

WOMEN VOTERS GIVEN WARNING

'Don't Ruin Ballot,' Urges Democratic Leader.

"Don't ruin your ballot," was the warning sounded by Mrs. Martha Yoh Marson, organization chairman for Marion County Democratic women, to her ward chairwomen, at a meeting at the Indiana Democratic Club yesterday.

"While you had a chance to correct an error in your registration, you will not have a chance to correct your vote," she said, in describing the vote by machine and by Australian ballot.

Plans were adopted to have an assistant appointed to every precinct committee woman, whose duty it will be to make herself thoroughly familiar with the voting machine and the Australian ballot system and instruct the women in her precinct how to vote.

Between now and the election a machine will be placed in every ward for the Democrats so that the women may learn to operate it.

Mrs. Marson recommended that schools in voting be held by the ward committee women, assisted by the precinct committee women.

GRATITUDE OVER THE WAY WOMEN REGISTERED.

Mrs. Marson expressed much gratification over the results of the registration, declaring that she was very well satisfied with the way the women had worked.

"I am certain if we all work for the election like we did for the registration, that every Democratic vote registered in Marion County will be cast," she said.

"It is important that we teach the women how to vote correctly and rapidly," stated Mrs. Marson, "because the double amount of voters, without a double amount of facilities, is going to cause congestion and confusion."

Mrs. Marson emphasized the necessity of women going to the polls whenever possible between the crowded hours, in order that the men may cast their votes early in the morning and in the evening.

In discussing the party issues, Mrs. Marson said that the time "has come to get down to brass tacks."

STRESSES VALUE OF PERSONAL CONTACT.

"A great amount of successful work is being done by the speakers, but personal contact counts tremendously," she declared, pointing out that the doubtful and uncertain women voters will be glad to listen to explanations of the issues of the Democratic party.

"There are hundreds of women in this city who have been deceived by the misinformation of the Republicans," she said, "who will undoubtedly vote for the League of Nations if they understand their mistake."

Woodburn Masson, democratic commissioner of the Marion County election board, demonstrated the use of the voting machine and the Australian ballot, laying special stress on the need for great care in filling out the ballot.

PUSS IN BOOTS JR.

By David Cory.

In the last story we left little Puss Junior with Giant Whistle and all the little whistling birds of the forest, you remember. Well, pretty soon Puss said: "I think I must be going on my way, Sir Giant Whistle!" So the big man put Puss down on the ground and wished him a pleasant journey, and said that Puss set off and pretty soon, not so very far, he came to a little Dwarf who was sewing buttons on a little green coat.

He was sitting at the foot of a big, high walnut tree and was sewing on the walnut shells for buttons. "And it wasn't such a very easy job, either, let me tell you, for first he had to make little holes in the hard shell with a small, sharp gimlet."

"Halloo, little man!" said Puss, taking off his cap with the flaming gold feather and sitting down by the little man of the wood.

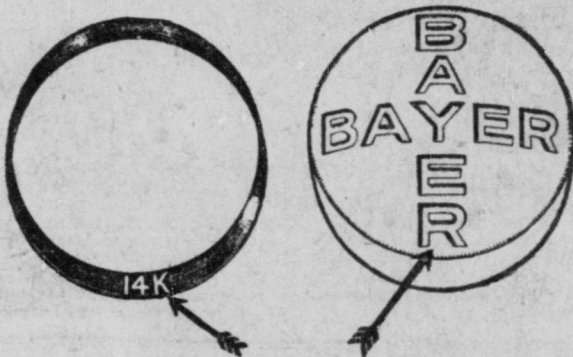

"For whom are you making this coat?" "And who may you be?" asked the little man with a frown. You see, he wasn't going to answer questions without knowing who Puss was. So Puss told him why he was traveling through Fairy Land, and who was his father, and, oh, lots and lots of things, and pretty soon the little Dwarf said, after he had put on the walnut button, "Come with me, Sir Cat, and I will show you some new things. I see you are fond of adventure."

"And then he picked up the little green coat and stuck his needle in the lapel of his jacket and started off through the forest."

"You needn't worry, for I mean you no harm," he said, looking back at Puss. But he needn't have said that, for Puss wasn't the least bit worried. For why should he be? Didn't he have his magic

Wife Wins $3,000 for Loss of Spouse's Love

Judgment of $3,000 was granted Lavan-Greenberg, wife of Sol Greenberg, in her $10,000 damage suit against Ada and Morris Greenberg, of 2005 North New Jersey street, for alienating her husband's affections.

The evidence showed the parents of Greenberg interfered in the domestic life of their son to such an extent that Greenberg Jr. left his wife.

Mrs. Greenberg asked for $10,000 in the original suit, but Judge Moll allowed damages of $3,000 against the defendants on a verdict returned by a jury.

Blames War Training for Stealing Auto

Special to The Times.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 13.—Pless that his stealing of an automobile was due to principles absorbed during twenty-three months of World War service with the tank corps did not save Florence Davis, 20, from a sentence of one to fourteen years at the hands of Judge Walter A. Funk in the St. Joseph Circuit Court.

The youth pleaded guilty and his counsel, in asking for clemency, blamed war conditions for a wave of crime.
