WHY?

By what process of reasoning can the present method of selling the coke produced by the Citizens Gas Company be considered to be from the standpoint of economics? Indianapolis demands fuel which must be shipped into this city. Coal is shipped here for the use of the gas company, which converts it into coke. As coke is shipped out of the city while the people of Indianapolis wait for more coal to be shipped to them. Why shouldn't this coke, made of coal shipped to Indianapolis, be utilized by Indianapolis citizens, thus releasing not only the cars that carry it away, but also the cars that must otherwise be used to bring coal for Indianapolis consumers?
