I will not," said the wicked witch, and she slammed the door in his face, and then she gave such a horrible scream that all the little birds in the forest were frightened nearly to death.

"Then I will burn down your hut," said Puss, and he touched the wooden door with the flaming gold feather on his hat, and then he blew on it so that pretty soon the flames began to creep over the roof.

And if I had any more room in this story I'd tell you what happened after that, but I haven't, so you must wait until next time.—Copyright, 1920.

train-gate she stood on tiptoe for Neal's kiss and cried over and over again: "Come back to me, Neal. Come back to me!"

Her kiss was the last before he marched away through the gate with the other lads who were going to be soldiers. Then all unashamed Phoebe lifted her hand to wipe away the tears Neal had not seen her shed. And on her hand there gleamed something brighter than her tears—the circle of tiny diamonds that had been Father Andrew's betrothal pledge to Neal's mother—and mine.

Jim cleared his throat and limped ahead. But even as I caught Phoebe's my mind, mine a question flared across my mind: "Would Virginia say when she saw that circle on Phoebe's left hand?" (Copyright, 1920.)

INSECTS ON PLANTS.

Q. What shall I use to kill insects on plants? F. W. A. If the insect is a chewing insect, spray the plant with arsenate of lead; if a sucking insect, dust with tobacco powder; if a scale insect, one of the best remedies is a fish oil soap. Make a soda and give the plant a thorough bath, then allow to stand for two or three hours and spray with clear water.

Making Headway

"MOVE the freight!" is the cry of the day. The need of increased transportation and its vital relation to the welfare of the country were never so widely appreciated as now. It should be encouraging to the public to know that the railroads are fast getting back into their old stride.

During the month of August the New York Central Lines moved from stations and connecting lines 927,329 loaded cars. This is an increase of 53,129 cars over the same month of 1919, and the greatest number of loaded cars moved in any month of this year.

Prevailing conditions have brought especially heavy and imperative demands for transportation of basic necessities, particularly coal and ore.

These lines moved during the month of August, 27,667 cars of ore; an increase of 15,227 over the month of August, 1919, and by far the biggest movement of any month this year.

COAL loaded at mines on these lines during the month of August totalled 63,011 cars, an increase of 5,134 over the corresponding period of last year, and the heaviest loading of any month of the present year.

This performance, made possible by the earnestness and determination of New York Central workers, indicates the spirit as well as the physical strength of the system. Backed by larger investment and with the delivery of the new equipment now under construction, even these records will ultimately be surpassed.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not wear any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me."

A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is the very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family. It is sold in this city by all good druggists, including the Hook and the Haag stores.—Advertisement.

Skin Without Blemish Is Every Woman's Wish

Disfiguring Pimples Cause Much Embarrassment.

How often do we see women who would really be good looking but for some unsightly facial blemish that spoils her complexion and her chance of being considered attractive.

A clear ruddy complexion is an unmistakable sign of vigorous, healthy vitality, while pimples on the face indicate a depleted, run-down condition of the system.

A healthy, attractive skin is practically within reach of every woman, but it cannot be obtained from the use of cosmetics or so-called skin foods. First of all, it must be realized that the condition of the skin depends upon the condition of the blood, and no one can have a clear, ruddy, healthy skin unless the blood is pure and healthy and free from all impurities.

Pimples and blotches on the face or other parts of the body are not only a source of embarrassment, but they are also a warning from nature that should be promptly heeded. They indicate that the system needs a housecleaning—that foreign substance has crept into the blood to interfere with its perfect performance, and that a serious clogging up of the tissues and skin pores will result unless the proper treatment is resorted to. And this naturally leads to the query: "What is the proper method of treating diseases of the skin?" A very common mistake is to rely upon local remedies, such as lotions, salves, ointments and other applications to the surface of the skin. But eczema, tetter, psoriasis, skin eruptions and similar disorders that cause so much discomfort, and not merely a surface condition; their cause lies deeper, and you will never be entirely rid of the terrifying itching until you realize that their cause must be reached and eliminated.

So the answer is: "Seek the cause and remove it." The real source of all skin disorders being in the blood, the proper treatment must be through the blood. Rout out of the circulation the disease germs, and your skin will clear up and become normal and healthy.

The one remedy that is being used with uniform satisfaction is S.S.S., the fine old purely vegetable blood medicine that has been on the market for more than half a century. This splendid remedy builds up the blood supply by removing from it any impurities, and gives excellent results in all cases of skin disorders.

Throw aside your lotions and ointments and treat the source of your trouble, if you wish to be free from skin disorders and blemishes.

Get a bottle of S.S.S. from your druggist today, and you will be pleased with what this remedy will accomplish. Then, if you want special expert advice you can obtain same without cost by writing fully to Chief Medical Adviser, 282 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.—Advertisement.
